BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 28.—Buenos Aires awoke today to find the Plazo de Mayo, government house and streets surrounding President Hipolito Yrigoyen's private residence, presenting the aspect of a beleaguered city because of a concentration of troops and police to protect him from assassination, which private information led the government to believe would be attempted in the course of the night.

Soldiers of the noted San Martin Grenadiers regiment, who form the president's escort and bodyguard, were posted all night on the roofs of houses near that of President Yrigoyen's, with four machine guns, while two companies of gendarmes guarded the approaches to the house.

Keep Troops in Readiness.

The province of Buenos Aires railroad kept a troop train on a siding at La Plata, 34 miles from the capital, ready all night to rush troops at a given signal.

Cabinet ministers remained with President Yrigoyen in his home until daylight. In the block in which his house is situated there was parked a double line of official automobiles of political supporters who spent the night with him or in adjacent houses.

President Yrigoyen is being bitterly criticised for the present depression in Argentina, which is traceable directly to the worldwide economic crisis rather than to politics. Hundreds of thousands of disappointed job hunters have left his party and are stirring active opposition to him. Huge meetings of the opposition are being held in the streets almost nightly. Before and after them thousands of manifestants march through the streets shouting insults to the president.

Recall Former Attempt.

The president is reported to have told cabinet members he does not expect a rebellion but that there is likelihood another attempt will be made to assassinate him. An attempt on his life was made last Christmas, when an Italian anarchist fired five shots at his automobile when he was en route to the government house.

A heavy guard of mounted men remained at the residence and government house throughout today. Troops were confined to barracks awaiting orders and commanding officers were instructed not to leave their quarters.

The greatest mystery attended all these precautions. No official statement was made today, but it was allowed to be understood that information had been received that President Yrigoyen was to be attacked. The nature of the precautions indicate a more serious threat, however.

Revolt Plot in Army.

The cabinet is reported to have informed Senor Yrigoyen yesterday that serious rumors of rebellion were current and to have supplied him with the names of persons involved as well as information that part of the army was wavering.

Gen. Marcilesi, commanding the First army division, and Gen. Alvarez, commanding the Second division, were with the president most of the night. Then they made a surprise visit to the barracks of the Third infantry at 3:30 this morning and ordered all officers to appear before them.

Today's newspapers report that several important changes will be made in army commands.

Peru Normal Again.

LIMA, Peru, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Peru today apparently had returned to the normal status existing before a revolt last Friday stirred the nation and resulted in the installation of Lieut. Col. Luis M. Sanchez Cerro last night, as the new head of the government. Lieut. Col. Cerro, arriving from Arequipa by airplane, succeeded a military junta which on Monday ousted President Augusto B. Leguia, and was sworn in last night as president of the new junta without portfolio. He installed a new cabinet today, consisting entirely of army and navy men.

Meanwhile officials said the whole country had swung to Sanchez Cerro. Business, too, was resumed today and Lima presented its normal atmosphere.

CARDINALS BEAT CUBS, 8 TO 7, IN 20 INNING GAME

The St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Cubs, 8 to 7, in a 20 inning battle at Wrigley field yesterday. The Cubs came from behind in the 8th and again in the 15th to tie the score, but lost out when Douthit singled, moved to second on an out, and scored on High's single in the 20th. Score:

POSSE HUNTING FOR KILLER OF INDIANA CHILD

Victim, 8 Years Old, Raped, Garroted.

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Lured into an automobile and kidnaped Wednesday evening, 8 year old Marberine Appel, daughter of Mrs. Eula Appel of 206 East Bronson street, was found murdered tonight in an alley two blocks south of her home. She had been raped.

All of South Bend's police department, consisting of 150 policemen and detectives, and a volunteer posse of citizens, in cars and on motorcycles, were mobilized within an hour, and the biggest man hunt in the history of this city was underway.

Woman Finds Body.

The body of the child, missing for thirty hours, was discovered by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Buschatz, alongside the garage of their home in the rear of 710 Carroll street. They were returning from an evening ride. Mrs. Buschatz, looking out, saw what she thought was a doll. She leaned over to pick it up, and saw it was a girl.

Marberine was still wearing the pink house dress, with the white collar she had on last evening. She was hatless and barefoot. A wound two inches long had been inflicted, apparently with a monkey wrench, on the left side of the head. A length of bailing wire was drawn tightly around the throat. She had been choked to death.

Deputy Coroner William K. Mikesch of St. Joseph's county, whose examination disclosed she had been raped, expressed the opinion she had not been dead more than an hour and a half when found. As reconstructed by Mr. Mikesch and the police this is what happened:

Child Lured Into Auto.

After the child had been lured into the car at 6 o'clock Wednesday, by the promise of candy, the abductor drove around for several hours, apparently debating what to do with her. She probably passed the night unharmed, but some time today she was attacked. That she struggled was indicated by her clothing, which was badly torn.

Her continued screaming frightened her abductor and he struck her over the head. Apparently that did not silence her, and he noosed the bailing wire around her throat, drawing it tighter and tighter until the child ceased to cry. The authorities reason the abductor must live in South Bend or vicinity, and that he killed her to prevent identification.

Two Men Seen Running.

The only clue so far was obtained from a neighbor of the Buschatzes, Mrs. Mary Mitcaret of 706 Carroll street. About 9 o'clock, she heard what she describes as "a scuffling in the alley and a commotion." She hurried out in time to see two men running through the alley. She had only a fleeting glimpse of them and could give no definite descriptions. She says they appeared to be not more than 25 or 30 years old.

Jack Spamcer, 32 years old, was brought into headquarters, questioned, and released following information given by Mrs. Appel. She said he visited her home an hour before the body was discovered and asked her, "Have you heard anything?" When Mrs. Appel said she hadn't, she quotes him as saying, "Well, don't worry; you'll find her tomorrow."

Child Youngest of Three.

The child was the youngest of three children, the other two being boys, Comer, 14 years old, and Ottis, 11 years old. Her mother and father have been divorced for five years. He lived until recently in Chattanooga, Tenn., when he moved to New York City.

Mrs. Appel is employed at the Studebaker plant here. She gets home from work at 6 o'clock. Marberine was playing all afternoon yesterday near her home. Her little girl chums told their parents that the car into which she was lured was driven slowly about the neighborhood for hours, the occupant giving them candy and trying to win their confidence. They could supply no description of him, other than that he was an adult. The car was a sedan, a bantam make just put on the market.

Driver Speeds Away.

The last adult to see Marberine was Mrs. Helen Hoppe of 310 Bronson street. She said the child and two other girls of the same age were walking together toward the Appel home. That was at 5:50 p. m. The girls said they had arrived at the

Lindy Beacon Pierces Haze to Milwaukee

Its inventor's claim that the Lindbergh beacon, put into service Wednesday night on the Palmolive building, has remarkable powers as a long distance aerial guidepost was partly verified last night when a plane carrying a TRIBUNE reporter flew almost to Milwaukee and, despite the thick haze, at all times saw the reassuring beam sweeping the horizon. The distance was about eighty miles and the plane had not gone beyond the light's range.

For thirty miles the light was quite clear, despite the visual interference of many airport lights and the blinking markers which point the way on the St. Paul route. At Milwaukee the murk had somewhat interfered with the constancy of the circling beam, but it appeared in strong, regular flashes.

An All Night Job.

Lieut. E. R. Quesada, personal pilot for Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, chief of the army air corps, and the pilot on last night's excursion, commented that a search for the furthermost point the beam could penetrate "looks like an all night proposition."

The Milwaukee flyers took off from Pal-Waukee airport in a Junior Wasp-Spearman plane, owned by C. W. Deeds, secretary-treasurer of the Pratt-Whitney Aircraft corporation. All the way to Waukegan the flyers kept at 4,000 feet and the beacon seemed as bright as though it were only a mile to the rear.

Found Pitched Too High.

North of Waukegan the light grew slightly dimmer but, considering the haze and the murky atmosphere, formed an excellent guidepost. The one criticism found was that the beam was pitched too high—it is now canted two degrees above the horizon. Inasmuch as a beacon is primarily for the use of flyers in bad weather, the aviators believe it should be set lower so as to benefit the bad weather flyers who always keep close to the earth.

Engineer R. Bohmfeldt of the Sperry company, makers of the Lindbergh beacon, spent several hours last night adjusting the beam in an attempt to set it at the tilt most useful to flyers. Experiments were made in casting it high and low, and Maj. R. W. Schroeder at the Curtiss-Reynolds airport, scene of the national air races, kept in telephone communication with Mr. Bohmfeldt to report the best angle.

Sun Flash Is Lighted.

While the observers were flying north to value the Lindbergh light for night aviators a sudden glow of deep, crimson color from the top of the La Salle-Wacker building announced first tests of the new Sun Flash beacon, a day and night signpost which convinced its designers, in the tests, that it has unusual possibilities.

Architect Andrew N. Rebori perfected the daytime feature of the new beacon by following a principle as old as the ancient civilization of Egypt. He recalls that the famous "Pharos" which marked the harbor of Alexandria was a huge sheet of polished metal—a mirror—mounted on a promontory and turned to reflect the sun's rays.

Eight large parabolic, cross section mirrors were mounted in a circle on steel supports on the building's roof and capped with a polished dome. The sun reflects upon these, throwing out a fan of white light which will be visible, Rebori believes, for almost 100 miles on a clear day. For night use red neon tubes, two to each mirror, are lighted and reflected to thirty times their original power by the polished background. Only eight of these tubes were lighted last night and but four of the eight searchlights at the base of the supports could be put into use.

FAMED COUPLE FLEE FROM AIR FANS' ACCLAIM

Praises Program at Curtiss Field.

BY ROBERT WOOD.

Yesterday was Lindbergh day at the National Air Races and the largest crowd of the meet was in the stands to cheer the arrival of the famous colonel and his flying wife when they landed in their Wasp-Lockheed monoplane—the ship in which they recently made a record cross continent flight.

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh are here for only a brief stay at the races. They will be off again today—probably at noon—flying to Detroit and then to New York. Press of business, the colonel said, called him back to Manhattan.

Beats Air Traffic Light.

The air traffic control light at Curtiss field was changing as the Lindberghs arrived from Indianapolis. But the colonel beat it, sliding over the grandstands just as the light closed the port to incoming planes.

One look at the crowds bulging out into the field sent Lindbergh over to the eastern border to land and he taxied over to army headquarters and parked.

The Lindberghs were greeted by Maj. Clarence M. Young, assistant secretary of commerce for aviation, Earle H. Reynolds, president of the air race corporation, and Mrs. Reynolds who escorted them through the crowds while National Guardsmen and a hundred others with badges and brass buttons fought and shouted at a docile crowd that applauded as the party passed.

Taken to Special Box.

The colonel, who suffered some from crowd-phobia, was good natured enough as uniformed men shoved him and Mrs. Lindbergh into a special box reserved for them. But the colonel apparently found his box too conspicuous for he left shortly with Mrs Lindbergh, climbing into the high control tower above the grand stands.

There they met the foreign flyers. High above and shielded from the gaze of the crowd Lindbergh spent three hours in the tower watching and applauding performances of the army pursuit planes, the glider flight of Frank Hawks, who recently broke the Lindbergh transcontinental record, and the stunting maneuvers of Al Williams.

Making No Flight Plans.

Whether Lindbergh will attempt to regain the speed record for transcontinental flight could not be learned. In a press interview he said that he was "making no plans" to start another cross continent flight. Of Frank Hawks' record he said:

"I think that is good enough to stand for a while."

As interviewers crowded about the colonel radio men attempted to put microphones before him, but he asked that they be taken away.

"The races are splendid," he said. "I'm sorry we can't stay longer, but we must go to Detroit tomorrow and I must be back in New York by the first of the week. So I won't be able to fly in the races."

Silent on Son.

Both the army and navy had invited "Slim" to fly with them, as he did with the navy "High Hats" during the races at Cleveland last year.

But the colonel had nothing to say about his new son. To a woman journalist's question, "Is Junior at home?" Lindbergh answers, "I don't care to talk about that."

So the questioner tried this: "How is Junior?"

"Very well, thank you," replied the colonel and the subject was immediately changed to aviation and the Lindbergh beacon, dedicated Wednesday night. He said he was not sure that he would be able to inspect the light which bears his name during his visit here.

Surrounded by 25 policemen, who seemed more excited than the good natured crowd, Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh were ushered through the stands at the close of the program and were driven to the loop.

Spend Evening at Drake.

The Lindberghs spent the evening at the Drake hotel. Unescorted his party arrived at the hotel shortly after 8:30 o'clock and was immediately ushered into a suite on the fifth floor. As the colonel entered the lobby he became the center of attraction and

COULDN'T BITE HER LANDLADY; HAS NO TEETH

Miss Helen Lomax, 23 years old, and her landlady, Mrs. Alverta Stewart, 2106 Emerson street, Evanston, appeared yesterday before Police Magistrate Harry H. Porter of that suburb. Both are colored. Mrs. Stewart testified Miss Lomax had bit her left thumb.

"I did not, your honor," said Miss Lomax, "because I could not. I have no teeth."

"Open," said Magistrate Porter.

"She left her false teeth at home, judge," interrupted Mrs. Stewart.

Magistrate Porter ruled that Miss Lomax had not bitten Mrs. Stewart's thumb, but ordered her to vacate the premises by Sept. 2, inasmuch as she had not paid her room rent.

Mayor Walker said all the projects were undertaken as part of the city's method of relieving unemployment.

Coca Cola Heir Tells Why His Love Cooled

New York, Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Reversing the usual procedure when a gentleman gets sued by a lady for $500,000 for breach of promise, Joseph B. Whitehead, co-inheritor with his brother, Conkey, of the Coca-Cola millions, came right out today and told all—all about Mrs. Annette S. Bracy, youthful and suing Park avenue widow.

Not only did Whitehead admit that he had indulged in "relations of the greatest intimacy" with Mrs. Bracy, which she had not said a word about, but he went a step farther in frankness. He said, in answer filed to Mrs. Bracy's action, that the reason he had broken with her was his discovery that she had been too friendly with at least eight other men, all of high social and financial degree, and most of them with Park or 5th avenue homes, country estates and yachts.

Dates, Places, but Only Initials.

He specified dates and places but referred to Mrs. Bracy's reputed other admirers only by their initials.

"However, I am quite willing to name them all more fully, if Mrs. Bracy insists on a bill of particulars," Whitehead declared.

It was Whitehead's marriage last February to Miss Laura Saffield, former Maison Berman modiste, which angered the dashing Park avenue widow into starting the suit, he asserts. Previously he had been divorced by Mrs. Marjorie Cassidy Whitehead, ex-Follies beauty.

Whitehead said he met Mrs. Bracy in January, 1925, aboard the liner Olympic.

"I was much impressed by her beauty and general attractiveness, and by reason of her apparent good breeding and ladylike behavior," the answer goes on. "Also, by her own statements of the social standing of her family in California. I believed she was a gentlewoman and associated with her as such.

Toured Europe Together, He Says.

"After we reached Europe, in response to her advances, I assumed relations of the greatest intimacy with her. We traveled together extensively, to Cannes, Monte Carlo and elsewhere. From that time until April, 1929, I gave her money and other presents. She knew, however, that I was a married man."

Then comes the initialed "lovers' list" specifications as follows:

"Early in 1928 she stayed at Palm Beach, home of F. F. Though maintaining his home in a Fifth avenue apartment, F. F. kept a love nest at 383 Park avenue. She visited there, often twice a week, sometimes all night.

"In April, 1928, she went on drinking parties with M. F., sometimes at the Beaux Arts and others in his apartments in the Hotel Barclay.

"She went around with C. W. to night clubs in July, 1928.

Detroit Judge Mentioned.

"On Aug. 1, 1928, she began meeting Judge M. of Detroit, stopping at least one night in his apartment at 75 East 55th street.

"In November, 1928, she was with Capt. H. aboard his yacht at Miami until 4 o'clock one morning.

"Early in 1929 she went with McD. to the home of P. P. at Sands Point, Long Island, remaining there with J. McV.

"During October, 1929, she spent several nights a week with S. S. in his apartment in the Ritz-Carlton hotel."

The captivating widow got her apartment at 77 Park avenue at a $7,200 yearly rental without even asking his permission, the answer reads. And then when he called there one day she wouldn't let him in.

LEGS NO LONGER ARE A TREAT, SO SENNETT DISBANDS BEAUTIES

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—No more will those beautiful Mack Sennett bathing girls merrily halt the progress of all kinds of plots in Sennett's comedy motion pictures, while they hold the center of the camera's eye in pairs of shorts. Pretty legs no longer constitute the main attraction for theater audiences as they once did, Sennett says he has found out, and the white haired dean of fun films has broken up his bathing beauty band.

Suit Price Reductions Continue Today and Tomorrow

Ask your favorite waitress. She'll tell you. Tips aren't what they used to be. That goes whether you are talking about patent leather tips, stock market tips, or what you leave under the saucer after a meal at a restaurant. But here's one that's good, and good right now: Suits are a buy today and tomorrow. Lower prices are quoted on good clothes than at any time since the war. Lower prices for materials made it possible for the merchants to sell their suits at substantial reductions from a year ago. But they have done that all year. The reason for mentioning all this now is that a good thing has been made better. In the August sales, which have two days to run, the prices have been cut still further and are nearly back to what they were in 1913.

Today and tomorrow are great days to buy suits.

the attention appeared to annoy him. Several times he nodded to his wife and appeared relieved when he followed her into the elevator and away from the throng.

They had as guests for the evening Mr. and Mrs. Earle Reynolds. The colonel said he intended visiting the Reynolds home for the night and did not have any definite plans for today.

Williams Presents Stunts.

Lieut. Al William put his special built Curtiss Hawk through its paces yesterday for the first time during the meet. His was a finished performance, although not as frightful as the flights of a half dozen other stunt flyers who have been going through contortions over the stands. But as the crowd watched the yellow winged biplane climb and turn on its back, spiral, spin, and dive far enough across the field to insure their safety they realized they were watching an artist.

The German, Capt. Fritz Loose, tried out another American plane, a low powered Savoia-Marchetti amphibian, wholly unsuited for stunting but he managed skillfully to loop with it. For one breathless moment the spectators yesterday thought they were about to see an airplane land on top of an automobile when Marshal Pietro Colombo, the Italian flyer, dropped down behind a limousine bearing Cliff Henderson, manager of the races. But the Italian had his plane in hand.

Hawks Gives Speed Showing.

Frank Hawks in the red and white striped monoplane that brought him his recent cross-continent record, showed Chicagoans some of the speed that won that record in a demonstration during the afternoon. A loose wing wire shrieking as he sped around the pylons at a speed greatly in excess of 200 miles an hour added to his spectacular performance.

Ed Heath of Chicago was first to finish in an "air flivver race" for the smallest planes entered in the meet. In a Parasol monoplane of his own design he rounded the pylons at an average speed of 79 miles an hour. In an open plane race for motors up to 300 horsepower Lloyd O'Donnell of Long Beach, Cal., finished first at 152 miles an hour with a taper-wing Waco.

Giuseppe M. Bellanca, famed airplane designer, arrived with a party from New Castle, Del., in his passenger and cargo air bus, a new development in single motored transport planes.

RESULTS OF CONTESTS

E. B. Heath of Chicago in a Parasol won the civilians' free for all race in the contests at the national air races at Curtiss field yesterday. Mrs. Mae Haizlip, injured while flying to Washington to enter the woman's Dixie Derby, took to the air in the women's race despite her injuries and won. Results of the contests follow:

Primary duration contest—Won by F. W. Westphal of Chicago, in a Mead. Time, 1 minute 21 2-5 seconds.

Men's dead stick contest—First, Ray E. Kuser of Trenton, N. J., in a Waco, 6 feet 1 inch from the flag; second, Basil Sims, 10 feet 3 inches from the flag; third, Lee Brusee of Glendale, Cal., in a Fleet, 14 feet 9 inches from the flag.

POLISH GROUP TO HOLD JUBILEE FETE ON SUNDAY

Scores of prominent Chicago citizens of Polish descent will participate on Sunday in the golden jubilee celebration of the Polish Mechanics Commercial society, group three, of the Polish National Alliance of America. The society was organized in 1880 in the old Vorwaerts hall at 12th and Halsted streets.

The program Sunday will consist of a solemn high mass of thanksgiving at St. Adalbert's church, 1650 West 17th street, at 9:30 a. m. The Rev. Casimir Gronkowski will officiate.

Valentine Szymanski, a retired business man, will be toastmaster at a jubilee dinner to be held at 6:30 p. m. at the Lewis hotel, Milwaukee avenue and Division street. The Rev. Thomas Sampolinski will pronounce the invocation.

MRS. LINDBERGH STOPS WOMAN'S SHOW AT RACES

Mae Haizlip, Injured Flyer, Wins Speed Event.

Feminine pilots had a good act yesterday when for the first time they stepped into the spotlight as contenders at the National Air races at the Curtiss airport. But Mrs. Charles Lindbergh, innocently enough, had only to step out of her husband's Lockheed on the field to "stop the show."

MRS. MAE HAIZLIP. [Speed event winner.] [Associated Press Photo.]

Whether she would or not, and she much preferred not, the petite figure in the French blue jersey and white sweater jacket was as much the cynosure as was her famous husband from the moment their plane hove in sight. As she came through the gate from the field into the spectators' stand clasping the loosened straps of her white helmet she looked a shy young schoolgirl arriving at somebody else's party.

Policemen Clear Path.

As had been anticipated, advance indications of the arrival of the guests of honor precipitated a tremendous traffic jam on the field itself. A flying wedge of policemen was necessary to clear a path for the Lindberghs and Mr. and Mrs. Earle Reynolds to reach the box reserved for them. Mrs. Lindbergh was laughing as she emerged from the throng, almost catapulted out by the pressure of those back of her.

"O please—I'm only a spectator. I've really nothing to say," was Mrs. Lindbergh's response to a request for her reactions to the races and aviation generally. "I just came here as a passenger in the plane, and you must excuse me this time."

Wins Race Despite Injury.

Mrs. Mae Haizlip of St. Louis, whose injuries received while flying to Washington to enter the women's Dixie Derby left her walking with a cane, entered a race event during the afternoon. Cane and all she climbed into her Inland model sport for the women's open type race and streaked around the pylons for a generous lead during the first four laps. Then, having miscounted, she swung wide and started climbing, under the impression the race was won.

But happening to glance back and seeing Mrs. Vera Walker of Kansas City making another turn, she sensed her error. Nothing daunted, she put on speed, overtook, and passed her rival, and won by a safe lead. Her average speed was 121.08 miles per hour.

Plane Damaged in Contest.

Disaster overtook Mrs. Edith Foltz of Portland during the dead stick landings for the women contestants. Charity Langdon of Norfolk, Va., had just edged her Whittlesley across the field and dropped to earth 150 feet from the pin, winning the event, when Mrs. Foltz cut her throttle and came in short. In trying to stretch her glide, she stalled her plane, which fell about twelve feet, "washing out" the undercarriage.

Betty Lund of Troy, O., was second in the dead stick landings, putting her Aeronica down 167 feet from the mark. Nancy Hopkins of Garden City, L. I., was third, her distance being 410 feet wide of the goal.

Woman Early Bird Arrives.

One of the feminine arrivals during the day was Mrs. Marie Berger, a member of the exclusive Early Birds' organization, comprising pilots who flew prior to 1916. Her late husband was Elmer Lee Partridge, killed four years ago in the mail service. He was the builder of the "Partridge Tractor" in which Katherine Stinson, pioneer woman flyer, first looped the loop in 1914.

Miss Lorraine De Fren of Boston, president of the Wing and Prop club, will today present the trophy donated by the organization, a 20 inch silver vase, to the winner of the women's open cockpit race on the afternoon's schedule.

What Noted Flyers Say and Do

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

There wasn't any one on the field so excited yesterday as Jimmie Haizlip, flyer, when his wife, Mae Haizlip, won the women's closed course race. "I hate to brag," said Jimmie, "but wasn't that pretty."

Smoking by women is correct at the races. It was being done in the boxes yesterday.

A busload of aviators on their way to the field witnessed an automobile crash in which one woman was injured. "When we saw it, most of us became ill. I never saw so many white faces," said Louis Sevier of Miami, who learned to fly in 1912 at the air races in Ascot Park, Los Angeles. At those races, Mr. Sevier said, an automobile used to drive around the 50 mile race track underneath the racing plane. The idea was to show the "awful speed" of the plane in contrast to the automobile, but despite instructions to the driver, invariably the automobile finished first, he said.

When David Rutizer and Al Blazina, telegraph operators, went up for a ride in the cockpit of an army bomber they talked to each other in code by tapping their arms.

The Hunter brothers, former endurance record holders, for some time absent from the public eye, came in for a little bit of the spotlight yesterday when they greeted the audience from the speakers' stand.

The sportsmanship of Capt. Fritz Loose, German flyer, who has borrowed three ships since his own cracked up, but was unable to get any for more than a day, apparently has caught the imagination of the crowd. Yesterday his stunting in the amphibian, Savoia Marchetti, was applauded with enthusiasm.

Parker D. [Shorty] Cramer, one of the best known pilots here, is known among other things for his agility in hoofing it from Greenland. Shorty's legs are short but sturdy. For two weeks he walked over an unexplored area of ice to Hobbs base after he landed short of his goal, which was Stockholm, Sweden, in August, 1928. With five ounces of food a day, he didn't get fat, he said. He was back in the states in October, and in April set out again. He made the six day record from Nome to New York. Last summer he was in the antarctic with Sir Hubert Wilkins.

The Lindbergh beacon was visible at Curtiss field, after the night events were over and the lights on the field were turned out.

Lieut. Arthur Ennis, from the speakers' stand, directed nine army bombers over the radio yesterday. All of the bombers, and a plane above them, were equipped with radios. It was the first such demonstration before a large audience, Lieut. Ennis said.

Mme. Doret, blonde wife of the French flyer, patronized a concessionaire selling tiny parasols yesterday. Unlike American women, she doesn't want a coat of sunburn.

Mary Joe Melanson, 7 year old daughter of Capt. A. J. Melanson, air corps procurement representative in Chicago, was among the girls who obtained the autograph of Lieut. Doret yesterday.

Immediately after Col. Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh were escorted by police and officials to a box in the grand stand, a swarm of amateur cameras were held up by boxholders all around him, and a multitude of parents' arms held up youngsters armed with pencils and papers to get the flyer's autograph. Lindbergh was talking with officials, however, and apparently did not see them.

Miss Betty Lund, who came in fourth in the women's race yesterday, wore the sixth costume she has appeared in during the races. It consisted of tan pleated linen shorts and striped tan blouse. Ankle socks and sandals, and the helmet and goggles she is never without, completed the costume.

ENGLISH SOBRIETY GAINS; FEWER ARRESTS MADE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 28.—England is getting more sober. Last year there were fewer convictions for drunkenness in England and Wales than in any other year since 1918. According to the annual licensing statistics issued tonight the number of drunkenness convictions last year were 51,966 compared with 55,642 the previous year.

This decrease is confined to England, for in Wales there was an increase of 31 cases. More than half the arrests for drunkenness occurred over week-ends both in England and Wales.

Statistics indicate that the habit of drinking methylated spirits is declining. "The total number of convictions for drunkenness ascribed to the consumption of methylated spirits was trifling compared with the total of convictions for drunkenness," the report stated, adding that of the latter total convicitions 84 per cent were men and the remainder females.

Parachute Fails Man Shot from Plane; Falls in Sea

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Ted Steelman, Baltimore daredevil and successor to the title, "human cannon ball," barely escaped immediate death this afternoon when his parachute failed to open and he was plunged 2,000 feet into the ocean after being shot out of a cannon slung beneath a plane going more than 100 miles an hour.

Only his presence of mind in assuming a position that broke the force of his plunge as he struck the water saved Steelman from the fate of his predecessor, Harvey Powers, who originated the cannon ball stunt on July 4. Powers was killed on Aug. 1.

Plane Rushes to Rescue of Lost Canadian Flyer

ATLIN, B. C., Aug. 28.—(AP)—A rescue plane took off today to bring back Capt. E. J. A Burke and a passenger who were sighted yesterday on a lake about 125 miles northeast of Teslin after disappearing on a flight more than a week ago. W. A. Joerss, pilot of the rescue ship, dropped food and cigarets to the stranded men, but was unable to land because his machine was heavily loaded with supplies and gasoline. They waved a greeting, he said, and appeared uninjured.

ACCIDENT VERDICT RETURNED AT INQUEST ON FATAL AIR CRASH

A verdict of accident was returned yesterday by the coroner's jury investigating the airplane crash at the air races at Curtiss field which resulted in the deaths of Lieut. Jack De Shazo, navy pilot, and Louis Weiner, 3304 West North avenue, on Wednesday. De Shazo was commended for what the jurors believed to be an attempt to avoid a crowded grandstand when the flyer realized a crash was imminent. Weiner was killed when struck by a wing of the plane.

What caused De Shazo's craft to slip suddenly from a bank and crash to the ground on its back was not determined. The tragedy occurred just as he finished third in a navy race. He was attached to the aircraft carrier Lexington.

Navy officials announced that burial would be in Arlington cemetery.

Jugo-Slav Planes Win Air Derby of Four Nations

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Aug. 28.—Six Jugo-Slavian military aviators in the Little Entente Air Derby completed the route today without mishap, well ahead of the rest of the field. Four of the Czecho-Slovagian planes were in the second group with Rumania's four ships finishing third. Only two of the six Polish flyers reached Warsaw, four having crashed yesterday.

FASTER PLANES NEEDED, HAWKS TELLS ENGINEERS

Stresses Importance in Commercial Aviation.

Capt. Frank Hawks, who recently broke Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's record on a coast to coast flight, last night made a plea for faster flying. Capt. Hawks, who is in Chicago for the air races at Curtiss airport, was the principal speaker and guest of honor at a banquet at the Palmer house, given by the Society of Automotive Engineers.

Plane manufacturers and others connected with the aviation industry in the United States are somewhat timid about speeding up planes, Capt. Hawks indicated.

Argues for Faster Planes.

"But," he argued, "flying was never under better auspices than now. Motor failures are now extremely rare; they have been reduced to a low minimum. Our air fields all over this country and Canada have been marvelously developed within very recent years. It is difficult now to find a landing field anywhere with a runway of less than 2,000 feet. Every agency pertaining to flying appears to encourage faster flying than has yet become general.

"Speed in aviation is an ever more important factor. Not primarily because of the sport of the thing, but because speedier planes, when they are speeded under safe conditions, mean a higher development of commercial aviation."

Criticizes Long Flights.

Capt. Hawks, in touching modestly upon his flight from Los Angeles to New York, which was made in 12 and a half hours, two and a half hours less than the record of Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh, said he had lost interest in long nonstop flights.

"Attempted nonstop flights across our country to me appear quite meaningless," he said. "There seems no object in such long jaunts when there are so many pleasant airports to drop down upon for a few moments' visit. I like those flying stops. I like to shake hands with the people standing about, munch a sandwich and smoke a cigarette. Then, immeasurably refreshed, I can take to the air again. I believe actually faster time may be made that way than by a long and tiresome grind."

Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell, winner of the women's Pacific Air Derby, was another guest at the dinner. William B. Stout, president of the Stout Engineering laboratories, was toastmaster.

Major Schroeder Keeps Air Races Running on Schedule

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Sitting up in the second story of a two story bungalow erected on the roof of the hangar at Curtiss field, Maj. R. W. [Shorty] Schroeder works day and night at his job of running the air races.

There isn't a detail of the events which escapes the watchful eye of Shorty. With three telephones and a couple of radiophones at his elbow, he sits in his perch and issues orders which men all over the field obey.

Events of the program of the races have not deviated by more than a few minutes from their scheduled appearance. Those departures have been rare.

Keeps Events on Schedule.

When it is time for the army to go up Maj. Schroeder telephones army headquarters at the south end of the field. Likewise with the navy. When it is time for individual contestants to begin a race or maneuver he telephones the operations headquarters at the north end of the field. If anything goes wrong he is telephoned.

In case his phones are out of order, he is equipped with radiophones. These connect with various parts of the field, and the pylons. Seated in the top of the pylons are amateur radio operators, who man the radios. Theirs is an exciting task, for the racing flyers round the pylons as sharply as possible.

Maj. Schroeder yesterday recalled the days of the second national air races, held in Chicago in 1911. He was mechanician to Jimmie Ward who flew the Shooting Star, a Curtiss pusher, and to Lincoln Beachey.

Sees Beachey Set Record.

"I was standing by when Beachey told Mr. Curtiss that he was going to try the altitude record. He said, 'I'm going up until my gasoline runs out.' Mr. Curtiss told him if he did it would not be with his consent. Well, he did it. He went up 11,000 feet. It was a sensational feat."

Maj. Schroeder broke all altitude records in 1918, 1919, and in 1920, he was in breaking the record in 1919 with 38,180 feet, that Maj. Schroeder froze his eyeballs and narrowly averted death. At the same time his oxygen tubing froze. After Maj. Schroeder learned that by pushing his eyelids over his eyes he could see for a moment or two, he found he was close to the ground. When he landed at Dayton he fainted, and was desperately ill for three weeks.

GERMAN FLYERS TO START TODAY ON CHICAGO TRI

Plan to Be at Air Race by Noon Tomorrow.

New York, Aug. 28.—[Special.]—[illegible] foiled, motor tuned, and genera[illegible] slicked up in her "company best," [illegible] weather beaten old Dornier-Wa[illegible] eagle has just won a place among [illegible] aircraft immortals by her sensatio[illegible] flight from Germany to New York, [illegible] all set tonight for an early hop [illegible] Chicago via Buffalo tomorrow.

If all goes well, Capt. Wolfgang [illegible] Gronau and the three hardy you[illegible] enthusiasts who braved the north [illegible] Atlantic's dangers with him, plan to [illegible] their trusty machine down in the [illegible] ters of Lake Michigan off the Gr[illegible] Lakes training station by high n[illegible] Saturday. They will spend tomor[illegible] night in Buffalo and will hop f[illegible] there early Saturday morning—p[illegible] ably around 6 o'clock—for Chicago

The flying boat will be accompa[illegible] on its westward flight by a plane p[illegible] ed by Lewis C. Buck, vice presi[illegible] of the Dornier company, builders [illegible] the boat.

Will Appear Over Field.

Capt. Wolfgang estimates that it [illegible] take him about five hours to make [illegible] Chicago flight—for he will attempt [illegible] speed records—and that he will [illegible] able to drag the shadows of his fam[illegible] craft across the field of the Cur[illegible] Reynolds airfield where the nati[illegible] air show is in progress by noon [illegible] little earlier. It is his intention [illegible] make a second appearance over [illegible] field later in the day—at such time [illegible] in such manner as the committee [illegible] decree.

From that time on the flyers [illegible] be in the hands of the committe[illegible] charge of the air show activities [illegible] will be prepared to carry out any [illegible] in the exhibition that may be assig[illegible] to them. There was one reserva[illegible] to this offer, however. Capt. [illegible] Gronau wanted it emphasized tha[illegible] could not be expected to take [illegible] in any competition or to do any a[illegible] flying. His craft was built for [illegible] durance and long distance perf[illegible] ance rather than flashy "stunts" [illegible] was pointed out. He does ex[illegible] however, to make an exhibition f[illegible] over the field each day during his [illegible] there, including Sunday and Mon[illegible]

The machine will be quartered [illegible] the Great Lakes Training station [illegible] probably will be available for in[illegible] tion by the crowds.

Deluged with Invitations.

The flyers—the captain, Edward [illegible] ner, student of the Deutsches Ver[illegible] Flugerschule, co-pilot of the [illegible] "Whale," as the flying boat is c[illegible] Frans Hack, the mechanic, and [illegible] Albrecht, radio operator—were de[illegible] last night and today with invita[illegible] for receptions and entertainments [illegible] ing their stay in Chicago, but c[illegible] to the press of business and ente[illegible] ments here have not as yet acc[illegible] any of them. The party plans to be in C[illegible] until late Monday afternoon, lea[illegible] after a farewell flight over th[illegible] show grounds—for Cleveland t[illegible] ness the start of the James G[illegible] Bennett balloon races. They w[illegible] turn to New York Tuesday or W[illegible] day.

Mayor James J. About 500 of the 638 registered members of the Ton family held their 35th annual reunion yesterday in the forest preserve at Thornton. Mrs. Sarah Eeningenberg of Oak Glen took the prize as the oldest person present and Shirley Boomker, 11115 Parnell avenue, one of Mrs. Eeningenburg's 98 descendants, was awarded the prize for the youngest person present. Mrs. Eeningenburg is 79 years old and her great granddaughter, 5 year old.

FIELD'S OFFICE BOY FIFTY YEARS WITH COMPANY

Burt S. Davis, one-time personal office boy to Marshall Field, celebrated his fiftieth year in the employ of Marshall Field & Co. yesterday. For thirty-six years Mr. Davis has been a traveling representative. He entered the service of Marshall Field & Co. in 1880 when he was 13 years old. The firm at the time was known as Field, Leiter & Co. Mr. Leiter withdrew the following year, and it was also in that second year of Mr. Davis' service that he was chosen as Mr. Field's office boy.

"Mr. Field impressed it on me that all transactions of the firm that I witnessed must be held in strict confidence, and so firmly did he instill that idea into me that I've adhered to it from that day to this," said Mr. Davis. Mr. Davis' first salary was $2 a week.

ALCOCK KEEPS 17 RAID CAPTIVES IN JAIL CELLS

In the arrest of seventeen men yesterday in raids on alleged handbooks Acting Police Commissioner Alcock adhered to his policy of refusing to book immediately prisoners charged with being inmates of gambling houses.

"They will remain in cells until 7 o'clock Friday morning," he said.

Judges of the Municipal and Criminal courts contend the policy is contrary to the statutes, which provide that persons guilty of misdemeanors shall be booked immediately. Judge Daniel P. Trude yesterday invited Alcock to attend the weekly noon day meeting of the judges, when it is hoped a plan can be determined which will avert further controversy.

ONE GIRL KILLED, ANOTHER DYING IN PLANE CRASH

Buffalo Accident Also Injures Pilot.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 28.—(AP)—One girl was killed and another and the pilot were injured, probably fatally, in an airplane crash early this evening in Cheektowago.

The victim of the crash was Rose Zajac, 20 years old, of Buffalo. She died a few minutes after being removed from the wreckage.

Pearl Jabczynska, 18, of Buffalo was injured internally and her leg and skull fractured. Emergency hospital surgeons expected her to live only a short time. The pilot, Arthur J. Devlin of Kenmore, has not regained consciousness.

The two girls were taking their first plane ride.

Six Hurt When Plane Falls.

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Six persons were injured, some of them critically, when two planes of the "Flying Sons-of-guns" trio mixed wings during an exhibition at the Iowa State fair this afternoon. Leo Allen, pilot of one of the planes, was one of the most seriously injured. Physicians said they believed he received a fractured skull.

Others injured were: Harold Waller, 10, of Norwalk, Ia., probable skull fracture; R. Hall, 29, of Des Moines; J. B. Hayes, Mitchellville, Ia.; Mrs. Claude Pope, Des Moines; F. W. Schroder, Galt, Ia., all spectators.

Allen's plane struck the ground about 75 feet from the aircraft tent. It rolled over twice, spectators said, and then crashed through one tent.

The second mishap of the afternoon occurred about 5 p. m. when a Curtiss-Wright "mystery ship" overturned while landing. Leroy McGrady, the pilot, was bruised but not seriously injured. He was a companion of Allen and Younglove in their act at the fair.

Hit by Broken Propeller.

Allegan, Mich., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—As an airplane at the fair grounds was leaving the field this afternoon the propeller broke and a piece hit William Reense, 29, of Hartford, on his right side. Emergency hospital attendants said that although seriously injured he would recover.

1 IN 3 AUTO CRASHES LAID TO VIOLATION OF RIGHT OF WAY RULES

New York, Aug. 28.—[Special.]—If you're going to have an accident with your car, chances are 1 in 3 it will be caused by violation of right of way. However, the most serious type of automobile accident is running off the roadway.

Such are among the leading conclusions of an analysis of the causes of 1000,000 automobile accidents in 1929 made public today by Owen B. Augspurger, president of the New York Automobile club. The following table tells the story:

Cause of accident.—	Odds on accident.	Odds on fatality.
Right of way	1 to 3	1 to 48.
Speeding	1 to 6	1 to 14.5
Wrong side road	1 to 6	1 to 32.
Running off road	1 to 10	1 to 10.
Failing to signal	1 to 10	1 to 68.
Cutting in	1 to 13	1 to 42.
Ignoring stop signals	1 to 33	1 to 48.
Passing at curve, etc.	1 to 90	1 to 15.
Passing wrong side	1 to 90	1 to 34.
Passing stand. street car.	1 to 64	1 to 46.

The study showed that the road hog causes many accidents and the report urged a return to "the good old fashioned road courtesy that existed in the days of the horse and buggy."

TREAT EYES OF TARKINGTON AT JOHNS HOPKINS

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Booth Tarkington, Indiana novelist, is a patient at the Wilmer institute at Johns Hopkins because of his recurrent eye trouble, but hospital officials denied a report that he was in immediate danger of losing his sight.

A report from his summer home at Kennebunkport, Me., was that he was able to distinguish only between light and dark.

Mr. Tarkington had been a sufferer with defective sight for several years. He was a patient at the hospital for several months early in 1929 and in March of that year underwent an operation to save the sight of his right eye which was called by Dr. William H. Wilmer "a remarkable success."

TAMMANY CHIEF INDICTED BY U. S. FOR TAX FRAUD

Mayor Walker Sued for $250,000 Slander.

New York, Aug. 28.—[Special.]—The various investigations into the various municipal scandals today had these developments:

Martin J. Healy, Tammany district leader, was indicted in federal court on charge of failing to report income in 1927, the year Mrs. George F. Ewald transferred $10,000 to him and Ewald was appointed a city magistrate.

Although Healy's salary was only $7,000 a year the grand jury charged that it amounted in fact, the year Ewald was appointed to the bench, to "approximately $35,000 or more."

Mayor James J. Walker was served with summons in $250,000 slander action by Jacob Cash, deposed city marshal, who says he paid $2,000 to Healy after he received reappointment in 1927.

Report Justice Beaten to Death.

Attorney General Hamilton Ward opened his inquiry and delved first into a report that Magistrate Andrew Macrery died after being beaten because he failed to pay a final $5,000 installment on the price of his appointment.

Healy, Tammany boss of the Nineteenth assembly district, who used to be a playmate of Jimmie Walker years ago in Greenwich Village, held the center of the spotlight.

Before a New York county grand jury that investigated the Ewald appointment, both Mrs. Ewald and Healy swore that the $10,000 was nothing more nor less than a loan, but the federal grand jury, by returning its indictment, indicated its belief that the $10,000 was part of the district leader's income.

Two Counts in Indictment.

There are two counts in the indictment, one reciting failure to make a return, the other failure to furnish the government with proper figures on his income, and the maximum penalty is two years in prison and a $20,000 fine.

Shortly after 2 o'clock Healy and his attorney, Albert E. Schwartz, went before Federal Judge Adler and pleaded not guilty to the indictment. Bail was fixed at $2,000 and it was furnished at once. Mr. Schwarz was granted ten days in which to make motions.

United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle said he thought the trial would get under way in the middle of September, after the court has disposed of men now in jail awaiting trial.

Mr. Tuttle also revealed that he isn't yet through with Healy. The investigation will be continued with the view of determining whether he did right by the income tax law in 1928 and 1929.

About That $10,000 Transaction.

The indictment was handed up to Judge Adler after Mr. Tuttle had made one more attempt to force Thomas T. Tommaney, described by Healy as "just a pal of mine," to testify before the grand jury about the part he played in the $10,000 transaction.

The federal attorney had prepared a list of thirty-four questions to ask Tommaney when today's session of the jury opened. Two of the most pertinent of these concerned Tommaney's motivation for seeking a loan from Mrs. Ewald rather than from her husband, and the blunt question: "Is not this claim of a loan a mere pretense?"

Tommaney, acting on advice of Irwin Isaacs, his attorney, refused to answer any of the questions—although he had sworn before the New York county grand jury that the $10,000 deal was an honest loan—and was taken before Judge Adler. Mr. Tuttle asked the judge to order the witness to answer or face punishment for contempt.

Three Innocuous Questions.

The judge, however, upheld Tommaney's contention that he need not incriminate or degrade himself. He required the witness to answer only the first three questions in the catechism, and they were innocuous.

Healy's indictment comes after his resignation from his post as deputy commissioner of plant and structures and on the heels of persistent rumors that he will resign as the Tammany leader of the Nineteenth.

The subpoena in Jacob Cash's $250,000 slander suit against Mayor Walker was served upon him under dramatic circumstances—while the mayor stood on city hall steps in front of 3,000 persons and a microphone, into which he was saying complimentary things about the German aviators who have just flown the Atlantic.

The mayor faltered a bit, recovered himself and forged ahead with his kind words. Then, his speech completed, he looked at the paper in his hand, discerned that he was being sued by Jacob Cash, to whom the mayor administered a tongue lashing, via the newspapers, a couple of days ago.

"He certainly picked a fine place to serve this," the mayor said, angrily.

Discourtesy to Mayor.

"I think," he continued, "that this was an absolute discourtesy to the mayor of New York and to the German flyers. It was discourteous to break in upon the city's reception to the airmen."

The suit against the mayor is based on his statement that Cash, as a city marshal, "preyed upon poor people" and that he was discharged from his job on the basis of 29 charges filed against him. Cash contends he was fired on the strength of one charge, and it is a frameup.

Cash's story that he paid $2,000 to Healy, after being reappointed a city marshal, is part of the evidence in the hands of Attorney General Ward, whose investigation into job buying took a sensational turn today.

Inquire Into Magistrate's Death.

Robert S. Conklin, assistant to Mr. Ward, announced that he is starting an inquiry into the death a year ago of Magistrate Macrery. His purpose is to determine whether there is any truth in reports, current at the time, that the magistrate was beaten up because he failed to pay the final installment of $20,000 allegedly agreed upon as the price of his reappointment to the bench.

Mr. Conklin said he had received several letters urging him to go thoroughly into the circumstances of Macrery's death.

22 YEAR QUEEN LOSES SEA LAURELS; EUROPA PASSES MAURETANIA

New York, Aug. 28.—[Special.]—In the choppy seas off France a former speed queen saw her laurels pass. The North German Lloyd liner Europa arrived with the laurels this morning. Seven hours behind her came the gallant old Cunard liner Mauretania, ruler of the waves for twenty-two years.

Last Saturday marked the first time in her history that the Mauretania had been passed at sea. The Europa and Bremen both have bettered the Cunarder's speed marks, but no ship ever has steamed right past the "Maury."

The Europa turned the trick. Capt. Nicklaus Johnsen brought his ship through the Cherbourg breakwater with the lights of the Mauretania twinkling eight miles ahead. It took Capt. Johnsen six hours to pass the Cunarder's bow at a speed of 26¾ knots. As the Europa began to draw away passengers asked Capt. Johnsen to play his searchlight on the vanquished queen.

"That would not have been the right thing to do," Capt. Johnsen explained. "I always had, and have still, a great respect for the Mauretania."

KIDNAPED GIRL IS FOUND SLAIN; BIG MANHUNT ON corner when the kidnaper's car drove up to the curb and the man beckoned to Marberine. She skipped over to the curb and they heard him say, "Get in and I'll give you some more candy." She climbed in, the car whisked around a corner, and they saw no more of her.

Mrs. Appel, arriving home at 6 o'clock, was not alarmed when she did not find Marberine there. It was a common occurrence for her to visit with other children until dusk. Mrs. Appel walked down to the business section to do some shopping. She returned at 8. She then began making inquiry. As one after another of the neighbors reported they did not know the child's whereabouts, she became frightened.

Finally, after Marberine's playmates had told about the man in the bantam car, a search was organized in which twenty families joined and the police were notified.

Col. McClure Promoted to Wartime Rank of Brigadier

Col. Nathaniel F. McClure, retired army officer of 5242 Hyde Park boulevard, has been promoted to his wartime rank of brigadier general, in accordance with the recent congressional act, he was informed yesterday by the war department. A number of other Chicago military men, including Maj. Robert E. Wood, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., received similar promotions.

THREE PRISON BREAK KILLERS GO REVILING TO ELECTRIC CHAIR

Ossining, N. Y., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Three men were put to death in the electric chair in Sing Sing prison tonight for the killing of a fellow convict in the futile Auburn prison break last December, in which nine prisoners and the principal keeper lost their lives.

The men who went to their death were Claude Udwine, 29 years old, of Detroit; William Force, 30, of Utica, and Jesse Thomas, 20, of Childs, Pa.

The men were guarded with unusual precautions because the prison authorities had learned earlier in the day that one of the trio had unsuccessfully attempted to induce a woman relative to smuggle a gun in to him as she bade him farewell.

All three reviled the spectators and attendants at the execution. Although they were accompanied by the prison chaplains the prisoners ignored their ministrations.

The slayers were all calm to the end. Thomas boasted as he entered that "I can walk through and die like a man."

Force asked the executioner, as he was adjusting the head electrode, "What are you so nervous about?" Udwine remarked that he was "going on an exploring trip."

Seriously Wounded as 7 Battle for Pint of Booze

RECORD HEAT IN BRITAIN KILLS 20; MANY COLLAPSE

Torrid Weather Sizzles Rest of Europe.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 28.—The heat wave in Great Britain approached an all time record of 93.5 degrees Fahrenheit in the shade today as the oven-like temperature claimed 20 lives from sunstroke, caused scores of prostrations, and sent thousands swarming to the beaches and swimming pools in search of relief. The death toll for two days is 27 persons.

The temperature this afternoon was higher than it has been for seven years, with no indication of a letup. For the first time in years the air ministry forecast for tomorrow employs the word "hot," with a promise of thunderstorms at night to temporarily break the grip of the heat. Generally "very warm" is sufficient for British weather reports.

Heat Makes Judge Lenient.

The effects of the heat penetrated the courts, where a magistrate reprimanded an officer for arresting unclad boys who were swimming in the Grand Union canal, where King George III. ordered the arrest of anybody doing "so wicked a thing." The court let the culprits off with a six cent fine.

Public warnings as to proper dress and food and precautions against sunstroke were issued by the health authorities, and dress reformers have taken the fact that the majority of prostrations were among men to urge lighter male attire.

Mercury Hits 98.6.

ROME, Aug. 28.—(AP)—The little town of Portoia, near Florence, took the high record in Italy's belated heat wave yesterday with a temperature of 98.6 Fahrenheit. Rome, where it struck 95 yesterday, had a fairly cool night, but today was as sultry as ever.

France Also Bakes.

PARIS, Aug. 28.—(AP)—No relief from the sweltering atmosphere came to Paris on this, the fourth day of France's heat wave. The temperature was 91. There were reports of heat prostrations throughout the country. One death was reported today at St. Gaudens, near Toulouse.

Storms Ravage Portugal.

LISBON, Portugal, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Severe storms have devastated Tabua, Penafiel, and Fafe, villages in Oporto district, following closely upon a severe heat wave. A 70 mile wind uprooted trees, broke telephone and telegraph poles, and wiped out scores of huts. A century old oak was destroyed. One man was killed at Penafiel and a panic was caused when lightning set several fires.

SEA "HEROES'" STORY FICTION; TO BE DEPORTED

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Three castaways who told a tale of rowing sixteen hours to save their mates on the disabled schooner Francis T. tonight admitted their tale was all wrong, coast guard officials said.

Capt. Christopher Bentham said the men finally admitted the schooner was not in trouble, but they had been sent ashore to get spare parts for the motor. When they were asked to direct the search for the vessel, long suspected of being a rum runner, they refused, Bentham said, and told the truth.

The three sailors were turned over to United States Immigration Inspector John Wagner for deportation to Nova Scotia.

Artist's Wife Sues Actress

BRUCE BAIRNSFATHER AND HIS WIFE.
[Copyright: Paul Thompson Photo.]

WIFE'S SUIT SAYS ACTRESS STOLE LOVE OF ARTIST

Mrs. Bairnsfather Sues Constance Collier.

New York, Aug. 28.—[Special.]—A $100,000 alienation of affections suit against Constance Collier, veteran of the London and Broadway stage, was filed in Supreme court today by Mrs. Cecilia A. Bairnsfather, wife of Bruce Bairnsfather, the English creator of "Old Bill," and "The Better 'Ole."

The suit, according to Mrs. Bairnsfather's attorneys, is a companion action to a suit for divorce which will be filed shortly.

Calls Actress Designing.

The complaint describes Miss Collier as a "designing woman." It accuses her of using the close association coming about through her collaboration with the artist on a play to cause him to become enamored of her, and charges that she "exercised influence and control over the mind of the plaintiff's husband, persuading him to desert and abandon the plaintiff."

Mrs. Bairnsfather charges that the actress and the artist started work on the play in April of this year and from then on associated continuously. She alleges her husband's suggestion that she return to London and wait for him to finish the play was merely a ruse to maintain closer relations with Miss Collier.

Charges Improper Relations.

It is further charged that Bairnsfather and Miss Collier lived together as "Mr. and Mrs. Bruce" at 222 W. 59th street and frequently traveled together as husband and wife while Mrs. Bairnsfather was in London awaiting the return of her husband.

The Bairnsfathers were married in 1921 and have one child, Barbara, 7. Mrs. Bairnsfather's first husband was the son of the Earl of Aldon.

Bairnsfather is 50 and Miss Collier 43, according to the British "Who's Who." The actress began her stage career at the age of 6.

BOOZE RUNNERS SAY THEY BRIBED CHIEF DRY AGENT

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Testifying at the trial of five former federal officers on liquor conspiracy charges, Jack McBride today said he paid $1,724 in protection money to William M. Whitney, at one time assistant prohibition administrator.

Two convicted members of a rum ring, which was headed by Roy Olmstead, now under prison sentence, added more testimony to the government case. Ed Engdahl testified that following a raid on Olmstead's home Whitney came to him with a tentative offer of protection.

DRY CHIEF WON'T ACCEPT PLAN TO CURB EXPENSES

All Right for Others, but Not for Us, He Says.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—The prohibition bureau declines to accept for itself the general program of cutting expenditures inaugurated by President Hoover. Departments and bureaus are falling into line for economy and reduced costs, but Amos W. W. Woodcock, prohibition director, is an exception. He says he must have more rather than less money with which to dry up the nation.

This year's appropriation was $15,000,000, of which the Woodcock bureau got $9,000,000 and Dr. J. M. Doran's alcohol bureau received $6,000,000. This total isn't enough, Woodcock says, while simultaneously tonight, G. A. Youngquist, an assistant attorney general, charged with the supervision of dry enforcement, is talking over a radio chain and telling how prohibition is becoming more effective.

Wants 500 More Men.

Woodcock says again that he wants 500 more dry enforcers during the next fiscal year. They will cost approximately $2,000,000 more than he has had available in the last year.

Attorney Youngquist, in his radio talk, said, "the magnitude of the task of enforcement makes the federal force of 1,750 agents and 91 federal attorneys pitifully inadequate." The eighteenth amendment, he declared, is a coöperative enterprise, as between states and the nation, and "no one ever meant, and no one now expects, that enforcement should devolve on the federal government alone." The states, he urged, should be "good neighbors" and help to enforce it.

At the same time Mr. Youngquist renewed his plea to "good citizens" to help make enforcement effective.

Arrest Sheriff, Ex-Dry Agent.

Muncie, Ind., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Oro Butler, sheriff of Howard county at Kokomo and already under federal sentence for conspiracy to violate prohibition laws, and Herman Finch, also of Kokomo, former federal prohibition agent, were held in city jail here tonight facing charges of intoxication. Finch also may be charged with impersonating a dry agent. Police who arrested them said they were driving an automobile the wrong direction in a one way street here. They were intoxicated, it is alleged, and when their car was searched and was found to possess liquor, Finch, although now removed as dry sleuth, is alleged to have flashed a prohibition agent's badge.

U. S. Nabs Sheriff and Aids.

Wenatchee, Wash., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Sheriff Peter Wheeler, Deputy George Strevel, and a former deputy, M. J. Buckley, were arrested here today by federal officers on federal liquor conspiracy indictments.

6TH VICTIM OF GRADE CROSSING ACCIDENT DIES

Joseph Grozinski, 42 years old, a grocer living at 5346 Shields avenue, died at the St. Francis hospital in Blue Island yesterday, the sixth victim of the grade crossing accident late Wednesday at 111th street and the Baltimore and Ohio-Chicago Terminal railroad tracks, four miles west of Mount Greenwood. Grozinski, with seven other persons, was returning from a picnic in Palos Park when their small sedan was demolished by a freight train.

Five of the occupants were killed outright. Grozinski has been blind for many years. His son Frank, 11 years old, was only slightly hurt. The inquest was continued yesterday pending the outcome of the injuries to Ruth Sawicky, 11 years old, the eighth passenger in the machine.

This death and two others raised Cook county's motor toll for the year to 654. The other victims:

Ranko Maodush, 6 years old, of Thornton. Died at the Ingalls Memorial hospital in Harvey from injuries received Sunday when he was crushed between a motor truck and an iron fence.

Supat Davarion, 45 years old, of Fordson, Mich. Died in the county hospital from injuries received Wednesday night when a machine rounding a corner at Ogden avenue and Madison street skidded and turned over into a group of pedestrians.

JURY ASKS DOWNS BE HELD FOR THE DEATH OF WIFE

A recommendation that Thomas Downs be held on a charge of manslaughter was made yesterday by a coroner's jury which investigated the death of Downs' wife, Mrs. Drusilla Downs, 24 years old, 4826 Sheridan road, who on Aug. 4 was found fatally injured in Wabash avenue near Monroe street.

Testimony at the inquest was that Downs, said to have been drinking, left a restaurant with his wife and was seen to drive north. The two had quarreled, it was said, and it is believed in a scuffle to obtain possession of the car, the car struck an elevated support and hurled Mrs. Downs to the street. She died Aug. 6. Downs has never been found.

Boy "Hunter" Seized by Tiger Dies of Injuries

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Although his mother, Mrs. Lynette Hill, submitted to two blood transfusions in an effort to save his life, Alfred Hill, 12 year old victim of a Luna park zoo tiger, died early today. The lad, with another 12 year old companion, climbed a seven foot stockade into the tiger's wooded runway yesterday and when the great beast leaped at him tried to fight back with a penknife. The tiger ripped his scalp and chewed his left arm before a zoo attendant shot the animal.

U.S. HUNTS CLEWS TO RUM PLOTS IN GANGS' RECORDS

Hope to Get Evidence of Tax Violations.

$55,725 IN REWARDS.

Rewards totaling $55,725 are offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer of Alfred Lingle. Of the $25,000 reward offered by The Tribune, $10,000 will be paid to any person who will give confidential information identifying the slayer of Lingle. All information should be sent to the headquarters established by State's Attorney Swanson in room 503 Temple building, 77 West Washington street. Telephone State 3729.

Federal authorities have followed the investigations of Pat Roche, chief investigator for State's Attorney Swanson associated with Assistant State's Attorneys Charles F. Rathbun and James E. McShane, into the gangland murders of Julius Rosenheim, paid informant of the Chicago Daily News; Alfred Lingle, and Jack Zuta, vice king and gang leader.

It was learned yesterday that copies of all records seized by the investigators in secret safe deposit boxes, warehouses, and private homes have been delivered to A. P. Madden, chief of the special intelligence unit of the department of internal revenue.

May Find Conspiracy Clews.

While thus far the inquiry of the federal authorities has been confined to a search for hidden incomes of the gangsters, which may lead to prosecutions for fraud, it was also reported yesterday that the government may find evidence upon which to base prosecutions for conspiracies against the prohibition law and the Mann act.

Although it was pointed out that the evidence thus far accumulated is outlawed by the statute of limitations from being used in prosecutions, it was believed that the principals involved in the revelations of gangland's activities may become the subject of further investigations by the government in the hope of finding them more recently involved in booze and vice conspiracies.

To Return Seized Property.

Search warrants upon which the evidence in the hands of the state's attorney was seized were formally returned to Judge John H. Lyle yesterday, and the judge ordered the following distribution of the property:

Property found in a warehouse at 3700 Roosevelt road is to be turned over to the public administrator, with the exception of a roulette wheel and a dictaphone; property seized in the Aiello brothers' apartment at 2553 Lunt avenue is to be returned to the owners, with the exception of firearms and ammunition; contents of the safe deposit box number 738 at the Security Trust and Deposit company, under the name of Albert Bratz, is to be returned to its owner; a portion of the property in a safe deposit box at the same vault, under the name of Jack Saleti, is to be returned to the owner.

George A. Paddock, president of the Evanston crime commission, and Thomas F. Airth, president of the Evanston Chamber of Commerce, yesterday received a letter signed by Hoyt King of Wilmette, protesting against the retention of William O. Freeman as chief of police of Evanston. Freeman had been upheld by Mayor Bartlett and the city council after it was discovered he had borrowed $300 from Zuta.

BAKER KILLS SELF.

GRAND JURY ENDS ITS WORK; REPORTS 333 INDICTMENTS

The August grand jury finished its work yesterday and was dismissed from service by Chief Justice D. J. Normoyle of the Criminal court. The September grand jury will be impaneled on Tuesday, when Judge John P. McGoorty will take over the office of chief justice of the court.

The jurors made no comment on the fact that they had secretly called Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Association of Commerce and head of the "secret six" crime fighting committee, as a witness. The jurors did not notify the state's attorney's office of the calling of Col. Randolph, nor did they have a prosecutor present when he was questioned. Col. Randolph told them, it is reported, that he had no crime evidence other than that already in the hands of the proper authorities.

The jury reported that 333 indictments and 65 no bills were voted during the month.

ACCUSED PAIR ARE SILENT AT KILLING INQUEST

Slayers of Union Men 'Unknown,' Verdict.

Neither admissions nor denials of the killing of Charles Mulcahy and Bernard Duberry, plumbers' union officials, were made yesterday by Charles Arthur Stein and Charles Courchene, who have been charged with the murder. As there was no proof offered against them, a coroner's jury returned a verdict that the killing was done by "a person or persons unknown."

The double slaying, which occurred on Aug. 21 on the site of the new Lane Technical High school building, is said to have been the outgrowth of labor trouble. Mulcahy, business agent of the plumbers' union, and Ruberry, his assistant, went to the school to call a strike of plumbers after they had threatened Courchene, who was plumbing superintendent, according to testimony at the inquest.

Testify on Shooting.

It was testified that Mulcahy and Ruberry went to a shanty where Courchene had been seen a few hours previously. Shots were heard and Mulcahy fell dead with a bullet in his heart and Ruberry fell with four bullets in his body. Witnesses said two men left the scene of the shooting immediately in an automobile which bore license numbers issued for a machine owned by Carl John Stein, head of the plumbing contracting concern and father of Charles Arthur Stein, who is secretary of the company.

Those who saw the two men presumed to have done the shooting said they were unable to identify either Stein or Courchene. Melvin Hograve, 23 years old, 4640 Highland avenue, Downers Grove, a passerby who took the license number, pointed to Lieut. Philip Carroll, who was tried and acquitted of the murder of Octavius Grundy, Negro politician, as resembling one of the men who fled in the car. Charles Stein is similar in stature to Lieut. Carroll.

Father Is a Witness.

The elder Stein said his son vanished after the shooting and that he did not see him again until Wednesday when $140,000 bonds were scheduled for Stein and Courchene after they had surrendered.

The father testified that the union officials called at his office the morning of the killing and demanded that he discharge Courchene.

Attorneys Milton D. Smith and W. W. Smith, representing the accused men, advised them not to testify at the inquest. After the jury's verdict was returned, Assistant State's Attorney Harry S. Ditchburne said that unless the police could produce witnesses who saw Stein and Courchene do the shooting, the case against them in the Felony court would have to be dismissed, as they cannot be compelled to testify against themselves.

QUIZ LAWYER ON CAPONE INTEREST IN CARLTON 'PLOT'

He Denies Al Has Tried Miami Rackets.

Jacksonville, Fla., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Preliminary hearing for three men charged with conspiracy to procure the assassination of Gov. Doyle E. Carlton moved through its second day today with state and defense switching the spotlight in many directions.

Cross examining Vincent C. Giblin, Miami attorney for Alphonse Capone, defense attorneys sought to bring out whether Capone had any interest or paid any bribes in the gambling or liquor business in Miami. They even quizzed the attorney as to whether he made any statements about Chicago murders.

Giblin has testified he came into the case as an investigator because he heard that if Carlton had been slain the killing was to be laid to Capone men. He said he proposed a $100,000 plan to get control of Miami gambling as a bait to draw out Frank Ralls, one of the defendants. He denied Capone had any liquor or gambling dealings in Miami.

No Gambling Interests.

In cross examining Giblin, Edgar W. Waybright, counsel for Ralls, asked:

"Did you not say during your conversation with Ralls that you only wanted four or five clubs to run in Miami?"

Giblin replied that he did, but that it was part of his scheme of gangland control to draw out Ralls.

"Did you not say that you did not care if the Embassy club and the Deauville club ran, but thought that Villa Venice and the Floridian club should be allowed to run because Capone was interested in them?"

"No, I did not," said the witness. "Capone has no interest in the club."

Giblin denied that Capone was in the liquor business in Florida and also said that he had not told Ralls the Bugs Moran gang had control of the traffic in Miami liquor. He also said Capone was not interested in Miami dog tracks and he had not told Ralls he was.

"Did you say in conversations that Capone had paid W. J. Evans $10,000 in ten one thousand dollar bills?" asked Waybright.

"I never made any such statement," replied Giblin.

Asked About Zuta and Lingle.

"Did you say in those conversations that Al Capone had given Jimmy Lynch $25,000 that Lynch was close to Mallie Martin and Martin was collector for Gov. Carlton?"

"No, sir," replied Giblin, "this is the first time I have heard of Lynch."

"Didn't you say," continued Waybright, "to Ralls or Eberhardt that Capone spent $40,000 getting Fred Pine elected county solicitor twice?"

"No, sir."

Waybright ranged then to Chicago, asking if Giblin had not said that "Capone bumped off Zuta and Lingle?"

Giblin said he did not say that. He said he had said that in his opinion Zuta was killed by his own men and that the Moran gang got Lingle.

Seeks St. Louis Foothold?

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 28.—(AP)—The St. Louis Post-Dispatch today says Al Capone is attempting to "muscle in" on the St. Louis gang situation by offering to furnish large bail bonds and lawyers for five Sicilian gangsters now in jail in the Scorfina kidnaping case.

The paper says the report is being investigated by State's Attorney Lindauer of Belleville, Ill., where the gangsters are held and where the kidnaping occurred.

$8,000 CORSETS STOLEN.

Detectives of the Des Plaines street station yesterday began an investigation of the theft of $8,000 worth of corsets from a warehouse at 415 South Racine avenue.

COBBLERS TAKE NOTE! BETTER STICK TO LASTS

Encounters Woes in His Happy Romance.

On last Thanksgiving day Leonard Lettstrom, of 1336 Fullerton avenue, was engaged in a physical demonstration of the primitive discovery that hunger is instinctive; in pursuance of which he drew his collar more tightly about his neck as a remonstrance against the nip of roguish November winds, and lifted his nose into the autumn air with the attitude of one who would say:

"Is this cookery I smell?"

And as a radio wave naturally flows in its given channel and slips into the receiving set adjusted to welcome it, so did Leonard Lettstrom, persuaded by his keenly functioning nostrils on this November day of Pilgrim gratulation, swerve from the street and round to the kitchen door of Miss Mary Bucher, who lives at 2843 North Tallman avenue.

Quest Leads to Kitchen.

At least Leonard Lettstrom did turn in and it is fair to credit the savor of Miss Bucher's cuisine with the magnetic effect upon Mr. Lettstrom's sensitive beeze. Then, too, the tang of November lends a piquant emphasis to the brave bird nestling so cozily and browning so merilly in the zestful succes of the Thanksgiving oven.

Leonard Lettstrom tapped timidly, if ruefully, on the door of Miss Bucher's kitchen, and Miss Bucher, rosy of face, as becomes a healthy and happy woman about to baste the turkey with a new sizzle of searing grease, opened this same door.

It is the womanly instinct to detect hunger. Had Miss Bucher possessed the sense of the fourth dimension she might have detected also that Leonard Lettstrom had not a penny in his pockets. Subsequently, but with less scientific methods she did discover this latter fact, but it is of more and present importance that she knew, with that aforementioned prescience of womankind, that a hungry man stood before her.

Our Hero in Happy Mood.

When Mr. Lettstrom departed it was with that glow that glides so smoothly over the person who was but lately gripped in the pangs of hunger but now smugly bids the world be damned on a stomach lined with tart and toothsome victuals.

It is something to have eaten one's fill. And it's something to have seen a hungry, and not bad looking, male pay a lasting compliment to one's cookery by stowing away all that is fetched him.

Mr. Lettstrom came again a-visiting. This time he came to the front door of Miss Bucher's home—and welcome.

Husbands, these days, are said to be insufficiently complimentary of their wives' cooking. But if Leonard Lettstrom had faults they did not include that of vain and mocking, not to say ridiculous and ironic observations concerning the quality of Miss Bucher's victuals.

These facts may have endeared him to Miss Bucher.

And Now Love Enters.

For presently they were of a mind to be married. This was about Christmas time and love spun its web or shot its arrow or whatever it is that love does; did this, we must suppose as long as Leonard Lettstrom clove to his one, masterful, dominating and insistent impulse—which was to masticate slowly and with infinite comfort and divine satisfaction the gusty dishes that were set before him from the kitchen of Miss Bucher.

Leonard Lettstrom, in all probability, should have held fast to this tasty task. Eating was his kingdom.

"But he didn't," said Miss Bucher, to Judge Immenhausen, in the Municipal court, yesterday. "He got to drinking. Eating is one thing. Drinking is another. I tore up the license. He became noisy. I had him arrested."

"Thirty days," said the judge. "Eat, think and be wary."

40 FIRES WHICH DOGGED FAMILY SET BY 3 GIRLS

Pontiac, Mich., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Three girls, Dorothy, 15; Evelyn, 13, and Helen, 11, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Crotser, confessed to State Fire Marshal Charles Lane that with another sister, Frances, 10, they were responsible for more than 40 fires which have followed the Crotser family to four communities and which have puzzled officials of the state fire marshal's office for several weeks. One of the fires destroyed a new home while the others did less damage.

The fires began at Battle Creek while the Crotser family was visiting friends. According to Dorothy's story she set the first fire because she was angry at being refused permission to attend a ball game. Pleased with the excitement the fire caused, she took her three sisters into her confidence and they began a program of incendiarism which was quickly brought to the attention of the state fire marshal.

Finally Fire Marshal Lane ordered subpoenas for the parents and the three oldest girls but before they could be served the family moved to Pontiac where they took up residence with Clarence Crotser, a relative. They were taken into custody Wednesday night and the parents taken to the county jail while the girls went to a detention home. Here they confessed.

The parents were still held today but Marshall Lane indicated they would b. released. What action, if any, the state will take against the girls has not been determined.

COURT DISMISSES CHARGES AGAINST JOHN H. ROEMER

Charges of assault with a deadly weapon against John H. Roemer, 62 years old, prominent Chicago corporation lawyer and former lecturer and regent of the University of Wisconsin, were dismissed yesterday in Town Hall court. Roemer was brandishing a pistol in front of the Beverly hotel, 4308 Sheridan road, the night of July 18, when Policemen Edward Sternberg and Thomas Hoban approached. In the ensuing struggle, Sternberg was shot in the finger and Roemer in the back of the head. Roemer, who recently recovered from the wound, testified that the heat had effected him that night.

Sift Slaying of Los Angeles Co-ed and Fiance in Mexico

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Jack Tillery, San Diego deputy sheriff, accompanied by Mexican officers, arrived here today to continue investigation of the slaying Sunday at Ensenada, Mexico, of Lois Kentle, Los Angeles co-ed, and her fiancé, Francis Conlon, Monrovia, Cal. He denied requesting the arrest of John De Wilde, Vista, Cal., who said he accompanied the couple on an outing to Tijuana, Mexico, Sunday.

PSYCHOLOGY HELD VITAL FACTOR IN CRIME DETECTION

Scientists Tell Fallibility of Eyewitnesses.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

How may psychology be used in the detection of crime?

Conan Doyle created a situation where his master detective set a house on fire in order to observe the first reactions of the occupants, resulting in the discovery of the missing papers in the back of an old chair.

A Chicago detective staged a raid upon an unsuspecting beer flat party in order to observe the actions of a young woman there whom he had followed from the morgue where a murder victim lay. Her actions led to the discovery of weapons and other evidence.

Tells Fallibility of Eye.

Emory Smith, assistant attorney general of Illinois, speaking at the symposium given by the scientific crime detection bureau of Northwestern university yesterday, told of experiments showing the fallibility of eyewitnesses and said that the time is coming when psychological tests will have to be given to witnesses before they take the stand in important cases.

"Only seven years ago in Illinois," he said, "ballistics was called preposterous by the state Supreme court. Today it is recognized as a valid science. Something ought to be done now to introduce psychology into court procedure, so that in proper cases, where life, liberty and property are at stake, memory and suggestibility may be tested and the capacity of the witness to tell the truth determined in advance."

Tells Results of Tests.

Mr. Smith told of a few tests of observation before a group of police lieutenants, a group of sergeants and another group of assistant state's attorneys. He tapped a bell, waited ten seconds and tapped again, then asked the groups to estimate the elapsed time. Result:

Lieutenants . . 11 seconds to 2½ minutes
Sergeants . . . 9 seconds to 5 minutes
Attorneys . . . 8 seconds to 1¼ minutes

When he tapped after a three seconds' wait, the results were:

Lieutenants . . 4 seconds to 1½ minutes
Sergeants . . . 3 seconds to 3 minutes
Attorneys . . . 3 seconds to 1 minute

He put up a blackboard and pasted fifty white marks on it. It was before the groups for seven seconds. During this time Mr. Smith arose from his chair, walked around a desk and sat down again. Estimates as to the number of white marks varied from 20 to 200. When he asked the groups to tell the time that had elapsed while he walked around the chair, the real test intended here, it was shown that many did not even notice this action. These results were:

Lieutenants 35 per cent did not notice it
Sergeants . . 65 per cent did not notice it
Attorneys . . 50 per cent did not notice it

"No two things in the world are exactly alike," he said. "We must recognize that if twelve eyewitnesses are brought into court to tell of the same incident no two stories will be alike. Suggestibility is the explanation of much testimony," he said, "and what is known to science as apperceptive consciousness, which is a new impression linked with an old mind content."

Goddard Explains Ballistics.

Col. Calvin Goddard explained to the visitors the science of ballistics, by which it is possible to determine through the laboratory tests what particular gun a particular bullet was fired from. Not only the makes of guns, the marking on the barrels, but the shape of powder grains must be studied and the investigator must be familiar with 3,200 different types and makes of bullets. The work of the bureau is growing, he said, and is soon to be expanded.

Inspector Ferdinand Watzek gave a demonstration of his moulage methods—the science of reproducing the objects at the scene of a crime.

PLANS TO END TIP EVIL, THORN OF YANKS IN FRANCE

Sees Wages as Cure for Itching Palms.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, Aug. 28.—The glad hand—with the palm up—that greets the American tourist everywhere in France will soon be done away with, according to the plans of Gaston Gerard, French high commissioner of touring.

M. Gerard, who holds a rank equal to that of a minister in Premier Tardieu's cabinet, in showing the importance the French attach to American tourist traffic, has been inspecting various thermal stations and resorts, making his permanent headquarters here. He said today that he plans to do away with the tipping evil which is vexatious to Americans.

"There is a growing demand on the part of the waiters and hotel employés union," said M. Gerard, "that the members be paid an adequate salary and be freed from the menial position of having to accept gratuities.

"There is no reason why waiters, valets, chambermaids, and porters should not be entitled to a fixed wage scale according to the status of the establishment and not be dependent on the generosity of the guests.

"In other countries and in certain places in France the experiment has been tried out of adding 10 per cent to the bill for service but this does not work out satisfactorily. The ultimate solution is the payment of higher wages, the increase in overhead being absorbed by a slight increase in the prices."

If M. Gerard is able to put his idea into practice even the taxi drivers will no longer receive tips. This will be a great boon to tourists as Parisian chauffeurs number some of the most disagreeable tip seekers in the world. Many foreigners have had their tips contemptuously thrown in their faces because they were considered too small.

The same applies to porters, and even waiters in cafés are often insolent to Americans. Many tourists have left France with a bad taste in their mouths owing to rows over tips and the annoyance of constantly seeing outstretched palms. The French are finally beginning to get alarmed, fearing they may be killing the goose that lays the golden eggs, observers say.

M. Gerard is one of the first Frenchmen to realize a peculiarity of American psychology, which combines generosity with the constant suspicion of being "gyped"—a suspicion often well founded.

France Slips Warship Into Sea at Midnight

HAVRE, France, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Launching of the new torpedo boat Vautour, which slipped from its ways Tuesday during the formal ceremony of launching, took place informally at midnight during flood time. It appeared that the boat had suffered no real damage, but it will be placed in dry dock and its plates examined as a precaution.

INDIA STOPS ALL WORK AS BRITISH JAIL 9 LEADERS

Rebels Refuse to Plead, Ignore Court.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BOMBAY, Aug. 28.—Throughout the land today there was a complete hartal—cessation of all business activity—observed as a protest against the arrest and imprisonment of nine members of the all-India congress working committee, the guiding hand of the present revolutionary movement.

The hands of British justice moved swiftly. Those arrested at Delhi yesterday, fifteen minutes after they assembled for a regular meeting, were tried and found guilty, and sentenced to six months each this morning.

Ignore Court Altogether.

They were accused of holding a meeting in defiance of the government. None offered any defense. They sat in the court room throughout the hearing, reading books, their morning mail, or gazing into space, entirely ignoring the learned magistrate or the court proceedings.

"Have you anything to say?" the magistrate asked. There was no answer. The rebels buried their heads all the deeper in their books.

The jailers then led them to the tent jail yard where lunch was served. The magistrate met them there after lunch.

"I am sorry, gentlemen," he said, "to sentence you each to six months of simple imprisonment."

V. J. Patel, former speaker of the legislative assembly, smiled and said, "Thank you," and the group was escorted to jail quarters similar to those holding 30,000 other political prisoners who have been sentenced since Mahatma Gandhi broke the salt laws last spring.

Volunteers Carry On.

Hardly had the leaders been placed behind bars when a fresh batch sprang up to replace them. A new congress committee was named, consisting of six Hindus, six Moslems, mostly prominent lawyers, professors and journalists, under the acting presidency of Khalilul Rehman, an attorney from Lucknow.

None, however, are as nationally known as Mr. Patel, or Pandit Malavyia, who were sentenced today.

Robbing the revolutionary movement of practically its entire leadership cast gloom over a few of the leaders who were not behind bars. One of them, a wealthy Bombay merchant, said to me tonight:

Feel Dearth of Leaders.

"We have no more leaders who can sway the masses, and no more nationally known orators to prod them on. If the British in 1775 had jailed 30,000 of your leaders, including Adams, Jefferson, Washington, and Hancock, you would never have beaten them as easily as you did, if at all. That is why we are in a difficult position today."

The peace talks at Simla ended today with the departure of Sir Tej Sapru and Sapru Jayakar to Allahabad. They will place Viceroy Lord Irwin's reply to Mr. Gandhi's letter before Motilal Nehru and Jawarhabal Nehru, the Nationalist leaders, confined in prison there. Then they will proceed to the prison at Poona to confer with the mahatma over the result of their parleys with the viceroy.

CHICAGOAN SUES FOR $20,000.

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—George D. Wuzener, an electrical engineer of Chicago, filed suit today in the Circuit court to recover $20,000 damages from the Toledo, Peoria and Western railroad for injuries he received March 18, when his automobile was struck by a train.

Self-Rule for India Is Up to People, Briton Declares

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Sir John Simon, chairman of the royal British commission of inquiry into Indian affairs, told the membership of the Federal Bar association tonight that self-government would be achieved gradually by the Indian people and not through any sudden political change. The address of the noted British jurist on the Indian disturbance now attracting international attention, were broadcast nationally.

"It is British rule in the past which has given India security," Sir Simon said, "and it is bound to be a gradual transformation and not a sudden change which can hand over more completely to Indians themselves these grave responsibilities and the complicated machine which discharges them.

Plan Must Be Worked Out.

"Self-government does not really mean that every one governs himself, but each citizen recognizes every one else as a fellow citizen and cheerfully accepts the rule of a majority. India is a land of minorities. The Mohammedan will not be ruled by the Hindu. The Sikh claims separate representation. In some cases even special castes have claimed and secured separate representation.

"Every one who wishes well to the Indian people desires to help them to a greater sense of common citizenship and the whole object of the Indian report is to suggest various changes which will help to this end but the future constitution of India cannot be a mere copy of an English or American pattern. It must be worked out patiently and sympathetically in a shape suited to an oriental continent by the coöperation of British and Indian men of good will."

Points to Difficulties.

"The difficulty with India's constitutional problem," Sir Simon continued, "is that the mass of Indians know nothing of western political conceptions, and yet the educated minority is urging a rapid application of representative institutions based on western models in an eastern continent whose traditions of government are oriental.

"India, therefore, is not some single problem; it is a confused complication of questions which canont be disposed of in a pose of confident omniscience or of vague sympathy. It is a collection of problems which call for hard study and clear thinking for upon their wise and sympathetic treatment now depend issues incomparably great for the whole world.

Ask Sympathy of U. S.

"I say boldly that Britin is entitled to the sympathy and support of the American people in the effort she is making to develop self-governing institutions in that oriental continent.

"British policy toward India is based on the declaration made by Montagu in 1917 that self-governing institutions must be gradually developed with a view to the progressive realization of responsible government and the increasing association of Indians in every branch of administration. All parties in Britain are agreed that this is the goal to be pursued and in spite of the difficulties which some Indians throw in the way by a policy of non-coöperation we have steadily pursued it."

HEARING TODAY ON WIDENING OF N. STATE STREET

Project Part of Plan for Subway.

A public hearing on the widening of North State street between the river and Chicago avenue, an improvement declared by city officials to be important to the proposed construction of the State street subway, will be held in the city hall this morning by the board of local improvements. The hearing will give property owners located on State street outside the loop an opportunity to state their position on the subway.

The present plans contemplate the widening of the 66 foot street to 115 feet by taking ten feet from the east side and 39 feet from the west side. This additional width is necessary, according to members of the subway engineering commission, to permit a four track bore to be dug beneath the street.

Discuss Plan with Fisher.

The improvement was discussed yesterday by Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements, with Walter L. Fisher, special subway attorney; George A. Mason, special assessment lawyer; Hugh E. Young and Eugene Taylor of the Chicago Plan commission, and representatives of the engineering commission, and the improvement board's legal staff.

A report was submitted by Mr. Young setting forth the need for the improvement. He explained that traffic congestion and the growth of the area through which North State street runs makes it necessary to widen the street. He said that State street is the narrowest of any running north from the loop, being only 66 feet wide, while the others are 74 and 80 feet wide. No estimate of the cost of the improvement was available.

Discuss Utility Equipment.

Plans for locating public utility equipment in the subway were discussed yesterday at a meeting of the engineering commission which was attended by H. B. Gear, vice president of the Commonwealth Edison company, and Charles M. Mock, engineer for the Chicago Rapid Transit company. Mr. Gear explained that the most difficult situation in the equipment relocation problem has been found in the block between Adams street and Jackson boulevard where a large number of cables are located.

At the suggestion of George M. Wisner, chairman of the commission, Mr. Gear said he would work on plans for locating some of the cables in Dearborn street in order to save space in the subway for platforms.

ASK RECEIVER IN BANK CRASH AT HAMMOND

Directors of the Northern Trust and Savings bank of Hammond, Ind., and of the affiliated First Polish Building and Loan association filed a petition in Superior court at Hammond yesterday asking appointment of receivers for the institutions.

Boleslaw Salik, secretary and treasurer of both the bank and the association, has confessed the embezzlement of $141,000 from the bank and $85,000 from the loan association.

The Fifth Avenue bank of Gary, which closed its doors on Aug. 18 and has since been under examination of P. S. Good of the state banking department, reopened yesterday for liquidation. Depositors will receive an initial payment of 15 per cent out of the bank's cash resources.

ALCOCK OPENS POLICE RADIO ON FINAL TEST

Squad Cars Make Fast Run to Answer Call.

Station WPDC, the short wave radio broadcasting station of the Chicago police department, completed its period of experimentation yesterday and began officially to function as an aid in the apprehension of criminals. Acting Police Commissioner Alcock formally declared the station opened after an inspection of the equipment and a final test in which six of the radio equipped squad cars participated in a trial run.

After a visit to the Warren avenue police station, where the broadcast station is situated, the six squad cars, carrying newspaper men, were sent out in different directions. Within a few minutes, as the police cars were cruising along the streets, a message was sent out by radio ordering the cars to proceed to Western and Grand avenues.

Squad Cars Get Call.

Sergt. Andrew Carroll and his squad were passing the corner of Oakley boulevard and Walnut street when the call came out of their receiver at 2:30 p. m. The driver, Patrolman D. Brust, slipped into high speed and the car sped north on Oakley to Grand avenue and thence west to Western avenue. The third man in the car, Patrolman John Joyce, noted the time for the police records.

The squad car pulled up at the designated place at 2:32 p. m., making the trip in exactly two minutes. The time of the first squad to receive the message, at Campbell avenue and Van Buren street, was a minute and one-half and the last squad reported at 2:34 p. m. after traveling more than a mile from Kedzie avenue and Madison street. The other three squads pulled in at half minute intervals after the first arrival.

"I am convinced that radio has come to stay in police work," said Commissioner Alcock. "It is an invaluable aid, especially where speed is demanded. In the last week burglars were captured in three different cases by means of the radio. If we can maintain that kind of work it will more than offset the cost of installation and maintenance."

Radio Causes Robber's Capture.

An example of a radio capture yesterday was given by Chief of Detectives Norton who accompanied Alcock on the inspection. In the morning a description of a man who had held up the telegraph office at 166 West Grand avenue and the license number of his car were broadcast five minutes after the robbery. In five minutes more a police squad that had received the message at Clark street and Diversey boulevard saw the license number on a car in Lincoln park and captured the robber.

All crime complaints, Commissioner Alcock explained, are taken over the telephone on Main 1313 at a central switchboard at the police building at 11th and State streets. The important calls are broadcast immediately by a radio operator in the same building.

Seventeen police cars are equipped with the receiving sets and by Oct. 1 Commissioner Alcock expects to have them installed in 80 cars and the 40 police stations. Trial broadcasting was begun at the Warren avenue station on July 25 and another radio station will be completed at the Wabash avenue station by Oct. 1. A third station at Town Hall will be finished by March 31, 1931.

System Started by W-G-N.

The use of the radio by the police in Chicago received its start from W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE broadcasting station, early last year. Five squad cars were equipped with receivers by March 16, 1929, and the rest of the squads later, the work being carried on at THE TRIBUNE'S expense and at no cost to the taxpayers. Crime flashes were sent out over W-G-N and after Capt. William F. Russell, then commissioner of police, became convinced of the value of the radio the city council was asked for an appropriation to build a station for the police. Ten radio experts gave their time to the city in designing the three police stations.

PEORIA FINANCIER DIES.

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Fillmore Millard, 79, well known financial man, died here today after an illness of two weeks.

TRUCK WRECKED, MILK DUMPED; BLAME RACKET

Milk flowing along a ditch near the Northwest highway and the new Evanston road, near Des Plaines, yesterday morning gave notice that racketeers had been at work. Seven cases of milk had been poured in the ditch and the truck that had been hauling the milk was overturned in the milky ditch.

Henry Stade, of the Stade Brothers Dairy company of Arlington Heights, had been driving the truck. He said he was accosted a mile south of the Arlington race track by three men who pushed guns against his chest and told to move over on the seat. They drove his truck to Des Plaines, and after disposing of it and its contents, they drove him in another car to Edison Park where they told him to "duck."

"An organization of dairymen is being formed in Arlington Park and I was asked to join it," Stade explained. "That was two months ago. I said I would join if the others joined. I wasn't asked again, but I guess this incident is another invitation."

ACCUSED OF BURNING OWN HOME.

Ottawa, Ill., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—John J. Edwards of Streator was arrested today on an arson warrant secured by John McMullom, a deputy state fire marshal. Edwards' home was destroyed by fire in July. Edwards is being held under $10,000 bond pending a preliminary hearing.

Golden Sec Pale Dry

Three Famous Clicquot Ginger Ales

Make the flavor test described below

TODAY, in America, there are three distinct types of ginger ale flavor, and Clicquot Club makes all three. There is Golden, widely acclaimed for its energy-building qualities; Pale Dry, known to millions for its fine mellow flavor; and Sec, the dry ginger ale of "vintage" excellence.

Many people have never known more than one ginger ale flavor. Perhaps there is one of these flavors that you have not tried. A flavor that will delight you more than any you have ever known before.

Make the taste test

Because so many people do not know these three distinctive flavors, we have urged them to make the simple taste test described below.

Just go to your dealer and get a bottle of Clicquot Club Pale Dry, a bottle of Clicquot Golden, and a bottle of Sec. Take them home with you and chill them. Pour out a glassful of each and taste them carefully one by one. Let your taste decide which flavor you like best.

One of these ginger ales will surely appeal to you more than the other two. Perhaps it will be one that you have never tried before. But, whatever the result, you will be sure to discover in one of these three a flavor that will completely delight you.

Pour out one glassful each of Clicquot Golden, Clicquot Sec, and Clicquot Pale Dry. Taste them one by one and let your taste decide which of these famous ginger ales suits you best

These three ginger ales are blended to three different formulas, and the secret of these formulas is known only to Clicquot Club. And as an additional aid to finer flavor, all three ginger ales are aged six months in the making. This process, too, is Clicquot's secret.

Purity guaranteed

In making Clicquot Club ginger ales, only the finest ingredients are used. Pure table sugar, fine Jamaica ginger root, syrups of real fruit flavors and water from deep rock springs. Clicquot gives you purity and goodness that are unequalled. And these ginger ales all come to you only in clean new bottles—bottles never used before.

At your dealer's

Clicquot Club Ginger Ales are on sale at your dealer's today. Buy a bottle of all three and make the test we have described. Your taste will tell you that no finer ginger ales were ever made.

The Clicquot Club Eskimos—every Friday at 9 P. M., New York Time, over WEAF and associated stations.

POLICE CAPTAIN SUSPENDED FOR BEATING CAPTIVE

Goldberg and Sergeant Must Face Trial.

Capt. Joseph Goldberg of the Albany Park police station was suspended yesterday by Acting Police Commissioner Alcock on charges of maltreating Richard Jackson, a retired policeman. Jackson, as Goldberg's superior ten years ago, had him transferred. Sergt. John A. Belsky of the same station also was suspended and charges against both will be filed with the police trial board.

The suspension order was issued after Jackson, who is 60 years of age, had appeared at the commissioner's office with a swollen and discolored countenance and a hand swathed in bandages to recite his story. He declared that both his eyes were blackened, his face bruised, and his body covered with lacerations.

Party Is Broken Up.

"Capt. Goldberg and Belsky with a squad of men rushed into a residence at 4430 Irving Park boulevard, where the Forty-First Ward Republican club was holding a party at 4 a. m. last Sunday morning," declared Jackson. "I asked them why they weren't catching thieves instead of breaking up private parties and Goldberg ordered me taken to the station, where my retired policeman's star and gun were taken from me.

"In the squad room Goldberg said to the policemen there 'he is not a policeman, he is a snake,' and then struck me in the eye with his fist. Five other policemen on Goldberg's orders pummeled me and then I was thrown into a cell and held until late in the afternoon. Sergt. Belsky was the only one I recognized."

Given Hearing in Court.

Jackson was arraigned the next day before Municipal Judge Immenhausen, according to his statement. Goldberg testified, the statement shows, that in his sixteen years on the police force he had never before received abuse as he had from Jackson. Judge Immenhausen then fined Jackson $1 "for being out so late." The report on the party submitted to Alcock by Capt. Goldberg states that the men were drinking root beer and playing cards.

SUSPENDED

CAPT. JOSEPH GOLDBERG. SERGT. JOHN A. BELSKY.

INDICTED POLL OFFICIALS' BONDS SET AT $5,000 EACH

CRIMINAL COURT.

Lee Carter, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary; Lee Love, malicious mischief, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in Pontiac reformatory; Willie Brown, assault to rob, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in Pontiac reformatory by Judge D. J. Normoyle.

The 12 election officials in two 42d ward precincts who were named in true bills voted by the grand jury on Wednesday were ordered held in $5,000 bonds each yesterday when the formal indictments were returned before Chief Justice D. J. Normoyle. The indictments charge conspiracy to commit election frauds during the Republican primary fight between the late Senator John T. Joyce and Wallace Kirk for the state senatorial nomination.

The evidence upon which the grand jury based the indictments was gathered by the Citizens' association, it was announced yesterday by Shelby M. Singleton, secretary of that organization. He said he had investigators working for three months.

Those named in the indictments include E. J. Deering and Joseph G. McCauley, election clerks in the 26th precinct, and Sidney Nathanson, G. Stewart Robertson and James Harley, judges in the same precinct; and James De Foranzo, precinct captain. The other defendants, Tony Scardini, Angelo Bongiorno, Benjamin Caparole, Joseph Di Bella, Leonard Franzone, and Frank Caparole, were officials in the 40th precinct.

WOMAN DIES SUDDENLY IN HOME.

Mrs. Albert Spicey, 63 years old, was washing clothes yesterday afternoon in the basement of her home at 7327 Stewart avenue when she was stricken with a heart attack. She fell face down into the tub and drowned.

WHAT THE RAILROADS' CUSTOMERS WANT.

Resolutions in support of THE TRIBUNE'S effort to bring about electrification of the railroads in the suburban zone are reaching this office in a steady stream. THE TRIBUNE has filed a complaint with the Illinois commerce commission, intended to lead to the construction of adequate terminals in Chicago and the ending of the smoke nuisance. The enthusiasm with which this project has been greeted by business men throughout the suburban area is gratifying to us, of course, but we should think that it would also prove of more than casual interest to the railroads concerned.

The votes which have been cast for these resolutions are the votes of the railroads' customers. They are saying, in effect, that they are dissatisfied with the goods which the railroads are selling. No business man, whether he sells pie pans or railroad tickets, can afford to ignore the desires or even the prejudices of his customers. There may have been a time when the customers had to take what was offered, but that time, if it ever existed, is past, and it is not to be doubted that thousands of people have been discouraged from living in the suburbs by the refusal of the railroads to modernize their services. The increase in business enjoyed by the Illinois Central after its electrification had permitted operation on a faster schedule and had spared the customers the necessity of breathing foul air is evidence of what all the suburban roads might expect if they would electrify.

One of the characteristics of modern urban life is its mobility. Families do not hesitate to move to more attractive buildings and neighborhoods when they are made available. The railroads, by persisting in a policy of indifference to the public's desires, are standing in the way of their own prosperity.

COMMUNISM IN CHINA.

The city of Changsa is the capital of the Chinese province of Hunan and is not very far from Hankow, the "Chicago of China," metropolis and business center of central China. Both cities have been taken and retaken during the years of revolution with much loss of life and property. Changsa very recently was captured by forces said to be under the control of the Chinese Communist party, Reds, as the dispatches call them, and though soon expelled, largely because of the appearance of an American gunboat to rescue endangered Americans, they are again within a few miles of the city in threatening numbers. At the same time reports indicate that in many districts in this central region of the great valley or plain of the Yangtze Red marauding bands are at work with pillage and terrorism.

It is said all this activity is more or less coordinated and directed by the Chinese Communist party and is not sporadic banditry. If this be true, the phenomenon is more serious than if it merely presents the endemic disorder resulting from the civil war and the lack of a strong government. Chinese opinion pretty generally holds that communism has no appeal to the Chinese people, who are individualists and believers in the institution of private property. Mere sporadic violence of bandits, though it causes great suffering to individuals and heavy economic losses to China, can and will be put down with the arrival of a strong government, unified and supported by the nation whenever that appears. But the infiltration of a Communist movement, directed by a strong and fanatic leadership possessing the advice and support of the Communist power which rules through a very small minority the 150 millions of the Russian people, is a much more serious matter. One only has to read the history of the bolshevik seizure of power in Russia to realize that the fact that the great majority of the Chinese people and most of its present leaders are opposed to communism does not insure China against communist domination.

At this moment the various factions in China are engaged in an exhausting and seemingly indecisive struggle for power. The Nationalist government forces have recently defeated the troops of the rebellious factions of the north, but have not destroyed them. Meanwhile there has swept over a large region in the Nationalist rear these Communist bands, which, although they have not yet been able to hold any large city, may be growing in strength while the struggle for power in the north goes slowly forward.

We cannot find much reason for optimism in the course of recent events, but think that delicate and dangerous as the attempt would be it may yet be necessary for civilized governments to find some means of supporting the forces of order in China, even though it might involve choice between the factions now contending for power. The Nationalist government at Nanking already has been recognized by the United States and European governments and seems to represent the saner and more constructive leadership, but overt assistance might unite and energize resistance and certainly ought not to be ventured upon unless the need to save China from the maw of Russian bolshevism becomes clear and compelling. The situation is full of dangerous possibilities, but it should be clear at least that this outcome must be regarded as possible if not probable and should be prepared for through definite understanding as to a course of thoroughly efficient action in case intervention is the only alternative to the absorption of China by the bolshevik power.

THE EIGHTEENTH AMENDMENT.

When the prohibition referendum was before the delegates to the American Bar association convention for a decision the question of an alternative to the noble experiment was raised. If the bar association vote should be against prohibition, what did the legal profession intend to offer as a substitute? That is no poser. The answer is state control.

Many expedients are proposed, but they are expedients. Many of them could easily be better than Volsteadism under the eighteenth amendment. The repeal of the Volstead act would be a great step away from the present evils, but the finger points to the eighteenth amendment, a police ordinance in the constitution of the United States inconsistent with its nature.

The alternative to national prohibition is simply no national prohibition. The control of alcoholic beverages was a function of the state, and when the United States has solved its problem it will be again. Then the people of the various states will provide substitutes for the Volstead act according to their will. Anything which modifies but does not extinguish the exercise of federal power in the regulation of the manufacture and use of intoxicants will fail to reach the fundamentals of the great American mistake. They may be desirable modifications and expedients to be approved, but the error is in the eighteenth amendment, all it means and all it permits and commands.

The federal government could not adopt the vendor system of the Canadian provinces without still further stepping out of its character. It is not, in any true conception of its part, a policeman to say what the citizens of a state may drink. It cannot be a vendor of beverages to these citizens.

The Canadian system is an admirable one, but it is a state system. If the eighteenth amendment were repealed and the power of control restored to the states many of them undoubtedly would try the Canadian method of sale by the state. That takes the element of private profit out of the transactions and it permits state government to say when and where intoxicants may be purchased and used. There are many systems of state control of such beverages in operation the world over, and all of them are producing better results for society than American prohibition has or can. The American states, in deciding what system would be best for the people in each state, would have many methods of regulation to study. Some states unquestionably would remain dry. There were prohibition states before federal prohibition and the honest people in them will admit that national prohibition has not made them any drier.

There are more violations in Michigan, a dry state before Volstead, now than there were before Michigan now is a port of entry for neighboring states. Before Volstead it had to take care merely of its own thirsts.

The repeal of national prohibition will permit the people of the United States to handle the question of liquor according to their wishes. They are not in accord on the question, and under the eighteenth amendment they never will be. The amendment shocks the true spirit and purpose of the constitution, and the remedy is its repeal.

OBSOLETE NAVAL YARDS.

If the search for economies in our naval expenditure results in the abolition of all unnecessary naval yards a very substantial relief for the taxpayers and a gain for naval efficiency will be accomplished.

Plans for consolidation and elimination are now reported to be in the making, but if they are to be realized a hard fight will have to be made for them. Before the war the army was scattered among 47 army posts, most of which had been established to meet a condition long departed—namely: the Indian menace. But they were maintained by selfish local pull as pork for congressmen and graft for local interests. It took the great war to bring about their abolition, but even the great war did not dispose of the obsolete navy yards.

Whether the navy can get rid of this waste depends upon the support which public opinion can give the reform. Wire pulling in congress, the trading of votes for special favors, is hard to defeat, and the survival of these yards is warning of the strength of the interests which profit by them at the nation's expense.

If we are to have naval reduction, this is one form which does not weaken our naval power but in fact increases it, by releasing funds wasted to be spent in things needed or kept in the taxpayer's pocket.

SINGING AT THE FAIR.

[Des Moines (Ia.) Register.]

One of the major features of the Sunday program at the Iowa state fair will be the singing by a great choir of 6,000 voices trained in the one room rural schools.

The building up of this mammoth chorus has taken patience and time. Five years ago there was no satisfactory plan for teaching music in the rural schools. The teachers in the 10,000 one room schools scattered throughout Iowa had no special training in singing and there were no supervisors of music in the state department of public instruction.

Iowa has Prof. C. A. Fullerton of the Iowa State Teachers' college to thank for the present plan, which consists of training teachers and pupils by the use of phonograph records. The pupils sing first the easy phrases and then the more difficult ones. They have the proper model in the record sung without flaws by an artist. This has done much to eliminate the harshness often heard in group singing.

County choruses of one hundred to five hundred voices were formed shortly after the Fullerton plan came into its own. These groups have been singing at rural school graduation exercises.

The chorus of 6,000 voices, which is being tried for the first time this year, is an outgrowth of the county chorus and shows what coöperation between county superintendents, teachers, and pupils can accomplish.

USE FOR HOT BATHS.

THE use of hot baths for the cure of certain chronic diseases has been more or less popular since the legendary days of Æsculapius. In spite of disappointments, many have put their trust in them, and, in the face of some adverse reports by physicians and scientists—shall we say other scientists?—hot baths prosper. Not all of them, nor all the time, but the measure of confidence they have always enjoyed is pretty good evidence of virtues of some kind.

For a while all the values were attributed to the minerals in the waters. The next vogue was to ascribe them to radioactivity. Just now the tendency is to place stress on heat. Others attribute the virtues of mineral springs to the diet and hygiene used at the more successful resorts.

Occasionally, effort is made to improvise mineral baths. A method called Transcutan, used in at least one place in Great Britain, is as follows: The brine consists of 34 per cent mineral salts, 17 per cent essential oils, 1 per cent camphor, and 48 per cent water. The mineral salts mixture is chloride of lime, 80.5 parts; magnesium chloride, 6.6 parts; strontium chloride, 2.1 parts; potassium chloride, 2.6 parts; potassium bromide, 2.3 parts; lithium chloride, 1.1 parts. The mixture of essential oils includes oil of turpentine, oil of wintergreen, bornyl acetate.

The bather greases the more delicate parts of the body with vaseline, petrolatum or other grease to prevent these oils from burning. He enters a tub of water that has been heated to 96° Fahrenheit. Within ten minutes enough hot water is added to bring the bath water to a temperature ranging between 102° and 106°. Then the mineral salt, oil, and brine are poured on top of the bath water. The water is not stirred. The bather stays in this hot brine bath ten minutes. He is then wrapped in a large bath towel, without being first dried, and is put to bed to sweat for two hours. During this time cold compresses are kept on his head. At the end of this period he has a thorough rubdown and then goes to bed for six hours. These baths are taken twice a week for about one month.

MAY BE TUBERCULOSIS.

M. L. B. writes:

I have had a temperature for two years, running exactly the same every day: 98 in the morning and 99.4 in the afternoon when inactive, but if I walk around it runs up to 100. I have good appetite, have gained 20 pounds in weight, and have no pronounced symptoms excepting this temperature, and rapid pulse when I walk.

What is likely to cause a condition of this kind?

I had my tonsils removed, but still have very many small, hard glands on my neck. Could these cause temperature?

REPLY.

Mild tuberculosis of the neck glands, is my guess.

A VAIN PURSUIT.

E. W. B. writes: Are there any chemical or mechanical means of inhibiting the secretion of the sweat glands in a particular area, such as the soles of the feet? There are various compounds sold for the purpose, to be sure, but they act merely temporarily in diverting the secretion to other regions. What I am seeking is something that will produce this result permanently.

REPLY.

I don't think you will find what you are looking for.

CURED SORE TONGUE.

A. B. K. writes: I had a sore tongue for two years. It resisted treatment. Finally I went to a doctor who said I had pernicious anemia. He gave me liver extract. My tongue got well, and my anemia symptoms disappeared. Since then, whenever my tongue gets sore, I start taking liver extract.

WATER CUT OFF.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In the city territory surrounding the 3900 block of North Newland avenue the water supply is cut off every night with the exception of Sunday between the hours of 6 p. m. and 10 p. m. If we wish to have water at this time we have to fill tubs and basins during the day. What can be done about this condition? C. A. H.

During hot and dry weather pressures in this territory are very low, especially during evening hours, between 6 p. m. and 10 p. m., when sprinkling is done.

Recommendations were made in the 1930 budget appropriation for the laying of a large feeder main west and southwest of the Mayfair avenue pumping station to connect to the feeder main in Newland avenue at Diversey avenue, and also to increase the pumpage at the pumping station. This appropriation was not granted by the city council which will make it impossible to install these improvements this year. However, these projects will be constructed as soon as funds are made available.

LORAN D. GRAYTON,

REPAIRS SOON.

Chicago, Aug. 7.—[Friend of the People.]—City of Chicago is repairing, patching or resurfacing the streets around us, but nothing is done to improve the worst two blocks of Manistee avenue from 79th street to 81st street. Some of the holes in 80th to 81st block on Manistee avenue are about a foot deep. Could it not be resurfaced or at least patched while such work is being done on the adjoining streets?

W. S. B.

Manistee avenue is on the 7th ward schedule for repair this season and the repairs will be made between 79th and 81st streets within the next two or three weeks.

JOSEPH J. BUTLER,
Superintendent of Streets.

BACK RENT DUE.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have a tenant who owes me two hundred and fifty dollars for the rent of one of my apartments. He and his wife work for the board of education. What steps can I take to collect this money? G. K.

You would not be in a position to reach his wages by garnishment, but his personal property in excess of $400 worth would be subject to execution. We suggest that you place your claim in the hands of a lawyer for collection.

HELP WANTED— APPLY IN WASHINGTON

Roy A. Young has quit the job and the news from Washington is that they're hunting a new head for the federal reserve board. And last week they were hunting a new head for the tariff board. And the week before that they were hunting a new head for the G. O. P. national committee. And every week they're hunting a new head for another commission. And yet there's all this talk about unemployment! What's wrong with those jobs they have to hunt for people to take? They sound like perfectly good jobs to us—live in Washington, get a nice salary and become acquainted with some bird that works in an embassy and drop around and have a highball or a cocktail almost any time at all. Yet they're always hunting a head for this, that or the other thing down there. A lot of good jobs are always open and they have the dickens' own time finding anybody to fill 'em. Well, all we can say is it must be mighty different down in Washington from what it is in other parts of these here now United States.

KEEPER OF THE STARS.

ONE OF THE editorial boys over on the good old Post said yesterday, "One day President Chester Ray Arthur visited Marblehead." President Chester Ray Arthur! What's the use of being President of the United States and having side whiskers if editorial writers long after we're dead muss up your name like that? Tck, tck, tck! We ought to have a tag day to buy history books for editorial writers.

"STOCKS DULL and Irregular."—Yesterday's Market Report. Thank heaven they put it that way! We were getting bored to tears with their always pulling that "profit taking" alibi. And, besides, we can't find out what the darned thing means. Anyhow, we never get a chance to take any of 'em.

HANK MENCKEN was married in a regular church yesterday, with bell and candle, benefit of clergy, and everything. We expect next to hear of Hank standing up at Rotary and singing "Around Her Neck She Wore a Yellow Ribbon." And he'll probably live on Main street and write letters to Vox Pop signed "A One Hundred Per Cent American." Still, as the Salvation Army says, "A man may be down, but he's never out."

BUENOS AIRES, away down on the other side of the equator, already has one subway ten miles long and two more building and has just ordered a fourth. Well, Chicago has got a subway ordered, anyhow, even if it will be only two miles long after it's finished. Which reminds us that the damn thing hasn't even been started yet. Anyhow, us Yanks are lots smarter than those saddle colored birds down in South America. Except about subways.

THE WHOLE TRUTH.

O, well I know when by and by
Within my green-happed bed I lie,
There will come lovers, one or two,
Mildly to keen, as lovers do.

Perhaps they'll say, "It was because She loved me so, alas!" and pause
To place a lily or a rose
Above the spot where I repose.

I'll rest so quietly beneath
My roses and my myrtle wreath
They will not doubt me, nor surmise
That love grew cold, but never wise.

Nor guess I sought the altar of
A foolish little lamp of love
Which I had fed throughout the years
With vain regrets and futile tears.

THE DRY BUREAU at Washington has now announced that the name of the poison in Kansas jake is ortho-tri-cresyl, but that isn't going to help much, because it's too hard to pronounce. It won't be easy for any one to walk up to the bar in a speakeasy and say, "I wish, if you please, a drink of ortho-tri-cresyl." It's lots simpler just to tell the barkeep: "Hey, guy! 16 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 29, 1914.

PARIS.—The German advance on Paris has been checked. Masses of the allies' troops, numbering in the neighborhood of 2,000,000 men, have been hurled at an equal or greater number of the kaiser's soldiers along the French frontier. A terrific battle is reported raging at Arras and a conflict of great magnitude is being staged in the vicinity of Nancy, which the Germans assert they have captured. The French have concentrated the greater part of their force between Sedan and Verdun, with a right flank spread to the south of Nancy.

LONDON.—The British fleet in the North sea, according to an official report, has sunk two German cruisers, two German torpedo boat destroyers set fire to a third cruiser, which it left to sink, and damaged many of the enemy's torpedo boat flotilla during an engagement off Helgoland, near the Danish coast. The British boats were under command of Rear Admiral Sir David Beatty, the youngest fleet officer in the British navy.

LONDON.—"The Russian troops are marching on Koenigsberg and already have repulsed the advance guard of the garrison," says a dispatch from St. Petersburg.

LONDON.—The Morning Post's correspondent at Terneuzen, Holland, tells of the burning of Louvain and charges that many residents of that historic Belgian city were killed by the Germans, who, defeated at Malines the previous day, fell back upon Louvain in some disorder. "Louvain," he says, "was sacked by the Germans on the night of Aug. 26. The greater part of the population was massacred. All the noble public buildings, including the town hall, library and university, were destroyed."

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 29, 1900.

CHICAGO.—For five hours in ranks twelve deep the white haired veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic passed in their last grand parade. Never again can they meet in such numbers. Twenty-three thousand strong, they marched through the downtown streets of Chicago between crowds of people that packed the sidewalks from the curbing to the building walls.

BOSTON, Mass.—There is a new queen of the American navy, the new United States battleship Alabama, which today won the title in one of the most magnificent speed trials held in the history of the navy. Its average speed for four hours' continuous steaming was 17 knots.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—There is no longer any doubt that some of the European powers have determined upon the dismemberment of China and that for some time those nations have been plotting with this end in view.

TIENTSIN.—Officers who have arrived here from Peking report that Gen. Chaffee, commanding the American forces in China, is preparing to maintain 15,000 men through the winter.

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 29, 1865.

WASHINGTON.—Thomas C. Alcock, who was a prisoner at Andersonville, testified before the Wirz military commission of Wirz searching and taking from him $150 in gold and $280 in greenbacks and a breastpin and ring, which were never returned. He saw Wirz kill a weak man by shooting him merely because he asked to take a little fresh air. The witness, for remonstrating against the cruelty, was fastened with a ball and chain. Sergt. Corbett gave his account of Andersonville prison, representing it to be a depository of filth. Men were lying around the swamp there in the most horrible condition and one man died, he believed, from the effects of lice.

FORT LARAMIE. — Advices from Gen. Connor's Powder river expedition are to the 21st. On the 16th a detachment of his Pawnee scouts pursued and killed all of a war party of Cheyennes numbering twenty-five who were returning here from the mail road with scalps and plunder. No loss to our side.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — The 68th regiment, Illinois volunteers, after about ten days' waiting, were paid off and started for home. The 139th is now the only regiment at Camp Butler awaiting their final discharge.

CO-OPERATION FROM RIVERSIDE.

Riverside, Ill., Aug. 18. — Attached hereto find copy of a resolution that was passed and accepted at the last meeting of the Riverside Chamber of Commerce meeting, held Aug. 12, 1930.:

"Whereas, the life and comfort of residents of suburban areas depends a great deal upon the services and success of the transportation systems that serve them, and

"Whereas, it has been long recognized and proven that steam operated railroad service is not as efficient, fast, comfortable and satisfactory as electrically operated service, and

"Whereas, the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad enjoys the privilege of being the principal transportation means for more than 1,000 commuters who live in Riverside and have their places of business or employment in the city of Chicago, and that railroad company continues to operate its trains under steam power, and

"Whereas, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE company has started suit to have the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad and other railroads serving within the Chicago metropolitan area electrified, we, the members of the Riverside Chamber of Commerce,

"Resolve to encourage THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE company in its legal action to secure electrification of railroads and to lend our individual support and the support of the Riverside Chamber of Commerce to this worthy cause."

CHARLES E. WATSON,
Secretary Riverside Chamber of Commerce.

OF MAJOR IMPORTANCE.

Elmhurst, Ill., Aug. 22.—The Elmhurst Chamber of Commerce considers the steps that your newspaper is taking looking towards the electrification of the suburban railroads as a project of major importance. The board of directors has gone on record as indorsing such movement, and has expressed a wish for grade separation in Elmhurst in conjunction with the project as it relates to our community.

J. E. STUBBS,
Secretary Elmhurst Chamber of Commerce.

THE DES PLAINES.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—Read the article in THE TRIBUNE relative to cleaning up the Des Plaines river. I am glad the Bellwood Improvement association submits such a comprehensive plan and one that seems to meet with the approval of all interested in restoring this stream to its original state of cleanliness. I have noted the improvement of late in the clearness of the water which is brought about by diverting a portion of the sewage. It will take a flood, or time, to float away the sludge rising from the shore lines. Why not remove the various articles of tinware, tires, etc., and make a real stream in this respect also?

ROBERT E. WAGNER.

POLITICAL ETHICS.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—You have had much to say in recent months about the officials, especially members of congress, who drink wet and vote dry. Would appreciate an expression from you as to the ethics of running on a dry platform and then flopping to a wet stand—especially when such tactics involve no risk of losing dry votes, owing to the fact that her opponent is also raised a wet.

E. B. HAWKINSON.

REFERENDUM.

Chicago, Aug. 25. — The Hon. Ruth Hanna McCormick tacitly admits that she has no ideas or convictions, but is willing to let the people decide for her.

Did George Washington submit a questionnaire when the British fired on Lexington and Concord? Did Abraham Lincoln ask for a referendum when Fort Sumter was fired on?

GEORGE A. FRANCIS.

FRANKNESS.

Chicago, Aug. 25.—Mr. Lewis insisted that a majority vote for him would be conclusive that the electorate desired a change in the present prohibition laws. Mrs. McCormick made her campaign as a dry. She now declares in a speech at Springfield "she will obey the mandate of the electorate." Is she honest in her convictions or is she passing the buck? I cannot help but appreciate the position of the candidate who has the courage of his convictions.

LIFELONG REPUBLICAN.

BUT WHY TELL EVERYBODY!

VIRGINIA G. O. P. SHIES AT LINEUP WITH CANNONITES

Sees Little Chance to Defeat Glass.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Alliances with the group of Democrats headed by Bishop James Cannon Jr. appear to be in disfavor with Virginia Republicans as they prepare for their state convention at Roanoke on Saturday.

Suggestions that the Republicans nominate an anti-Smith Democrat to oppose Senator Carter Glass, the Democratic nominee for reëlection, are meeting with opposition, although the Republicans have no outstanding candidate of their own. Last year's fiasco that marked the outcome of the coalition gubernatorial candidacy of Dr. William Moseley Brown, a Democrat chosen by Bishop Cannon and indorsed by the Republicans, has made the Republicans reluctant again to link their fortunes with the Cannonites.

May Make No Nomination.

C. Bascom Slemp, Republican national committeeman from Virginia, feels that it may be desirable for the Republicans to make no nomination if they are unable to select a candidate with a chance of defeating Senator Glass. The Republicans as well as the Hoovercrats had visions, after they carried the state for Hoover in 1928, of electing a governor in 1929 and a senator in 1930.

Failure of the coalition to poll anything like the 1928 Hoover vote for Brown last year appears to prove that without the religious and prohibition issues of the presidential election Virginia will remain in the control of the regular Democrats. The reëlection of Senator Glass this year has been regarded as a certainty.

Bishop Cannon is absent in Brazil, and without his leadership his forces seem demoralized. J. Cloyd Byars, a former state senator, who has been identified with the anti-Smith Democrats, has announced his candidacy against Senator Glass as an independent. There have been suggestions that the Republican state convention might indorse him, but this has been definitely frowned upon by Mr. Slemp and other Republican leaders. By making no nomination at all the Republicans would aid Mr. Byars, but they do not regard his chances as sufficiently good to make it worth while to give him a formal indorsement.

Refuse to Oppose Glass.

Mr. Slemp has declined to allow his own name to be considered for the senatorial nomination. Henry W. Anderson, prominent Richmond attorney, and Robert H. Angell, Republican state chairman, likewise have refused to become candidates. J. W. Rivercomb, a Clifton Forge lawyer, would accept the nomination if offered to him.

The Republicans elected three of the ten Virginia representatives in congress two years ago and their principal objective this fall is to reëlect them. They believe prospects are excellent in at least two of the three districts.

The Republican national committee today issued a textbook for the use of campaign speakers this fall. It contains an abstract of the Republican platform pledges and performances. Claims of achievements are presented under such headings as public economy, finance and taxation, the public debt, tax reduction, the tariff, foreign debts, settlement of war claims, foreign policies, civil service, agriculture, mining, highways, labor, railroads, merchant marine, flood control, radio, waterways, veterans, public utilities, conservation, law enforcement, honesty in government, campaign expenditures, reclamation, commercial aviation, immigration, naturalization, national defense, and home rule.

Dry Law Enforcement.

On the subject of law enforcement it is declared that "to bring about better enforcement of the 18th amendment the prohibition bureau has been transferred from the treasury to the justice department; district attorneys' offices have been reorganized, and arrangements have been made with Canada to further tighten up the export of intoxicating liquors to the United States."

EUGENIE BANKHEAD DIVORCED 5TH TIME; SAYS SHE'S THROUGH

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Another marriage annulment today raised Eugenie Bankhead's matrimonial dissolution record to three divorces and two annulments. Superior Judge Morton today annulled her marriage with Howard Lee, aviator and sportsman, on grounds of fraud. Mrs. Lee testified that Lee falsely represented himself to be a wealthy vice president of an air transport company.

The plaintiff is a daughter of Congressman William B. Bankhead of Alabama and sister of Tallulah Bankhead, the actress. She married and divorced Morton Hoyt three times and obtained an annulment of her marriage to Lawson Butt Jr., formerly a Nevada university football player.

On leaving court today she declared she was through with matrimony forever.

ELECTRICAL COST IN CONSTRUCTION TO BE ADVANCED

Pension for Workers Put in Operation.

Beginning Sept. 1 the cost of electrical installation on Chicago construction will be advanced approximately 12 per cent through the inauguration of a pension plan for aged or incapacitated members of local No. 134 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Members of the Illinois Society of Architects have been advised to base all future bids on electrical installation to include the increase in cost occasioned by the insurance assessment. It was said the electricians employed by the Chicago public utility interests are included in the provisions of the enterprise, which is being fostered jointly by local No. 134 and the large Electrical Contractors' association.

Eastern Cities Adopt Plan.

Several eastern cities have adopted the insurance plan and in St. Louis the union leaders state the assessment averages 35 cents per hour extra, while the Chicago levy is said to be approximately 20 cents an hour. The wage rate for Chicago electricians is $1.70 an hour and the builders claim the cost advance will place the rate at $1.90 an hour.

Michael J. Boyle, business agent of local No. 134, championed the insurance plan in Chicago and in a letter to employers said the plan provides $50 a month for total disability and $5,000 life insurance.

Put Cost on Industry.

The cost, he said, is to be borne by the electrical construction and maintenance industry.

Boyle claims the assessment on employers will average 6 per cent, while builders maintain the levy will amount to 20 cents an hour, which will approximate a cost increase of 12 per cent. Architects predict the electricians will be followed in their action by other large building trades and increase building cost beyond the means of small home builders.

IGOE IS BALKED IN FIRST EFFORT AT REMAPPING

Attorney General Refuses to Give Opinion.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Congressman James T. Igoe's first effort toward effecting equality of representation in congress for all Illinoisans, he announced yesterday, has been balked by the refusal of the attorney general's office to give him an opinion he requested.

"But that isn't a setback," he said, "since I believe we can get a resolution through the house for the opinion I asked for and, even without an opinion, a fight on this issue can be made when the reapportionment bill is up next year."

What He Wants Done.

The fight he proposes is to require the Illinois state legislature to redistrict the state congressionally, to create twenty-seven districts as nearly equal as possible to replace the present extremely unbalanced districts and do away with the present election of two federal representatives by the state at large. Success for that program would give Cook county fourteen districts instead of the ten it now has and would equalize representation downstate also.

"I asked Attorney General Mitchell," said Congressman Igoe, "to give me an opinion whether we could not include in the terms of the reapportionment bill based on the new census a mandate that all of the states given their quota of seats in the house of representatives by the bill must accord equality of representation to their people, under penalty of having their representatives barred from the house, if they were chosen in any other way.

"The reply that I received may be a form letter. It was signed by John Lord O'Brian, as acting attorney general, and stated in precise terms that the attorney general's office does not give legal advice except to the President or the head of an executive department.

Congress Should Be Aided.

"It appears to me that if congress is not an exception to that rule, it should be made one. It is unreasonable to say that the department of justice will not aid congress in its labors. Therefore my plan now is to ask congress to adopt a resolution of the sort I have in mind. If it is refused I shall seek authoritative advice elsewhere and shall make a fight to put into the reapportionment bill the provision I have described.

"The present congressional districts of Illinois were created in 1900. They are all out of balance. Justice demands that the lines be redrawn."

Congressman Igoe is a wet leader and he believes that redistricting, in addition to giving Chicago and other growing communities fair representation, would enlarge the wet delegation in the house.

FACES TRIAL FOR MANSLAUGHTER.

Valparaiso, Ind., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Martin Brody was held to Porter Circuit court on a manslaughter charge in the killing of Hans Nielsen, 60 year old farmer, struck by Brody's auto.

REFUSE RAISE IN 43D WARD REALTY VALUES

Assessors Reject Cutmore Plea.

The demands of Harry S. Cutmore, director of appraisals for the board of assessors, for an increase in real estate valuations in the 43d ward were turned down yesterday by the board of assessors. The valuations had been reduced in the 1928 reassessment by the board of review. Edward R. Litsinger, chairman of the board of review, is a resident of the ward.

More than 230 pieces of property, bounded by Lincoln park, Larrabee street, North avenue and Center street, are affected by the board's ruling. The original figures of the assessors in the 1928 reassessment were reduced by the reviewers on recommendation of their land valuation advisors, Perkins B. Bass, Thomas E. Sullivan and John P. Hooker.

Front Foot Value Reduced.

By their recommendation the front foot unit value on Hammond street from Menomonee to Wisconsin streets was reduced from $250 to $175. A similar cut was made on North Park avenue from North avenue to Menomonee street. On other streets the reduction ranged from $100 to $25 a unit value.

Although the board of assessors did not openly protest the changes at the time it sent Cutmore to argue the matter before the reviewers. He declared that real estate in the area was of a deceptive nature and that as a rule the property looks run down and worthless, but that owing to its proximity to the loop it had a good market value. Of 40 separate parcels he produced figures to prove that in every case the assessors' figures were below the sales prices.

The board of review, however, approved the reductions. In the 1929 assessment, Cutmore's staff restored the valuations in this section of the 43d ward to the original 1928 figures. Yesterday he appeared before the assessors to ask that the original figures stand.

Ald. Albert Makes Statement.

Ald. Arthur Albert of the 43d ward appeared before the board to make a statement.

"I am appearing not as a lawyer, but as a public official," he said. "Some time ago, after the reassessment, it was charged in the newspapers that values were cut in this ward because members of the board of review and myself lived in the district. I don't own a piece of property there and I never have owned one."

The assessors decided to let the reduced estimates stand.

MISSING: ONE DIVORCE BILL FILED IN COURT

Officials and Lawyers Search in Vain.

A corps of Superior court officials augmented by attorneys yesterday sought to solve the mysterious disappearance of a divorce bill. Until the document is found the plans of two former University of Wisconsin students to obtain a speedy and secret divorce are being held up. The wife, a member of a wealthy New York family, is reported to be awaiting word before marrying again and sailing on a European honeymoon.

The circumstances were disclosed when a search for the bill was made throughout the county building. The figures in the divorce action are Marshall Goldstein of 5148 Eastview park, and his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Lowenstein Goldstein, whose address is given as 826 Park avenue, New York City.

Were Students of Wisconsin.

They were juniors at the University of Wisconsin when they eloped to Rockford, Ill., on March 27, 1927. Both are 22 years old.

Superior Judge Charles Williams said that Attorney Leo Wormser, representing Mrs. Goldstein, came to him last Tuesday, explained that the couple were anxious to obtain the decree as soon as possible and asked that he hear the case. The judge said that he assumed the bill had been filed for some time and agreed to hear testimony the following afternoon.

The bill had not been filed, however, and was not recorded until Wednesday noon. The action was brought by the husband. An hour later Mrs. Goldstein appeared at the county building to be served. At 2 o'clock the case was heard.

Wife Refuses to Return.

Goldstein appeared with his attorney, Samuel Hoffman, and testified that he and his bride had returned to school immediately after their marriage and have never lived together. Since his graduation in June, 1928, he said, he had seen his wife only once. He said he met her in New York last September, asked her to return and live with him but she refused.

His father, Samuel Goldstein, a furniture dealer, testified he spoke to his daughter-in-law at Madison, Wis., about living with her husband. He said she declared their marriage was "only a lark."

After hearing testimony, Judge Williams indicated he would grant the divorce. When attorneys came to court yesterday to obtain the judge's signature they found the original of the bill had disappeared. An all day search failed to recover it.

COAL • HEAT • COSTS • LESS

He scrapped his noisy, costly burner . . . and will save $744.20 in 5 years with coal heat!

IN only two months, Fred Wurm had enough of the expense and noise of burning a fuel other than coal.

He scrapped the expensive burning equipment he had installed in his new bungalow at 7700 S. Paulina and turned to the evenest, quietest, safest heat money can buy—coal heat!

Ten tons of coal a year at $8 a ton cost him $80. The fuel he was burning was costing him at the rate of $228.84 a year for the same number of heat units, depreciation on equipment, and current and service costs. Had he turned to the third fuel, which is burned in some homes, his expense including burner rental and installation would have mounted to $342.00 a year.

Over five years, coal heat will save him $744.20 over the cost of the fuel he first tried, and $1310.00 over the cost of the third fuel that can be used.

A thermostat will attend your fire . . .

Why try so expensive an experiment, when coal heat can also be automatically controlled? With a simple thermostatic attachment any heating plant will regulate itself.

Go to a member of the Chicago Coal Merchants Association. He will help you get every cent's worth of value out of the coal you buy. He will examine your heating plant, suggest any needed repairs before winter comes, and recommend the grade which will burn most efficiently in it. His pledge to you that every ton you buy will be honestly graded, and will contain a full 2000 pounds, is backed by the Association's guarantee of full weight.

Coal Heat Gives More B.T.U's. per Dollar

In burning one dollar's worth of fuel A (coal) you get 1,740,012 B.T.U's. (heat units)*

In burning one dollar's worth of fuel B you get 773,396 B.T.U's. (heat units)*

In burning one dollar's worth of fuel C you get 463,737 B.T.U's. (heat units)*

*Figures based on average prices and burning efficiencies of fuels, determined by Julian C. Smallwood, Johns Hopkins University, and the United States Government. They include conservative estimates on equipment and operation.

BUSINESS CHIEFS ATTEND FUNERAL OF F. O. WETMORE

Rites Held at Banker's Wheaton Home.

Frank O. Wetmore, late chairman of the First National bank, was buried in Gary cemetery at Wheaton yesterday after services at his suburban home which were attended by leaders in Chicago's financial and business worlds. Mr. Wetmore died suddenly on Tuesday evening of a heart attack. He was 63 years old.

The services at "Seven Gables," the banker's Wheaton home, were held at 11 a. m. and were conducted by Dr. George H. Thomas, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, Chicago, which Mr. Wetmore had attended. The rites at the grave were private.

Old Friends Are Pallbearers.

Six of the close friends Mr. Wetmore had made in his 44 years of Chicago banking were his pallbearers. They were John J. Abbott, Irving Allen, Leonard A. Busby, Edward N. Hurley, C. K. Knickerbocker, and John P. Oleson. These men had been his neighbors and companions on the links of the Chicago Golf club, where Mr. Wetmore often played.

Among the prominent men who had been the banker's intimate associates in life and who attended his funeral were the following trustees of the Museum of Science and Industry: W. R. Abbott, Charles Piez, Julius Rosenwald, Albert A. Sprague, and Harold Swift.

A delegation named by the Chicago Association of Commerce included a list of the city's leading bankers, merchants, and philanthropists.

Recalls Early Days.

An act which friends of Mr. Wetmore say was typical of his banking career is related in the current issue of a magazine which tells the life story of Harvey S. Firestone, the rubber magnate. In the late nineties and with $1,000 in savings, Mr. Firestone bought a small factory building at Wabash avenue and Harrison street and set about the business of making buggy tires.

The business grew, Mr. Firestone tells, and the only hitch concerned finances. He knew nothing about borrowing money from a bank and when he tried, one bank rejected his plea. "But at another bank," the article relates, "there was a patient, sympathizing young man. It happened to be Frank O. Wetmore, now well known chairman of one of Chicago's great financial institutions, the First National bank."

TOM KILLIAN, NEWS WRITER, IS DEAD AT 38

Tom Killian, newspaper man, died last night at the Keystone hospital of throat trouble after an illness of three months. He was 38 years old.

Born in Westbrook, Me., he worked as a boy for the father of the radio singer, Rudy Vallee, who was the village druggist. At the age of 19, Killian began as cub reporter in Portland, Me., and moved thence to Boston and Philadelphia papers.

At the age of 25 he was city editor of the Oklahoman, Oklahoma City. In Chicago he was for several years on the rewrite desk of THE TRIBUNE and, under the nom de plume of Gypsy Kay, contributed lyric verses to the Line o' Type column. He had also worked on other Chicago newspapers.

During the war he served as sergeant major at Camp Jackson, La., and edited the camp newspaper. His widow, Edna, survives.

DEBATE HOW TO ADVANCE NEGRO IN MATHEMATICS

Colored Engineers at Dayton for Session.

Dayton, O., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—How to advance the education of Negro youth in higher mathematics, so that they can meet such tests as the West Point and Annapolis examinations, and later deal successfully with architectural and engineering problems, will be one of the important questions before the National association of Colored Engineers and Architects, which begins a three days convention in Dayton tomorrow.

President Hoover has sent the convention a letter of greeting and good wishes and congratulates the delegates on their plans to enlarge the field of constructive work for the oncoming generation of Negroes.

Among the leading delegates from Chicago are Charles S. Duke, president of the association, and designer of the substructures of the Michigan avenue, Franklin-Orleans streets, Wells street, and Madison street bridges in Chicago; Thomas B. Mayo, president of the Chicago branch of the National association and a member of the staff of Heller & Co., chemists, and J. L. Morgan, of the same company; F. C. Downs, instructor in manual training in the Chicago public schools, S. R. Cheevers, engineer in state roads construction, and H. R. Lewis, engineer.

Delegates are also arriving from Michigan, Minnesota, Pennsylvania, New York, West Virginia, and the District of Columbia. Some of the sessions will be held at Wilburforce university near Dayton.

SUSPEND FINE OF PLAGIARIST WHO TRICKED EDITOR

Columbus, O., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Parker Bloser, 26, Ohio State university student, charged with obtaining money from Liberty Magazine under false pretenses, entered a plea of guilty today at the preliminary hearing. He was given a suspended fine of $100 and costs by Judge Fred J. Miller.

Restitution of the $200 obtained by Bloser from Liberty for his article, "The Biography of Loar," which appeared in the Aug. 16 issue of the magazine, was made.

Liberty officials charged the story was a steal of Zona Gale's 1924 prize story, "The Biography of Blade."

LON CHANEY IS BURIED AS ORGAN PEALS OUT 'LAUGH, CLOWN, LAUGH'

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Borne to his last resting place by six old time friends, one of them a San Francisco millionaire, one of them his chauffeur, one his business manager, one his income tax computer, one a fellow trouper of his roving one night stand days, and another, a local business man, Lon Chaney was buried this afternoon.

Chaplain H. F. Dyer of the United States marine base at San Diego read the ritual for the dead. A marine bugler blew taps as the coffin slid into the grave in Forest Lawn.

Highest and lowest in the film industry attended earlier funeral services in a local undertaker's chapel.

A hidden organist pealed the strains of "Laugh, Clown, Laugh," a song which featured one of Chaney's most popular motion picture hits, as the actor had requested before he died. As the music began Mrs. Hazel Hastings Chaney, the widow, momentarily collapsed.

Los Angeles police paraded before the casket to the cemetery. All Hollywood studios were closed during the time of burial.

Chaney died here last Tuesday as the result of a bronchial infection. He was 47 years of age. He left a personal fortune estimated at $1,000,000 or more.

ROME, Aug. 28.—Eight thousand avanguardisti—Fascist youths from 14 to 18 years of age—are gathered here in Camp Mussolini from all over Europe, Africa, and Asia for a period of Fascist training. Although American Italians are not participating this year the number of boys is large, enough to populate the small city of tents, which has sprung up on Pariolo field on the outskirts of Rome.

The youths are divided into four legions, called Dux, or leaders; Roma, Rex, or king, and Cæsar. Each legion is officered by the boys themselves with Fascist officials supervising.

This is one of the many efforts Italy, under Premier Mussolini, has been making to bring back the children of emigrant Italians to the Italian fold. Signs throughout Camp Mussolini tell the boys of the greatness of Fascist Italy and the regard the king and Il Duce have for them.

One sign reads: "Millions of Italians scattered throughout the world are called immigrants. Fascism at Rome calls them citizens and brothers," and another says, "Mussolini has designed a new Italian. Be proud to correspond to that design."

A special effort was made to get a large contingent from France and Jugo-Slavia. The former sent 500 and the latter 117. Paris sent 251, and Tunis, which is a French colony, sent 617. The boys are given stiff military training and drilled in physical exercises which is expected to make them future efficient blackshirts.

CENTRAL STATES FAIR AT AURORA TO OPEN TODAY

The ninth annual Central States fair will open today at Exposition park, north of Aurora. Admission is free the first day. Showings from the farm, industry, the home, and the school run high into the thousands.

At least 20,000 persons are expected to take to the air during the exposition, as forty planes have been engaged for the flights and fares will approximate those of taxicabs. Last year, with rides costing several times as much and only five planes assigned to such flying, 4,100 persons went up. Supervision of the flights will be in the hands of John Livingston, winner of last year's Ford reliability tour and of this year's Brownsville-Chicago Derby.

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick will be guest of the fair tomorrow and will hold a reception on the grounds. Her Democratic opponent, James Hamilton Lewis, will appear Sept. 4.

Mrs. Gladys H. Bevans Tells Daily How to Guide Children

The MURDER at the VICARAGE

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

SYNOPSIS.

Dr. Clement, vicar of a country village in England, at luncheon tells his wife, guests, and young nephew, Dennis, who lives with them, that any one who murdered Protheroe would be doing the world at large a service. The colonel enjoys making assemble for his daughter Letitice, and his second wife, and fusses about the running the parish. He suspects that there are defalcations in the church accounts and is going over the next evening to go over them with the vicar. Griselda, nearly twenty years younger than her husband, refuses to take anything, including the parish, seriously. The vicar, returning from parish visits, stops in at the studio on the vicarage grounds, painted by Lawrence Redding, an artist, for whom Griselda is sitting, and is shocked to discover the artist and Mrs. Protheroe in a passionate embrace. He retreats to his study, followed by Mrs. Protheroe, who tells him of her desperate love for the artist. She begs Lawrence to leave the village.

The next day started out badly for the vicar. At 5:30 he is called to visit a dying parishioner and leaves word for Col. Protheroe, who is expected at 6:15, that he will be back returning at 7 the vicar meets Lawrence Redding coming out of the house in an excited state and in his study he finds the colonel sprawled across the desk, shot through the head, murdered apparently. Dr. Haydock is sent for and he says Protheroe has been dead half an hour and calls the police. A note which the colonel started to write to the vicar is headed 6:30. A clock overturned when the colonel fell forward, stopped at 6:22. The vicar always kept a quarter of an hour fast.

Lawrence Redding confesses the next morning to the murder of Col. Protheroe. Miss Marple, whose house adjoins the vicarage, calls to discuss the murder.

INSTALLMENT XI.

DISCREPANCY IN TIME.

Mary gave a loud knock on the dining room door and entered.

"What is it?" said Griselda. "And Mary, you must remember not to knock on doors. I've told you about it before."

"Thought you might be busy," said Mary. "Col. Melchett's here. Wants to see the master."

Col. Melchett is chief constable of the county. I rose at once.

"I thought you wouldn't like my leaving him in the hall, so I put him in the drawing room," went on Mary. "Shall I clear?"

"Not yet," said Griselda. "I'll ring."

She turned to Miss Marple and I left the room.

Col. Melchett is a dapper little man with a habit of snorting suddenly and unexpectedly. He has red hair and rather keen bright blue eyes.

"Good morning, Vicar," he said. "Nasty business, eh? Poor old Protheroe. Not that I liked him. I didn't. Nobody did for that matter. Big bit of work for you, too. Hope it hasn't upset your missus?"

I said Griselda had taken it very well.

"That's lucky. Rotten thing to happen in one's house. I must say I'm worried at young Redding—doing it the way he did. No sort of consideration for any one's feelings."

A wild desire to laugh came over me, but Col. Melchett evidently saw nothing odd in the idea of a murderer being considerate, so I held my peace.

"I must say I was rather taken aback when I heard the fellow had Impossible. Plum impossible. He'd been dead much longer than that."

locked in and given himself up," continued Col. Melchett dropping on to a chair.

"How did it happen exactly?"

"Last night. About 10 o'clock. Fellow rolls in, throws down a pistol and says 'Here I am. I did it.' Just like that."

"What account does he give of the business?"

"Precious little. He was warned, of course, about making a statement. He merely laughed. Said he came here to see you—found Protheroe here. Had words and he shot him. Won't say what the quarrel was about. Not here, Clement—just between you and me, do you know anything about it? I've heard rumors—about his being forbidden the house and all that. Did he—did he seduce the daughter, or what? We don't want to bring that into it more than we can help for everybody's sake. Was that the case?"

"No," I said. "You can take it from me that it was something quite different, but I can't say more at the present."

He nodded and rose.

"I'm glad to know. There's a lot of talk. Too many women in this part of the world. Well, I must get along. I've got to see Haydock. He called out to some case or other but he ought to be back by now. I don't mind telling you I'm sorry about Redding. He always struck me as a decent young chap. Perhaps they'll think out some kind of defense for him. After effects of war, shell shock, or something. Especially if no very definite motive turns up. I must be off. Like to come along?"

I said I would like to very much and we went out together.

Haydock's house is next door to mine. His servant said the doctor had just come in and showed us into the dining room, where Haydock was sitting down to a steaming plate of eggs and bacon.

He greeted us with an amiable nod.

"Sorry I had to go out. Confinement case. I've been up most of the night over your business. I've got the bullet for you."

He shoved a little box along the table. Melchett examined it.

"32!"

Haydock nodded.

"I'll keep the technical details for the inquest," he said. "All you want now is that death was practically instantaneous. Silly young fool, what did he want to do it for? Amazing, by the way, that nobody heard the shot."

"Tea," said Melchett, "that surprises me."

"The kitchen window gives on the other side of the house," I said. "With the study door, the pantry door and the kitchen door all shut, I doubt if you would hear anything, and there was no one but the maid in the house."

"Hm," said Melchett. "It's odd, all the same. I wonder the old lady—what's her name—Marple didn't hear it. The study window was open."

"Perhaps she did," said Haydock.

"I don't think she did," said I. "She was over at the vicarage just now and she didn't mention anything of the kind, which I'm certain she would have done if there had been anything to tell."

"May have heard it and paid no attention to it—thought it was a car backfiring."

It struck me that Haydock was looking much more jovial and good humored this morning. He seemed like a man who was decorously trying to hide unusually good spirits.

"Or what about a silencer?" he added. "That's quite likely. Nobody would hear anything then."

Melchett shook his head.

"Black didn't find anything of the kind, and he asked Redding and Redding didn't seem to know what he was talking about at first and then fired point blank using anything of the kind. And I suppose one can take his word for it."

"Tea, indeed, poor devil."

"Damned young fool," said Col. Melchett. "Sorry, Clement. But he was a fool. Somehow one can't get used to thinking of him as a murderer."

"Any motive?" asked Haydock, taking a final draught of coffee and pushing back his chair.

"He says they quarreled and he lost his temper and shot him."

"Hoping for manslaughter, eh?" The doctor shook his head. "That won't doesn't hold water. He stole up behind him as he was writing and shot him through the head. Precious little 'quarrel' about that."

"Anyway, there wouldn't have been time for a quarrel," I said remembering Miss Marple's words. "To creep up, shoot him, alter the clock hands from 6:30 to 6:20 and leave again would have taken him all his time. I shall never forget his face when I met him outside the gate, or the way he said, 'You want to see Protheroe—O! you'll see him all right!' That in itself ought to have made me suspicious of what had just taken place a few minutes before."

Haydock stared at me.

"What do you mean—what had just taken place? When do you think he was shot him?"

"A few minutes before I got to the house."

The doctor shook his head.

"Impossible. Plumb impossible. He'd been dead much longer than that."

"But, my dear man," cried Col. Melchett. "You said yourself that half an hour was only an approximate estimate."

"Half an hour, thirty-five minutes, twenty-five minutes, twenty minutes roughly, but less, no. Why, the body would have been warm when I got it."

We stared at each other. Haydock's face had changed. It had gone curiously grey and old. I wondered at the change in him.

"But look here, Haydock," the colonel found his voice. "If Redding was shooting him at a quarter to seven——"

Haydock sprang to his feet.

"I tell you it's impossible," he roared. "If Redding says he killed Protheroe at a quarter to seven, then Redding lies. Hang it all, I tell you I'm a doctor and I know. The blood had begun to congeal."

"If Redding is lying——" began Melchett. He stopped, shook his head. "We'd better go down to the police station and see him," he said.

We were rather silent on our way down to the police station. Haydock walked behind a little and murmured to me—

"You know I don't like the look of this. I don't like it."

Dawes Leaves Painted Caves, Views Madrid

Sees Noted Collection of Velasquez Pictures.

MADRID, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dawes, American ambassador to Great Britain and amateur archaeologist extraordinary to Spain, left with his party tonight for the southwest, last stage of his visit to Spanish centers of prehistoric man's life.

The ambassador, who on his 65th birthday yesterday inspected the famous prehistoric caves near Santander, was undaunted today by a heat wave in his zeal for study of ancient man. Seville, his immediate destination, is in the hottest part of the peninsula, and the present is the hottest season of the year. Gen. Dawes spent most of the day before leaving in visiting Madrid's collection of prehistoric and classical art and her museums of natural history.

As he has done elsewhere during this trip, he insisted on the avoidance of official formality in the Spanish capital. His visit being entirely personal, his formal reception by King Alfonso was omitted.

Brig. Gen. Dawes went to the Prado galleries and saw a world famous collection of Velasquez paintings, some by Goya, Murillo and other old masters.

Today messages were received from Bilbao announcing that local archaeologists have just discovered in that region another cave, about the fiftieth, containing carved bones and horn of the stone age. They are similar to those the American diplomat saw yesterday near Santander.

The ambassador is scheduled to reach Seville tomorrow morning. He will then go to Huelva, Niebla, and the Rio Tinto mines, among the world's oldest mines, at present being operated by British copper interest.

Prehistoric man worked there. Since the days of the Phoenicians, and later of the Carthagenians, and the Romans, through the Morrish era until today these mines have been in a continuous state of production.

Remains of all ages have been found in that locality, and also throughout most of the southwestern region.

After a few days inspection the general plans to return to London, via Paris. The party of American archaeologists who are accompanying him in this tour of scenes of the stone age, will sail for the United States from Gibraltar on Sept. 2.

His party includes Dr. George Grant MacCurdy of Yale university, director of the American School of Prehistoric Research, and his wife, herself a noted archaeologist, and Addison Loomis Green, Holyoke, Mass., chairman of the board of trustees of that school.

Ambassador Dawes' interest in archaeology dates back to his boyhood when he became interested in the Indian mounds of the middle west.

Throughout this trip he insists on deferring to the opinions of the scientists, saying he is not an archaeologist, but only an amateur engrossed in the subject.

His companions, Dr. MacCurdy and Mr. Green, previously had visited Spain a number of times on expeditions. Their excavations for the American School of Prehistoric Research have produced some relics which the general will examine at the end of the trip.

This afternoon Ambassador Dawes had tea with the Infante Don Alfonso of Orleans, who was a passenger aboard the Graf Zeppelin on her last flight to America.

They had met in the United States, and they chatted informally today about aviation and archaeology.

Mr. Dawes is visiting the Rio Tinto mines at the invitation of Sir Auckland Geddes, former British ambassador to the United States, now head of the mines.

BEG YOUR PARDON

On June 23 and Aug. 22 THE TRIBUNE published a report concerning a supposed $80,000 in bonds which was alleged to have disappeared from the assets of Mark Reisapfel, Chicago furrier, at about the time of the disappearance of Mr. Reisapfel last June. Louise Goodman, counsel for the Reisapfel family, states that no such bonds ever formed a part of the Reisapfel assets. The body of a man taken from the lake a week ago was identified by the wife of the missing furrier as being that of her husband.

Both Young Hoovers Enjoy Flying, Use Planes for Travel

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Sons of the White House in their trips from coast to coast are causing changes in the usual ordered routine of the executive mansion from time to time.

Herbert Hoover Jr. uses a plane for most of his journeys between California and Washington.

Now Allan, too, has taken up flight. He recently went to California by plane, Mrs. Hoover arose before daybreak and accompanied him to the field. Only a few milk wagons were astir as the shining White House car glided down the cement drive.

The younger son of the President had two causes for elation. It was his first long journey by air and it marked his release from the factory grind in New Jersey, where he had been working as part of his training in the Harvard School of Business Administration.

Prior to the trip Allan enjoyed a few days with his parents at the President's camp on the Rapidan. There he hiked, rode horseback or pitched horse shoes. Now he is rounding out the summer with a vacation among old Stanford friends.

Business brings Herbert Hoover Jr. to Washington more frequently than ever since he became president of the Aeronautical Radio company. Washington society sees little of him, however. He is too busy holding conferences with aviation and radio officials.

A lover of the outdoors herself, Mrs. Hoover apparently takes kindly to the air mindedness of her two sons. Her visits with them to the flying fields are interspersed with trips to Girl Scout camps. Sometimes she stays over night and sleeps in a tent. These activities together with much time spent at the President's mountain camp have kept her physically fit through a hot summer when other women have sought cooler climate.

Fete on Lagoon in Jackson Park Is Set for Tonight

Each of the eighteen parks of the south park system will be represented this evening in an exhibition of Mardi Gras floats to be held in the Jackson park lagoon just south of the 1893 World's Fair Fine Arts building. All during the last month residents of the communities adjacent to the parks have been busily preparing the floats, the children taking particular interest in the display.

Specially designed transparencies on each boat will be illuminated. In previous years a lantern parade was held. Life guards from the pools and beaches of the south parks will man the boats, which will carry no passengers except musicians.

Chevalier, in Paris Again, Uses U. S. Slang

Shies at Politics, Tells of America.

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Aug. 28.—Maurice Chevalier returned to a weekly luncheon at the board of the American club in Paris today, and said "Thank you," first with current American slang expressions he has picked up during the last two years in Hollywood and then with old and new songs which were familiar to and boisterously appreciated by his audience.

Recalling the sendoff party the American club gave Chevalier on the eve of his departure for the United States two years ago, Theodore Rousseau, that association's president, today welcomed him back as a protégé "whose success in our country we will continue to watch with affection.

"I like to regard him as a kind of unofficial ambassador, whose contribution to a friendly understanding between our country and France is of tremendous importance."

"I am too highly flattered when your president calls me an unofficial ambassador," the French comedian declared, "and I can't think of myself as any kind of ambassador, because an ambassador generally has something to do with politics. Politics are over my head. I don't understand politics and I never want to. I would be happiest just to be known as America's biggest French pal.

"To me the most wonderful thing about America is the generous and tolerant reception every foreigner gets. If he's got the stuff, he is welcomed with open arms, although before I sang my first song to them I was terribly afraid they might ask, after hearing me, why that French guy was brought all the way across the Atlantic. I was worried about my accent, also, but after I heard my countryman, Mongendre, getting away with his terrible accent in New York, all my confidence came back and everything was okay."

Riff Chieftain Reaches Chicago; His 5 Wives Won't See Hollywood

Dull care apparently does not rest heavily on the shoulders of Abdeslam Ben Mohammed Koubarik, in spite of his five wives. The Riff chieftain, with Hollywood as his destination, passed through Chicago yesterday. He left his wives, he said, back in Morocco, in charge of "the oldest wife who handles them all."

Abdeslam used to be a desert fighter, participating in the rebellion of Abd-el-Krim against the French in 1926. Now he is going into the movies in "Beau Ideal," sequel to "Beau Geste." Herbert Brenon, a director, the story goes, stopped off in Morocco during a recent visit to the east, in search of authentic impressions for the new picture and discovered the Moroccan chief.

Abdeslam was garbed in the American style yesterday except for a bright red and yellow turban. Although much married, he fails to be bothered by the divorce problem that effects the rest of the world. With the "head wife" to keep things in hand his domestic troubles he intimated are few.

Colored Musicians End Their Sessions at Evening Concert

BY EDWARD MOORE.

The twelfth annual convention of the National Association of Negro Musicians came to an end last night with a concert at the Eighth Street theater. It was national artists' night, presenting some of the more notable interpretative musicians of the race.

Some uncommonly distinctive talent appeared on the stage. Mabel Roberts Walker displayed a contralto voice which in quality and range was of operatic caliber and was equally easy in three languages. "O mio Fernando," from Donizetti's "La Favorita," was one of her numbers, also the unannounced "Muttering Thunder," arranged by Maj. N. Clark Smith from a primitive melody. Abbie Mitchell, soprano, is likewise favorably known for her vocal accomplishments, Louis Vaughn Jones played a violin group with an exquisite tone and imaginative taste; Roy W. Tibbs, with William D. Allen at the second piano, played Listz's E flat piano concerto.

Freud Is Honored on 181st Anniversary of Goethe

FRANKFORT-ON-MAIN, Germany, Aug. 28.—(AP)—This city today observed the 181st anniversary of the birth of Johann Wolfgang von Goethe, greatest German poet. The corporation awarded this year's prize to Sigmund Freud for his research in psychoanalysis. In Dr. Freud's absence, because of illness, his daughter, Anna, read her father's address, in which was expounded his theory of how psychoanalysis aids in understanding Goethe's works.

THE STAGE

THE famous "Irish Players," in their modern form, will come to this country next season for a tour if Dr. William Starkie has anything to say about it—and he has. He is a director of the Abbey theater of Dublin, where the only genuine "Irish Players" are trained. He will leave Chicago today for a trip to the Pacific coast, after spending the summer as a visiting professor at the University of Chicago; and his farewell messages deal with his hopes of persuading the Abbey company to pack up its old kit bags and come over here again. He says that a certain well known patron of the theater [in the United States [can this be Otto Kahn?] is in the mood to pledge a guarantee fund for another American tour of the Abbey specialists in brogue.

Dr. Starkie's lectures at the university on Irish drama and music this summer were endowed by a group of Chicago citizens of Irish descent. This committee included: Edward Hines, D. F. Kelly, Michael Igoe, Edward Cudahy Sr., Edward Cudahy Jr., E. G. Brennan, Frank J. Lewis, and John J. O'Brien.

The title of the play with which the Dramatic league of Chicago hopes to open its new season at the Princess theater, Oct. 6, has been changed from "The Girl in the News," to "The King's Motor." It is an adaptation by Frederick and Fannie Locke Hatton, of a comedy of mid-European origin by Attila von Orbak. He called it "The King's Forty-Horse-Power Motor."

Fritz Leiber's season in Shakespeare's plays at the Civic theater will be shorter by two weeks than that of last winter; but the tour to follow will be longer. The banner of the Chicago Civic Shakespeare society will be carried to the following cities: Indianapolis, St. Louis, Milwaukee, Dayton, Detroit, Cleveland, Buffalo, Toronto, Montreal, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, and New York. Incidentally, it has been revealed that Mr. Leiber's last season, including the engagement in Chicago and the subsequent tour, ended with a slight profit instead of the prophesied huge deficit.

The Shuberts announced yesterday that they are seeking "original American plays," and asked that manuscripts be sent to their offices. For the benefit of the amateur authors who believe that they have a play the Shuberts will like in their trunks, the address of those offices is hereby published: 236 West 44th street, New York. To prove their intentions, the Shuberts state that they hope to stage five plays of American authorship this season.

The Goodman theater is reopening its campaign for season subscribers, with ambitions to reach the goal of 10,000. Miss Gertrude Lee, the new business manager of the repertory company, will assume her duties Sept. 15, to spur on the corps of canvassers already in the field.

"The Firebrand," a romantic comedy by Edwin Justus Mayer, will start the Goodman's program of eight plays, opening Tuesday night, Oct. 14. The play reading committee believes that this dramatization of an episode in the career of Benvenuto Cellini will please both wings of the Goodman audience—the die hards, or "Give us back Tom Stevens" group, and the progressives, or "Hubert Osborne is a swell director" crowd.

Next week will be Lou Tellegen's last in "Love Technique," at the Studebaker. The management of the theater is silent on the subject of a succeeding attraction. C. C.

CALLS RUINS OF "KING ARTHUR'S CASTLE" FAKE DURING PROBE

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Aug. 28.—The mysterious ruins of "King Arthur's castle" at Tintagel, Cornwall, was branded as an imposture today by Henry Jenner, president of the International Arthurian congress, meeting at Truro to investigate the truth of the Arthurian legends.

For generations the jagged ruin on the Cornish cliffside has been a shrine for lovers of Arthurian chronicles, and each year it is visited by thousands of tourists, who are told they are seeing the home of the great king of chivalry. Today, however, Mr. Jenner asserted that there was no evidence to connect King Arthur with Tintagel. The place, he said, was not mentioned in any Arthurian story until Goeffrey of Monmouth mentioned it in the twelfth century.

"The castle as we see it now certainly is not of any period approximating King Arthur's," Mr. Jenner said. "The original story, which Goeffrey retold and faked to make it read well was intended for two neighboring fortresses as the centers of incident and did not mean Tintagel to be one of them at all."

G. A. R. Elects J. E. Jewel as Its New Chief

Ft. Morgan, Colo., Veteran Is Chosen.

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 28.—(AP)—James E. Jewel, born on an Ohio farm in 1847 and now a lawyer, stock breeder and farmer at Fort Morgan, Colo., stands tonight where Gen. Ulysses S. Grant stood in 1865—at the head of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Union veterans of the civil war elected Jewel commander in chief as their 64th encampment drew to a close today. He succeeded Edwin J. Foster of Worcester, Mass. His election occurred on the first ballot when Kansas switched from its favorite son, Harding Merrill of Wichita, and Illinois followed suit. Jewel received 242 votes, Merrill 43, Samuel P. Town of Philadelphia, the assistant quartermaster general and custodian, 191, Charles Nason, Portland, Me., senior vice commander in chief, 14; and Smith Stimmel of Fargo, N. D., last survivor of Lincoln's mounted body guard, ten votes.

The new commander was born on a farm five miles west of Germantown, O., near Dayton, and his family immigrated to Iowa when he was six. He enlisted in the 27th Iowa infantry at the age of 17 and fought at the battles of Nashville and Fort Blakely. He later moved to Colorado, joined the G. A. R. in 1879, served as commander of the department of Colorado and Wyoming in 1921 and 1922, and was unanimously chosen senior vice commander of the National G. A. R. at the Denver encampment in 1923.

Jacob Secrist, Cincinnati, former commander of the Ohio department of the G. A. R., was elected senior vice commander in chief and Charles H. Lewis, Pawtucket, R. I., junior vice commander in chief.

The veterans voted condemnation of the impersonation of Abraham Lincoln by Charles Edward Bull of Hollywood, Cal., who gave several presentations of his play during the encampment at the request of the local G. A. R.

Resolutions were passed recommending a pension of $50 a month for widows of veterans who lived with their husbands ten years or more prior to their death; urging congress to appropriate money to take care of civil war battle flags, and urging that male nurses of the war receive the same pension as female nurses.

Tomorrow the encampment will end with a pilgrimage up the Ohio river to Point Pleasant, O., birthplace of Gen. Grant. The former President's grandson, Lieut. Col. Ulysses S. Grant III., will be guest of honor and officer of the day.

Mrs. Margaret Grandle, Pittsburg, Kas., was elected president of the Ladies of the G. A. R., succeeding Cora M. Rowling. Mrs. Ella Berkemeier, Akron, O., was elected senior vice commander. Ella Schweitzer of the Wisconsin department was chosen commander in chief of the Daughters Union Veterans, and Zella Robinson, Michigan, was elected vice commander.

Allen C. Holbrook, Dwight, Ill., was elected commander in chief of the Sons of Union Veterans, succeeding Theodore C. Caseau, Rochester, N. Y.

Ella Schweitzer, Wisconsin, was elected commander in chief of the Daughters of Civil War Veterans, succeeding Mrs. Grace Hurd. Zella Robinson, Michigan, was elected senior vice commander; Susie Fletcher, Illinois, junior vice commander; Ruth B. Young, Michigan, quarter master general; Ida Buck, Michigan, chaplain general; Mabel Kemp, Michigan, national patriotic instructor; Bonnie St. Peter, Wisconsin, national officer of the day; Lydia Elsing, Wisconsin, national officer of the guard; Neil Nicholson, Iowa, national sentinel; Emma Krammer, Michigan, national registrar general; Frances Birdsell, Michigan, national historian; Cora Ollhelmy, Wisconsin, national auditor general.

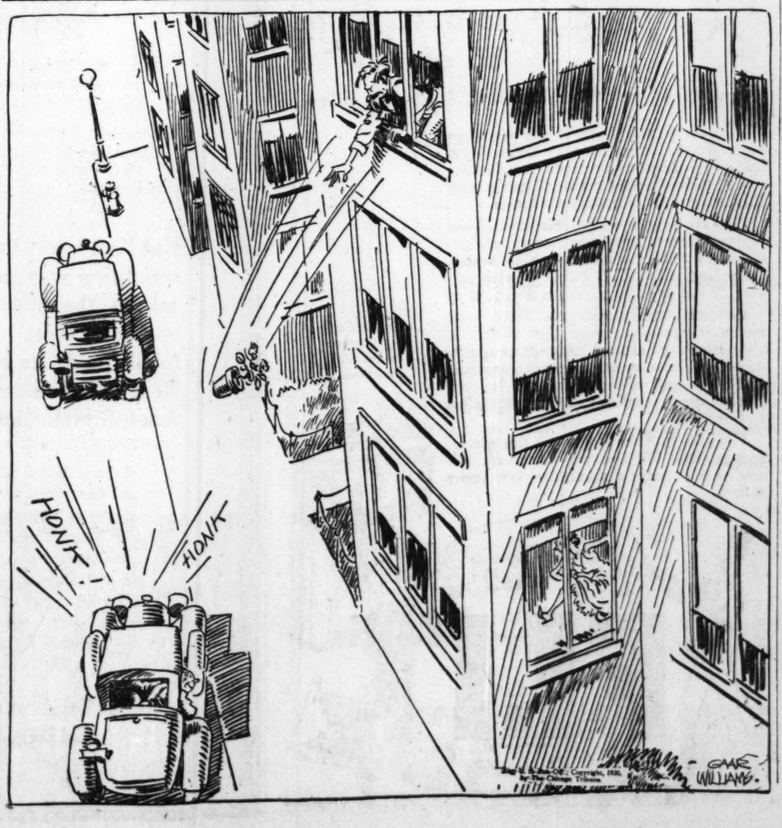
HOW TO KEEP FROM GROWING OLD



London Doctor Pokes Fun at Diet Faddist

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 28. — (AP) — Diet, in the opinion of Dr. Robert Hutchinson of London, should be a matter of likes and dislikes.

The diet faddist, he told the ninety-eighth annual meeting of the British Medical association, is perhaps the commoonest and most malignant crank.

"The scientific truth about all this diet business," he said, "can be summed up as follows: Eat moderately, taking ordinary mixed diet, and don't worry about anything else—to take no thought for what you shall eat or drink is wiser than to be always fussing over it. Likes and dislikes, however, should be listened to; they are nature's indication of what probably agrees or disagrees."

Harking back to the "days of mud pies," Dr. Hutchison said children were probably healthier and happier then than the often weighed, pampered, dieted, and psycho-analyzed infants of today.

The speaker laughed at calory-counters and vitamine victims, and held up as ideal the easy going individual who "merely meanders ' health."

"What we need for the attainment of health as individuals is not more knowledge, but a change of heart. A country's greatest asset is character. Let us therefore cultivate character and let health look after itself, being assured that to a nation made up of men and women of character all things — health included — will be added."

He adjured humans to "leave raw vegetables, except salads, to herbiverous animals and let the calories look after themselves. "Do not worry too much about the health of your children and eat plenty of plain simple food."

Americans, he said, are especially prone to think too much about health.

Government control of the production of narcotic drugs was suggested as a simple and effective means of combatting their illicit use, by Prof. W. E. Dixon of Cambridge university, England.

"Each manufacturing nation should have one factory over which the government would exert a direct and complete control, including the price at which the products were sold," Prof. Dixon added.

Here's a Pleasant Glimpse of Thirty Years of Marriage

BY DORIS BLAKE.

As hinted before, what marriage needs to make it more attractive to our hesitating bachelors and maids are true confessions revealing that marriage can be carried on successfully, in spite of rumors, hearsay and divorce evidence to the contrary. For a most heartening slant on the life referred to, we are indebted to Mrs. C. A., who has known thirty years of married life and heartily recommends it to the hesitants.

"I have been married thirty years to a man I knew as a boy in grade schools. He is a gentleman in the highest sense of the word and his habits are a joy and delight to a woman of—perhaps—fastidious tastes. Our evenings are spent at home with radio, writing or talking, or with music or driving. He is a student; so am I. Neither of us find time for the research work we want to accomplish.

"I do my housework since our reverses. Since my family is reared I have taken up writing as a hobby and find it fascinating. My life is anything but starved for romance for that daily portion of life with a man who loves me, and is not afraid to have me know it, is more than sufficient. I try to keep some illusions for him, treat him like a comrade, and to me he is still the boyish lover who was devoted to me when I was a young girl.

"Of course it goes without saying he is a man of character and one to be proud of in every feature of his existence. The business he is in demands unquestioned integrity. He fulfills every qualification. He is like his father before him and like his gentlewoman mother. I have never known a man with higher ideals and standards. He is no prig and, God knows, he is no sissy, but a he-man, virile and strong.

"We have had sharp reverses and have had to retrench along all lines. For over a year we have not been inside a movie. We cannot afford the theater or other places we would like to go. We have been down to bedrock several times and things have not been smooth financially for some time, so it is not a case with me of being housed like a pussycat and hence purring. We are of utterly different temperaments, yet with the same ideals and the ability to laugh at the same things, generally.

"The ideals a woman has, in the writer's opinion, are of infinite importance. A man likes to live up to a woman's ideals if she doesn't nag him about them. But a real man, with character, who can stand alone, whatever the stress or storm, is what women should look for."

Accident Reveals Painting by Rembrandt in Ireland

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Ireland, Aug. 28.—It was announced here that an authentic Rembrandt was discovered in the country home of Henry M. Sinclair, well known Dublin connoisseur, who found the picture accidentally and took it to London to be examined by leading experts, who pronounced it genuine. Later he took it to Paris, consulting Dr. Valentier, a noted authority, who certified that the painting is characteristic of the original work of Rembrandt, fully signed and dated 1633.

Sen. Allen Improves So Operation Is Postponed

Wichita, Kas., Aug. 28.—(AP)—With considerable improvement reported in the condition of Senator Henry J. Allen, his physicians said that an operation planned for today had been postponed indefinitely. They said the senator would stay in the hospital for a rest, and that if his improvement continued the operation might not be performed.

Attractive Home, Friendly Parents, Fine Combination

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

A Toy List will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The problem of guiding the 15 or 16 year old son or daughter is filling many parents with dismay these days. And it is usually their social life and the wise use of their leisure that come in for most discussion and worry.

Some other parents, though, manage it extremely well. But like most good things, it doesn't do itself. Here is a letter on the subject:

"Dear Mrs. Bevans: Your articles are indeed helpful, and I look forward to them each day. I have gained much from them.

"Our son has just reached the age of 16, and to me he is still a real chum. He is a Boy Scout, and my home holds a big welcome for them all. Each evening and on Sundays you will see some of them here. Perhaps it has been a little work for me, as well as a little sacrifice, but it is well worth it. I adore having them all, and they all enjoy coming here My husband and I join in with all the games and we all read and discuss the same books. As a matter of fact, my living room is a real boys' library, books strewn all over.

"I generally serve some little refreshments and our Sunday night tea or supper is a great meal. Those that are away from home I occasionally invite to dinner. We have only moderate means, but a great deal of happiness. What is there to be compared with it?

"My son works after school and on Saturdays, and his evenings are not spent wandering and loitering in the street. After a picture they come back here, so I always know where and with whom our son is. Bridge parties and outside pleasures do not interest me. My home and family come first, and John's companions are equally important.

"True Christianity is helping others and setting an example, particularly to the younger ones. That is our most important duty, is it not? I know you understand."

Of course we must recognize that each individual may not use the same means and achieve the same end, but there are two big important factors to make a note of here, and that always seem to be present when parents carry on successfully. They are:

An attractive, hospitable home and companionable, understanding parents. This is an almost invincible combination.

Sally Ends Parties for This Summer; Talkie Delights Kids

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Yesterday afternoon our summer parties ended for this 1930 season when my hundred young guests and I saw "Animal Crackers" at McVicker's theater. And what a sendoff the Four Marx Brothers gave us! Truly being with them for an afternoon of fun was a fitting way to end the jolly succession of good times we've been having for the last two months.

There was Groucho as the African explorer and guest of honor at a fashionable house party. His deportment wouldn't be endorsed by leading ettiquette experts, but it kept one hundred boys and girls laughing until their little sides hurt. And Harpo with his silly grin and rolling eyes and taking ways—it's amazing the amount of silverware he is able to conceal in one baggy sleeve—was as funny a performer as we've ever seen. Chico's plan for unearthing the whereabouts of the stolen painting was rather unique and complicated—yes, there's a deep, dark mystery in the plot—but this affected stupidity entirely disappeared for the few moments his fingers were tripping over the piano keys.

They're a marvelous quartette and they clown through the picture in a perfectly crazy fashion that gives you a million laughs. In addition to the feature picture there was a most amusing animal comedy and we saw barnyard pets, trees, houses, fences and tombstones swaying to the tune of "Sing You Sinners." Refreshments in the form of boxes of candy from Mrs. Snyder's helped to make this party the successful one it was and so engrossed were we in having a good time, we almost forgot that it was the last time we'd be seeing each other for many months.

But it was the last, my dear young friends, and you must go back to your studies again. During the coming months, however, don't forget that next summer we will repeat all this fun and we can be together again for lots of good times. I'll be remembering, too, and planning things to do, in the meantime, good-by and a happy school year to all of you!

It's Easier to Ward Off Sun Troubles than to Cure Them

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

How are the looks prospering under the strong summer sun? Is the hair bleaching and stiffening under the exposure? Is the skin feeling a bit parched? Are the eyes burning from the blinding glare of sun-scorched roads?

These are just a few of the summer annoyances that have to be taken into account as part of the vacation season fun.

If you've been smart enough to keep your hair under a beret or a picture hat or bathing cap the best part of the time, you won't be worrying about the fading hair nor the stiff feel of it. But if you've been like 'most every one and thrown caution to the winds you will want to give your head a hot oil treatment at least once a week during the hot weeks. Just to keep it glossy and young looking. Olive oil is a simple expedient and can be bought at almost any vacation spot, no matter how remote. Warm it a little if you can. If you can't use it au naturel. Rub some into the scalp with the finger tips.

You can do protective work by putting on a little extra brillantine before you go out. It is a good scalp emollient, too, and it prevents the hair from drying.

Your skin is going to need extra greasing, that's sure. If you'd only do a bit of the greasing before you expose it to the sun your troubles would be minimized. Anyway, don't go to bed at night without treating the parched surface to a good oiling. Your cream may supply the necessary oils. If you do this immediately at the end of your day you will not be among those who were present at the end of last season wishing they'd not been so careless. It takes months to get the skin back in shape once you let it get dried out by the strong rays of the sun.

If you are out in the sun much you are going to feel the need of eye care. The sun shining on the water smarts them; on the beach, on the blazing white road. Bathe the eyes at night with a mild solution of salt water—just common salt in a glass of water. Or, boracic acid in lukewarm water applied with an eye cup is thoroughly soothing after a long outdoor day.

Funny Blow.

I was riding to work on a crowded bus one windy morning. All seats being taken, I had to stand up in the aisle. There was a man sitting near an open window with a sailor straw hat on. The wind blew it off and it landed on top of my head and it stuck so tight I had difficulty in getting it off. Of course, every one just roared and I, being one who can take a joke, laughed, too. D. Charming Gown of Turquoise Faille

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The Polo is probably the smartest of all the smart functions that mark the grande semaine. The greatest names in France and England figure on the tableau of tables retenues for tea, and all the leaders of fashion wear frocks specially created for them by their favorite couturier.

Worth makes a goodly percentage of these formal frocks, and some of the prettiest costumes that graced the Polo this year were unmistakably signed by M. Jean Charles' master hand.

Worth created the Polo ensemble of turquoise faille, sketched above, for the Comtesse Elie de Ganay. It is extremely simple and at the same time decorative in effect. The dolman cape has a deep irregularly pointed shoulder yoke and a small roll collar. Open embroidered hemstitching finishes the two points in the cape, from which the hands may peep, as well as the pointed petal flounces of the two-tiered skirt, which stops twelve good inches short of the ground.

The elbow length sleeves of the frock finish in similar points, and the upper flounce is mounted on the short low hip yoke in irregular zigzags that recall the shoulder yoke of the cape. A simple tailored belt of the turquoise faille is fastened with a topaz crystal buckle.

The flowers of the boutonnière are of turquoise and old gold faille. The large capeline hat of black transparent braid is trimmed with black velvet ribbon.

Here's the Way to Concoct a French Souffé

Any Cook Can Master the Art.

BY META GIVEN.

Are soufflés to you one of the small miracles of cookery that never hope to perform? Do the French name and their exquisite qualities make you feel it is unreasonable to expect you ever to attain them in their perfection?

Today we hope to dispel any such notion. Purchase a large enough chicken for Sunday dinner so that you may have a delicious chicken soufflé for Monday's dinner. The preparation of soufflés is simple and success is sure if you will determine to follow a few simple, easy rules.

A soufflé consists of perfectly beaten egg whites blended with either a sweetened fruit sauce, or custard, or a white sauce combined with the egg yolks. Success depends on the proper preparation of the mixture and its baking. Separate the eggs and be sure there is not the tiniest spot of yolk in the whites. Keep whites cold until ready for use. Start beating them when the other mixture is ready. Beat gently at first, then with more force until they are stiff enough to be lifted whole on the whisk.

Add about one-third of the whites to the other mixture. Stir until well blended. This softens and smooths the mass, making it easier to fold the rest of the egg whites. Do the folding in this way:

Folding in the Whites.

Put whites on top of the mixture and with a big slotted spoon if you have none, use a plain metal one, break through the whites, cut down to the bottom of the bowl. Bring the spoon over to the side of the bowl and gently draw it up, bringing with it as much of the mixture as it will hold. Throw this lightly over the whites. Repeat this manner, drawing the spoon outwards from the center.

Heap the whole lightly and quickly into a well buttered casserole, large enough to hold the material, and deep enough for a little expansion. Smooth the surface with a spoon. Make several shallow incisions in the top. Set the pan of hot water and place in a moderate oven (300 degrees F.) near the bottom of the oven. If it is placed too near the top a crust will form on the soufflé and this must be avoided if we are to have a perfect soufflé.

Serve It Immediately.

About 35 or 40 minutes' baking is required for a soufflé containing four whites. A soufflé should not be left until it is bone dry. The best are always a little creamy, but never runny in the center.

As soon as a soufflé is done it should be served at once. Like royalty, it should never be kept waiting, and the journey from the kitchen to the table should be swift and steady. Always serve piping hot.

A great variety of soufflés are possible. The whole category includes those that are adapted for breakfast, others for main luncheon dishes, and others for dinner desserts.

Here is a recipe for chicken soufflé:

1 cup milk
1 cup chicken or veal broth
Half bay leaf
Sprig parsley
1 slice onion
1 slice carrot
3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
¾ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
2 eggs
1½ cups finely minced chicken
3 chopped mushrooms, sauted [may be omitted].

Simmer the milk, broth, bay leaf, parsley, onion and carrot ten minutes. Strain out vegetables. Melt butter. Add flour, salt and pepper and cook well, then add strained liquid, stirring constant stirring cook to a smooth sauce.

Remove from fire and add yolks well beaten. Stir until well blended, then add chicken and mushrooms. Fold the whites with the greatest of care as described in our food talk.

Set in a pan of hot water and bake in a slow oven (300 degrees F.) for 40 minutes. Serve immediately with mushroom sauce made of the chicken broth and mushroom stems.

Yield: Six servings. One serving: Total, 244 calories; protein, 69 calories; fat, 142 calories; carbohydrates, 33 calories.

Each Variety of Kitchen Ware Has Good Points

BY SALLY LUNN.

When I walk into the household department of a store to buy a cooking vessel, I hesitate between the lovely green, the yellow enamel and the bright and shining aluminum ones. Each has a definite appeal to the purchaser. Copper and iron vessels are seen occasionally although their use has fallen off considerably in the last few years. New and peculiar contraptions, too, demand consideration as "labor saving devices." But no matter which our esthetic sense urges us to do, the practical mind considers first the four big questions:

1. What can it be used for? A utensil that can be used for two or more purposes is certainly more economical, even if it costs a little more.

2. How easily can it be cleaned? Vessels with grooves, humps or sharp bends are hard to clean because the food that sticks in them is hard to remove.

3. Does it take a long time to clean? Scouring and polishing a pot is certainly undesirable when we can clean another by washing.

4. How well will it wear? It does not pay to buy any utensil of poor quality. Paying twice as much often means that you will get four times as much wear.

Advantages of Aluminum.

Aluminum and enamel ware pots and pans are the most popular today. Each has its own advantages. Aluminum is light in weight, but select the the heavier aluminum vessel, for one that is too thin will quickly wear holes.

Aluminum heats quickly, but is itself resistant to the heat. It will not be melted by an ordinary fire even if there is no liquid in the pot. The juices of fruits and vegetables do not have any chemical effect on it and may be safely cooked in an aluminum sauce pan.

The main disadvantage is that alkali materials discolor it. This is a well known fact in Chicago. Boiling water in an aluminum pan discolors it. Aluminum should never be cleaned with soda or soda water which turns it black or a wire sponge which will scratch the surface in time. Use clear hot water. If this is not sufficient use one of the regular aluminum cleaners.

Enamel Ware.

Enamel ware always looks clean and is clean. The surface is practically glass. Because of this it is acid proof and does not injure the color or flavor of food cooked in it. It is easily washed. No scratchy cleaning material should be used. Coffee and tea which absorb the flavor of metal when prepared in pots made of it should always be prepared in enamel pots.

The great disadvantage of enamel ware is that it chips readily unless handled carefully. Chipped vessels must be used with discretion. Clear liquids may be boiled in them as any particles remain at the bottom and can be avoided in pouring off the liquid.

Iron and copper have only one advantage, that of retaining the heat well but otherwise they are unwieldy and difficult to care for.

Cheering for breakfast. A treat for lunch.

Kellogg's Pep Bran Flakes have the famous flavor of PEP. The matchless goodness of crunchy whole wheat. And bran! There's just enough added to be mildly laxative.

Just one taste and you'll agree that Kellogg's Pep Bran Flakes are better bran flakes.

United States Heads Poultry Production

Priebe Reports World Meeting in London.

BY PAUL POTTER.

An appetite whetted to appreciate and call for more poultry and eggs in recent years, coupled with the resultant ready market for this source of ready cash income for farmers, has brought the United States into the forefront of all nations in quantity and quality of poultry production.

W. F. PRIEBE.

Thus does W. F. Priebe, veteran Chicago poultryman and president of the United States Egg society, sum up the impressions he gained while representing the federal government at the World's Poultry congress in London, from which he has just returned.

Nations Look to Us.

"The farmer, the business man, and the laborer in this country are in heaven compared with European countries," Mr. Priebe declared in his official report to Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde. "Of the thirty nations represented, only ours and Germany were not interested directly in British markets for their poultry. And every other nation is looking to American methods of production and handling of poultry and eggs."

Even though the Britisher may get his ducks from China at 12 cents a pound, his geese from Russia at 10 cents a pound, or his turkeys at 15 to 18 cents from Argentina, per capita consumption of poultry in England and other European countries is well below that in this country, he declared. Beef, poultry, and fish are all cheaper in England, but labor is much cheaper and unemployment more widespread.

The usual breakfast of an Englishman centers about a boiled egg, upright in a cup. The shell is cracked and the contents sniffed at from habit, then eaten or sent back to the kitchen, Mr. Priebe noted. In fact, some poultrymen offer their eggs in London streets beneath a sign which significantly reads: "Our eggs guaranteed to boil."

Mass production, the desire of Americans to have the very best, and the relatively quicker trips of chickens or eggs from farm to doorstep, have given us a different picture of breakfast or the main meals of the day here.

"As an example of this, I can point to a situation where but five years ago fully 80 per cent of the poultry sold in Chicago between March and October were 'city dressed'," continued Mr. Priebe. "Now it is safe to estimate that not over 30 per cent is handled in that fashion. Most of our poultry comes from country plants, where much of it has been fattened on fine feeds and milk, and then is packed and graded."

Many leaders in the poultry industry locally are of the firm belief that further increased consumption of poultry is possible only by bettering the quality and service the industry renders. They realize the need of cold storage holdings as a buffer between seasonal supplies and year 'round demands. But they regard the cold storage product as at best a substitute for the fresh product, and are encouraging methods of more even production throughout the year. Mr. Priebe is one of these.

Evening Production.

"We used to make butter in the spring," he says, "but now we make it all through the year, although even the dairyman hasn't entirely evened up his production. Mash feeds and other means of bringing the hen back into laying from a dry spell are gaining ground among farmers, and our broilers now come to market in five or six months after the egg cracks, instead of after one or more years, as must be true in some lines of farm production."

Perhaps, he said, the canning or sealing in glass jars of poultry meats may become a vital factor in the industry's serving of its product when and where the demand exists.

Grows 31 Lb. Watermelon; Claims 1930 Championship

Pana, Ill., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—J. E. Gallagher of Mode, southeastern Shelby county, today laid claim to being the champion watermelon raiser in Illinois for 1930. He marketed melons weighing 25 to 31 pounds, the latter melon being the heaviest in his wonder patch, which Gallagher declared would have doubled in size but for the sixty day drought.

NAMED HEAD OF EXCHANGE CLUBS.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Thomas G. Imeson, city commissioner of Jacksonville, Fla., was elected president of the National Exchange clubs in final convention session here today.

Atlanta Mayor Elect Invites Borglum to Talk on Memorial

Rapid City, S. D., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Gutzon Borglum, sculptor of the national memorial on Mount Rushmore, has accepted an invitation of Mayor-Elect James L. Key of Atlanta to return to Georgia for a conference on the confederate memorial project on Stone mountain.

He will leave here tonight to discuss with them the future of the Stone mountain sculptoring, which Borglum left five years ago when he disagreed with the commission in charge of it.

The possible revival of Borglum's work on Stone mountain will not mean any slowing up of his gigantic sculptoring, the largest in history, on Mount Rushmore in the Black Hills, he emphasized.

Final tests and measurements there on the head of Jefferson, to the right of Washington's figure, were completed yesterday.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Hoover had a few guests in for dinner tonight, informally, for their house guests Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Robinson of California and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Nutt of Cleveland.

The chargé d'affaires of France, M. Jules Henry, entertained at dinner tonight at the Embassy in compliment to the members of the French bar association who came to this country for the recent meeting of the American Bar association at Chicago. Following the dinner where the guests were all men, there was a large general reception.

Among the most interesting of the entertainments for the visiting lawyers was the luncheon today given by the Women's Bar association of the District of Columbia in honor of the four women delegates. The delegates are Miss Mercy Ashworth, Miss Sarah Mosskowitz, Mrs. Florence Earengey, and Miss Dorothy Stokes, and two members of the local entertainment committee, Judge Pearl McCall and Judge Mary O'Toole, who went to London and Paris in 1924 with the American Bar association delegates. Judge O'Toole presided at the luncheon which was given at the Willard.

While the men of the foreign bar associations were entertained at dinner last night at the British embassy, their wives with some other guests were given a dinner at the Plage Deauville, by Mr. and Mrs. William P. MacCracken Jr. There was dancing and the guests went to the reception which the British ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, gave following a stag dinner at the embassy.

Mrs. E. C. Phelps of Chicago returned here yesterday from a visit to Norfolk. She will leave early tomorrow for her home on Franklin boulevard after an absence of several weeks in the east.

Calls the Britons Better at Dancing than Are Yankees

The English are better dancers than the Americans, Thomas Birchler, president of the Chicago Association of Dancing Masters, told the organization yesterday at its 17th annual convention at the Stevens hotel.

"The English people are more graceful," he said, "because they take dancing more seriously than Americans. Americans regard dancing more as a diversion than an art. The English are distinguished from dancers of other countries by their unusual grace and smoothness of movement.

"The English style of ballroom dancing differs in that the English dance closer and straight-legged, moving the legs from the hips and setting the heel down first. The feet are kept closer together, actually brushing as they move. Americans are fundamentally wrong in paying more attention to the movement of the feet than of the body. The body must always move first."

WEDDING

KINGHAM, Oxfordshire, England, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Miss Hope Gay Yandell, eldest daughter of Mrs. Lunsford Pitts Yandell, Greenwich, Conn., and William Arnold Hanger, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harry Taylor Hanger of Richmond, Ky., were married at Kingham church today.

N. W. Thompson Heads Y. M. C. A. Men's Clubs

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Newton W. Thompson of Belleville, Ont., international president of Y. M. C. A. Men's clubs, was reelected today.

Richard H. McCleery of Washington, Ia., and Samuel Frazin of Denver, Colo., were among the vice presidents named. Directors include Alfred H. Mills of Knoxville, Tenn., and Edgar J. McCoy of Canton, O.

Directors will decide on the place of the 1931 convention with St. Paul, Minn.; Little Rock, Ark., and Cleveland, O., under consideration.

Indian Preacher Says Tribesmen Abandon Old Dances for New

Oberlin, O., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Thomas Compton Walsh Jr. of Boston was elected president of the Junior Brotherhood of St. Andrew, an international Episcopalian order, at the annual convention here today.

Organized religion in America is "asleep on the job" in providing religious training for youth, Prof. Paul Rusch of St. Paul's university, Tokio, said.

The Rev. C. C. Rouillard, Sioux Indian, world war veteran, former circus trainer, and now an Episcopalian missionary in South Dakota, told the convention the Indians still like "fire-water." He said bootleg liquor is causing an increasing amount of drunkenness among them.

"Jazz music also is making inroads and combined with drinking is the cause of much of the immorality among the Indians," he said.

Miss Jane Warner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra J. Warner of Lake Forest, and Edison Dick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Blake Dick, who will be married Sept. 23, have completed the list of their wedding attendants.

They have asked twenty-two young people to accompany them down the aisle of the Presbyterian church in Lake Forest, all but two of the party being Chicagoans or former Chicagoans. Miss Warner is to have her sister, Mrs. Thomas C. Dennehy Jr., as her matron of honor.

The bridesmaids will include: Mrs. Woodbury Stearns Ober, the former Jane McLennan; Mrs. Paul McBride (Claire Childs Lafin), who will return from her honeymoon shortly before the wedding; Mrs. Charles Dennehy [Virginia Wilson], a bride of last spring; Mrs. James H. Pullman, Ralph Isham, Stephenson Jennings, John Stuart Coonley Jr. and James de Camp of Cincinnati. One of the many parties to be given for the prospective bride and groom will be one that Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Dick Jr. are to give on Friday evening before the wedding. Mr. Dick and his bride are to reside in Lake Frest.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. McCulloch of the Drake Towers are to have a house party at their Charnelloch lodge at Big Sand lake, near Pheips, Wis., over the Labor day week-end. Mrs. Walter S. Brewster is to read a paper on "Smorgasbord" at the first fall meeting of the American Daughters of Sweden, to be held at 8 o'clock on Sept. 9 at the Drake hotel. Mrs. Brewster's composition was inspired by some of her experiences in Sweden last year, and she read, if I remember correctly, at one of the spring meetings of the Scribblers, much to the hilarious enjoyment of that group.

Mrs. Howard Van Doren Shaw and her daughter, Miss Theodora Shaw, have returned from the North Cape-Russia cruise. They stopped in Boston on their way west, and are to be in Lake Forest during September. Mrs. Shaw will come into town in October when Miss Theodora departs to study at the Sarah Lawrence college in Bronxville, N. Y.

School Days Call to Algonquin Kids; Vacation's End Near

With "readin', ritin' and 'rithmetic" days scheduled to return again next Tuesday, a group of 200 children regretfully assembled their belongings yesterday at Camp Algonquin.

It was packing day in the Harlowarden section, although the upper camp will be inhabited by tenement mothers and children on two week vacations until Sept. 16. Into suitcases went clean, fresh clothing, health charts that recorded pleasing gains in weight to show to mother, and gifts made during the handiwork hours for little brother or sister and mother. As the children bent over their farewell task in camp, a strange array of souvenirs reposed on each cot. There were pebbles, feathers, strange bits of wood, leaves—momentoes of a glorious two months in the country to take back to the city.

Today the children who left the Chicago and North Western station the first of July, a white, sickly group, will return sun tanned and healthy. Many of them will be met at the station by relatives, eager to hear all about the long vacation. One group will arrive at 8:30 a. m. and another at 1:15 p. m. Chicago time.

The children whose vacations were partially financed by TRIBUNE readers through the Algonquin fund, are among the 10,000 to 15,000 underprivileged children and mothers sent to Illinois and Wisconsin camps and summer homes by the United Charities of Chicago in cooperation with several railroads, who offered transportation free.

One thousand children from Hull house district spent vacations at the Bowen country club, Waukegan; 1,000 were entertained at Holiday home, Lake Geneva, and another thousand at Arden Shore. The Union League club sent 1,000 boys to Salem, Wis., and Camp Reinberg, near Palatine, entertained 2,000 women and children, chosen by the Cook county bureau of public welfare. In addition hundreds of children have been given vacations through the charities in private homes on farms in Illinois and Wisconsin.

PROTEST CLOSING OF SURPLUS NAVY COAST STATIONS

Local Communities Fight Retrenchment Plans.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—The navy campaign to slash expenses by consolidating shore activities and closing surplus plants brought a flood of protests to the White House and navy department today. Most of the complaints came from congressmen who anticipated the closing of establishments in their districts.

White House and navy officials declined comment tonight regarding the probable outcome. It was intimated, however, that the navy would have the President's support in cases where it took steps to close down stations and plants in which the overhead throughout the year was greatly out of proportion to the business done.

Admit Surplus of Plants.

Naval officials have admitted for years that too many naval establishments are maintained. Numerous attempts have been made to cut out several of them and to consolidate the six industrial navy yards on the Atlantic coast into three, but political pressure always developed in sufficient strength to frustrate such efforts. The Rodman board, a naval body which reported in 1924, recommended the closing of three navy industrial yards, and two naval training stations and the elimination of more than a score of lesser establishments, but nothing was done.

The latest drive at the number of naval shore establishments was begun after President Hoover called for retrenchment in governmental expenditures. Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ernest Lee Jahncke and bureau chiefs studied the situation and their reports will shortly be in the hands of Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams. No details have been published, but it was made known that four southern plants would be hit.

Views of Higher-Ups.

Many high navy officials would like to see the six navy yards on the east coast cut down to three, only two to be active at all times. The work they take on, could be handled efficiently at Philadelphia, New York, and Norfolk. The yards at Boston and Charleston, S. C., would be on an inactive basis. The Portsmouth, N. H., yard would be utilized for submarine construction in the immediate future and probably be inactive later. On the west coast navy yards would be maintained at Mare island and Puget sound.

Finland's Drive on Red Menace Led from Pulpit

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LAPUA, Finland, Aug. 28.—Finland's remarkable revolt of farmers against the menace of communism, which may bring about a temporary dictatorship, centers in the Lutheran church of this town.

THE TRIBUNE correspondent arrived here Sunday morning just as the bells were ringing in the church. The congregation was arriving on horseback, in buggies, and on bicycles, and the women were all in black, with black handkerchiefs. The men wore black suits of an antiquated cut.

The church service consisted chiefly of singing hymns in a sad minor key, but when Pastor Kares, who, next to Vihtori Kosola, is one of the great figures in the Lapua anti-communist movement, entered the pulpit the church became electrified.

Becomes Political Chief.

His sermon began in the usual way, the text being a passage describing Christ driving the money changers from the temple. He soon became the political chief. He declared that Christ was interested in purging the temple, but didn't trouble to inquire too closely about legal methods. The farmers in the straight backed benches sat up and took notice as the lesson sunk. After the service I visited Pastor Kares, who described the beginning of the movement. It is national and religious, and there is nothing of an economic theory in it.

Lapua for years has been the center of the Pietist movement in the Lutheran church, the Pietists being something like American Quakers. They wear special dress, ignore changes in fashion, and hold frequent prayer meetings. In Finland's history they have also been the best fighters, going into battle against the Russians singing hymns like Oliver Cromwell's "Ironsides." Lapua has also been a center of patriotic movements.

When communism appeared the Lapuans were shocked by the attacks on religion and outraged by the connection of Finnish citizens with a foreign power, which was Finland's hereditary foe.

Try to Teach Atheism.

The communists in turn concentrated in Lapua, holding anti-religious meetings. What finally enraged the farmers was that they tried to teach the children atheism. Efforts were made to deal with them legally by suppressing their papers, but they appeared again the next day under new names. The convicted communists were released and the agitation increased.

In addition to this there were a series of strikes in the harbors and industrial towns, and the hand of Moscow was seen trying to destroy the Finnish economic organization. The Lapua district alone sent 22,000 farmers and their sons to the towns as volunteer strike breakers during the last five years.

Historically, too, Lapau has tradition and patriotism. When Finland was conquered by Russia the Finns' last stand was made at Lapua, and the last Finnish victory was won there.

Kosola Zealous Patriot.

From the pastor's house I went into the farmhouse, where Kosola, the farmer leader of the movement against the Reds, was sitting.

In addition to Pastor Kares, Kosola is assisted by two other farmers, Hertua and Koivisto, and is now receiving advice and aid from business men in Tammerfors and other industrial centers, who at first were inclined to deride the movement.

This is not Kosola's first appearance as a leader of men. When the war began he saw an opportunity for Finland to throw off the Russian yoke. Finland had no army and no trained officers, so he instituted a system of smuggling young Finns into Germany to be trained as officers.

DROUGHT CREDIT PLAN APPROVED AT WHITE HOUSE

Traylor Program Termed Satisfactory.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—[Special.]—President Hoover today received and approved the report of the state bankers' drought relief committee headed by Melvin A. Traylor of Chicago, outlining a program of extending credit to farmers through local banks and community and state credit organizations.

The drought credit program was the topic of a breakfast parley at the White House attended by Senator James E. Watson [Rep., Ind.], the Republican floor leader; Henry M. Robinson, Los Angeles banker and financial member of the federal drought committee, and Joseph R. Nutt of Cleveland, a banker and treasurer of the Republican national committee.

States, Counties to Aid.

The conferees were said to have agreed that the Traylor plan, shifting to the states and counties the main responsibility for financing farmers needing assistance, is feasible and the best that can be devised.

Senator Watson advised against a special session of congress to vote drought relief appropriations and, although such a session had never been seriously considered, it was believed following the breakfast to be entirely out of the question. No direct cash outlay, which could be made only by congress, will be forthcoming from the federal government under the Traylor plan, all funds being provided on a loan basis through credit groups.

Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde, who is in Chicago on personal business, telegraphed the department of agriculture today that "the report of the banker members of the governors' drought committee outlines a helpful program."

Program Is Praised.

"They not only pointed out the duty of local bankers and local people generally, but they undertook to supplement and augment their own resources by the formation of agricultural credit corporations in each state," said Mr. Hyde. "These credit corporations serve as intermediaries between credit base of committees and the liberal credit facilities of the federal intermediate credit system. The formation of these corporations assures ample credits for loans to farmers in drought stricken areas in present emergencies and will be of great and continuing benefit if maintained in the future."

Secretary Hyde added that as soon as the state drought committees have a few days to familiarize themselves with conditions in each state he will call a meeting of the chairmen in Washington to correlate activities and relief measures.

Tribune Golf, Like Summer, Nearing End

Competition gets hotter every day as the end of THE TRIBUNE'S public links golf tournament approaches. All through the summer players have been competing on courses throughout the Chicago district against opponents whom they never have seen.

On Sept. 15 the matches will end. That means there are two rounds left to be played. The fifth round is under way now.

Two Kinds of Prizes Offered.

Pairings for the sixth round will be announced as soon as these results are in, and the seventh and last round will be played the following week. As soon as final standings have been computed prizes will be awarded to those who have won the most matches and to those who have competed in the greatest number of matches, regardless of whether they won or lost.

This tournament has drawn 500 golfers of every degree of skill. Experts and dubs stand equal chances of victory and matches are played whenever contestants find it convenient to do so. Many are sending in their cards from far away summer resorts. No matter where a player may be or what time of the day he gets a chance to shoot his golf, he can compete in this unique tournament.

Some Have Won Four in Row.

Those who have been playing every week have only two more rounds to keep going, after which they will be awarded prizes for their perseverance. There are some who have won four

BRITISH TRACK TEAM SAILS FOR HOME TOMORROW

BY WILFRID SMITH.

After a day of sightseeing members of the British Empire's track and field team left last night from the Illinois Central station for Montreal. They will sail for England tomorrow night.

Although the Empire lost to the United States stars, nine events to five Wednesday night in their fourth unsuccessful attempt to gain international supremacy, they were not discouraged. J. F. Wadmore, manager of the invading team, yesterday best explained the task which the Empire tried to accomplish.

Loss of Williams Felt.

"America long has maintained superiority in the six field events," Wadmore said. "Consequently our hopes of victory were based on a sweep of the eight track races. When Percy Williams, Canadian champion sprinter, was injured in the Empire games, we realized we could hardly win the 400 yard medley relay. Then last night America's four great hurdlers proved superior in the shuttle hurdle relay.

"These two losses on the track meant defeat. The American victory in the last event, the one mile medley, was unnecessary."

Members of the Empire squad unanimously praised the sportsmanship which granted victory in the one mile relay, although K. C. Brankwin of England, the Empire's first runner, dropped the baton. Continuing without the baton, Alex Wilson, anchor man, finished 15 yards ahead of Vic Williams, the American. Ruling that the Empire would have won easily, the team was not disqualified for Brankwin's error.

Expect to Cover Expenses.

J. Lyman Bingham, assistant to Avery Brundage, president of the A. A. U., announced yesterday that receipts probably would cover the $23,000 expended in bringing the meet to Chicago. Many of the crowd, the largest to watch a track meet in Chicago, were boys and girls admitted at reduced prices.

E. J. Holt of England and Roy Davis of the Central A. A. U. were starters. Davis was chosen after protests had been made by Empire officials against using American coaches on the grounds of professionalism. C. W. Pierce and Dennis Lyons of England; Avery Brundage and Joseph Maccabe of Boston were referees.

Robins Score 7 in 6th to Take Second Place from Giants, 8-7

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Copyright: 1930: By The Chicago Tribune.]

New York, Aug. 28.—The Robins and the Giants set up a great commotion at the Polo grounds this afternoon, playing a loose, enthusiastic game of ball in their competition for second place and the ultimate perquisites of second place, payable when the Cubs and Athletics have divided the principal fund of the world's series money.

GLENN WRIGHT.

Uncle Wilbert Robinson sat in the hut on the visitors' side of the grounds directing his comedians with merry quips and funny jokes and the opposite side, in person, exerting his master mind in a baffling succession of problems, as the Robins won the performance, 8 to 7.

Somewhat after the manner of Charlie Chaplin tripping into a tub of mortar in the early days of the movies, the Robins, working strictly in that straight-faced seriousness which heightens the humor of their work, assaulted Carl Hubbell, a skinny left handed pitcher, in the sixth inning and took the lead by scoring four runs before a man was out. For the next twenty minutes the clowns went crazy, brandishing their slapsticks in wild hilarity and two more of Mr. McGraw's pitchers were needed to still the uproar before the Robins left off with a total of seven runs for the period.

Robins Regain Second Place.

This victory and the one of the day before promoted the Brooklyn team to second place again, and Wilbert's complaint that his chaps weren't hitting was silenced by the clatter of ten blows, including home runs by Glenn Wright and Mickey Finn, a triple by Babe Herman, the outfielder who learned to catch fly balls in self-defense, and a double by Wright.

The love of laughter attracted some 25,000 patrons to the ball park and they staggered off the scene holding their sides after a perfect afternoon at the laughing hit of 1930. Mr. McGraw's team played straight and dignified throughout the act, and though it was comedy to the patrons, the experience seemed to be a pain in the neck to them.

There was a sizable deputation of escaped Brooklynites benched in the stand behind the third base line, who announced themselves at the very start of the show with one stanza of the Brooklyn alma mater song, a long, rolling boo. This was their salute to the Giants as the resident athletes in their slightly soiled cream suits went out to man their stations.

Vance Allows Nine Hits.

Dazzy Vance, swollen with maturity and major league victuals, puffed his way through the nine innings for the Robins, allowing nine hits, although there was a spell there in the third inning before the climax of the fun, when the Giants gave him a bit of a start. In this bit of action Hughie Critz hit an ostentatious triple to the wall in left center field, scoring on Leach's sacrifice fly, and two other parties, Lindstrom and Ott, hit home runs into the right field balcony with the bases nude.

Babe Herman, the boy who poses as is for the part of the open mouthed outfielder in all the illustrations for humorous baseball fiction in the magazines, stood with his back to the wall gazing with all the expression of an upper case O as these shots went arching into the structure where the patrons fought for them in the traditional way.

Frederick Starts It.

Both sides scored once in the next inning, and the Giants thus were leading, 4 to 1, when Johnny Frederick began the hilarity in the sixth. He and Gilbert singled and scored when Herman hit a long triple, rolling against the wall to the right of center field. Wright then hit his home run and Herman strode across the plate ahead, his face stretched around a poultice of sucking tobacco and a brown streak trickling down his chin.

There was a small huddle of distress and worry in the pitching box here, several guys clustering around

Here's Chance to Tell What You Like About Cubs

What does Chicago think of the Cubs?

Who has been responsible for keeping them out in front in the National league race?

Is it Hack Wilson, Gabby Hartnett, Kiki Cuyler, and other players who have carried the brunt of the work? Or has it been Joe McCarthy's leadership?

2 BALDINGS HURT AS BRITISH FOUR BEATS OLD AIKEN

New York, Aug. 28.—[Special.]—Hitting with consistency and length for the first time since their arrival, the British polo players who will participate in the international challenge cup series starting a week from Saturday, fought their way to a 13 to 5 triumph over Old Aiken in their third formal test match on Cochran field at Meadowbrook this afternoon.

There never was any doubt how the game would come out. The Britons were on the offensive all the way, all of them meeting the ball squarely and getting it away at times for tremendous distances.

They kept Old Aiken on the run from the opening period, in which they smashed through four goals, and galloped into a 6 to 1 lead at half time. Three more goals were scored during the fifth chukker, which, with two in the sixth and another pair in the seventh, gave them their eight goal advantage at the end.

English Team Improved.

England's four was much improved and showed that maybe there will be a fight in the cup matches after all. J. Barney Balding, latest recruit to the British forces, called into action during the latter part of last Monday's trial, was again at No. 1 and went well, particularly in the opening sessions.

Balding suffered a painful injury in the first period when he was hit on the temple by a ball backed by one of the old Aikens. The accident occurred near the Old Aiken posts. Balding slumped forward in the saddle and fell to the turf between the uprights. He got up, holding his head, but fell back to the ground as the sideliners rushed to aid him. It was thought that he would have to quit, but after a few minutes' rest he climbed aboard again.

Barney had scored the first goal of the game, on a pass from his brother, Gerald.

Brother Also Hurt.

Brother Gerald, the brawny, aggressive No. 2, also was hurt. In the third period, chasing after the ball with mallet outstretched, he overbalanced and fell forward. Clutching the pony's neck, he held on for a few yards, and then lost his grip, landing on his back in front of the mount. He was cut and bruised somewhat, but, following Barney's example, he continued. Lineup:

Only 8 Games Longer than Cub-Card Tilt

Although yesterday's 20 inning battle between the Cubs and the Cardinals did not set a record, there have been only eight longer games played in the major leagues in modern times, and only four other 20 inning games.

Two of the longer games were played by the Cubs, one for 22 innings against Boston in 1927 and one for 21 innings against the Phillies in 1918. The Cubs also played in two of the other four 20 inning contests.

Records of longer games in the major leagues follow:

DOUTHIT SCORES WINNING RUN ON HIGH'S SINGLE

Bruins Rally Twice to Overcome Lead.

The Cubs' lead in the National league was reduced to five games by yesterday's developments. Brooklyn advanced to second place and New York dropped to third, one percentage point ahead of St. Louis. Both the Giants and Cardinals trail the Cubs by five and a half games.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Cub fans who think they are used to baseball thrillers haven't seen anything unless they were at Wrigley field yesterday and watched the Cubs lose a twenty inning 8 to 7 battle to the St. Louis Cardinals.

ANDY HIGH.

Any twenty inning game is something for a baseball bug to gurgle about, but this one will go down among the great games of National league history principally because both clubs abandoned their airtight behavior in the fifteenth and each club made two runs. If that didn't produce hot and cold thrills there'll never be any at Wrigley field.

Double Play Stops Cubs.

After the fifteenth there was another locking of horns. In the sixteenth the Cards filled the bases with two out and couldn't score. In the seventeenth the Cubs led off with singles by Kelly and Hartnett, only to see the rally blighted by the Red Birds' fourth double play and a strike out by Osborn.

Then came the twentieth, which probably would have been the last inning regardless of the happenings therein, for it was 7 o'clock and darkness was gathering. But the Cards were after their ninth straight and wanted no tie. A single by Douthit, an infield out, and a single by High produced the Cards' eighth run, gave them the ball game, and placed them in a position to go after their tenth straight this afternoon.

Cubs Miss Victory by Inch.

It was indeed unfortunate that the Cubs did not win, and they had a marvelous opportunity in the fifteenth inning. But there are certain things that you can't overlook in viewing the Cardinal side of the enterprise. Among these were a great play by Jim Bottomley that sank Lester Bell an inch from the plate with the run that would have broken up the game in the fifteenth and the fact that Sylvester Johnson in the rôle of relief pitcher fanned nine of our stalwarts during the extra innings of the contest.

On the other hand, the Cubs must be given the palm for being the fightingest outfit you could ask for. This statement goes way back for it nings and innings. They were taking a 5 to 0 licking from their old devil man, Burleigh Grimes, when they rose up in the seventh and raced across three runs and chased the Wisconsin Woodchopper. Burleigh didn't come back for the eighth.

Tie Score in Eighth.

Jim Lindsey, an able relief pitcher, came in and the Cubs socked him to the extent of accomplishing two more runs. Thus the score became 5 to 5 and the grind began.

Johnson took over the situation in the ninth, and Sheriff Blake was the pitcher who undertook to carry on for the Cubs. In the tenth Blake in-

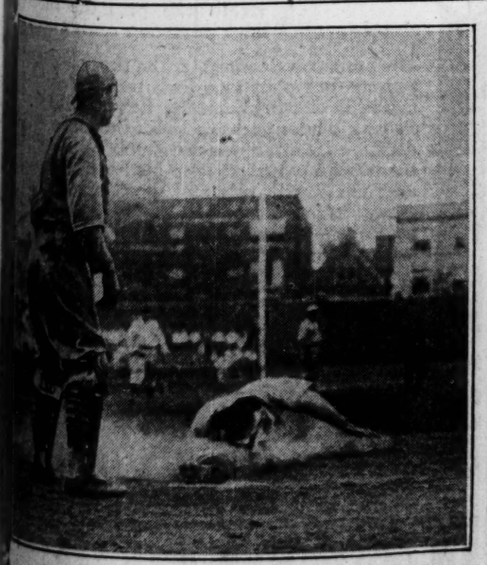
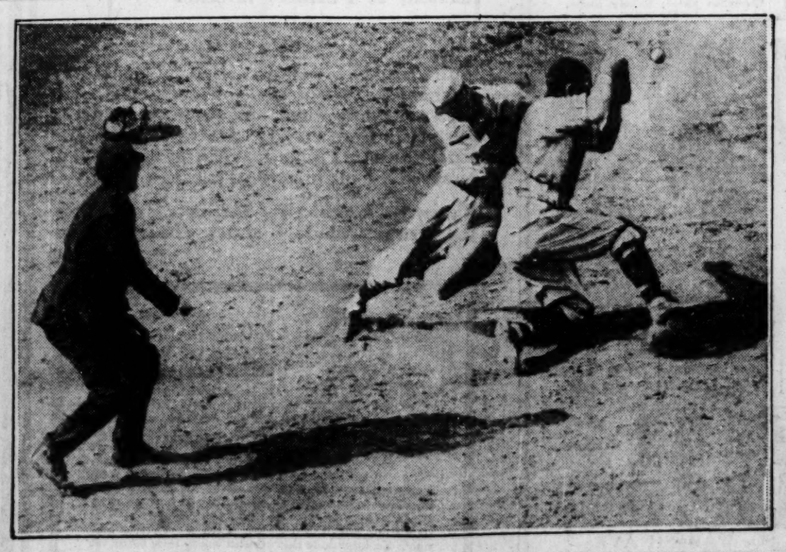
TALK ABOUT THRILLS! THERE WERE PLENTY IN THIS 20 INNING BATTLE

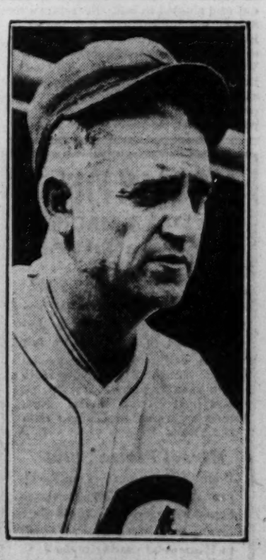


Gabby Hartnett did his share to make yesterday's battle with the Cardinals a thriller. After St. Louis had scored two runs in the fifteenth Gabby hit a double to drive in Danny Taylor and then he slid home with the tying run when Bell singled.



Pat Malone's wildness helped the Cardinals to three runs in the sixth, when the score became 5 to 0. Watkins is scoring the third run of the inning, but he did not arrive with much to spare, as the ball is about to smack into Hartnett's mitt. Watkins' double followed the hitting of Bottomley and Fisher by Malone.

The difference between victory and defeat. Lester Bell was out at the plate when he tried to score the third run of the fifteenth inning. Bottomley made a great stop of English's hit over first and while on his knees threw to J. Wilson, who got an eyelash decision.



How Jess Petty looks in a Cub uniform. The former Pittsburgh left hander didn't get into the game, but five other Bruin hurlers did.

CARDINALS BEAT CUBS, 8 TO 7, IN 20 INNING BATTLE

jured his side. He pitched two more innings before he was forced to quit and Osborn was pitted against Johnson for the remainder of the magnificent battle.

The place was alive with heroes, a necessity in such a drawn out clash. Sylvester Johnson can't be given too much credit; Bottomley was a star of the first water in a half dozen instances; Douthit, aside from his part in the windup, speared a long one from Bell's bat in the twentieth that required much skill; Sparky Adams, with 15 perfectly handled chances, was the busiest little fellow you ever saw; Jimmy Wilson had his big moment when he saved the game by getting Bell at the plate in the fifteenth. And so on.

Hartnett Leading Hitter.

Among the Cub satellites were Blair, who drove in two runs which tied the score in the eighth and made two one-handed leaping catches that kept the ball game alive; Gabby Hartnett, who made four hits, two runs, broke up a double steal, and was a sterling guardian of the home base on two important occasions; Ki Cuyler, who aside from his hitting cast one of his famous throws to get a man at third when disaster was near; Danny Taylor and Lester Bell and their bats; George Kelly, whose three hits were wasted, but who had a great day afield, including five assists, and Pitchers Blake and Osborn.

Johnson opened the twentieth by striking out, but Douthit singled to center and went to second while Adams was rolling out to Kelly. Andy High then singled to center and Douthit raced across with the winning run Osborn intercepted Wilson's throw-in and threw to English in time to get High.

Hartnett opened the Cubs' 20th with a single and went to second on a passed ball. Zack Taylor was put on base to run for Gabby, but Bell, Pinch Batter Heathcote and Blair could not function and a tough defeat had gone into the books.

That Thrilling Fifteenth.

Of course, there was much disappointment when the Cardinals got those two runs in the 15th. After Fisher and Watkins had been disposed of in that inning Jimmy Wilson singled to left and scored when Gelbert doubled to right center. Johnson then contributed to his own success by singling to left, scoring Gelbert. Johnson had fanned on his two previous trips to the plate.

The fans were moving toward the exits when Douthit filed to Wilson, but they hastened back to their chairs when D. Taylor opened the Cub half of the inning with a double to right. Kelly filed to Douthit, but Hartnett got the third of his four hits, a double to right center, which scored D. Taylor. Bell then singled to center, scoring Hartnett with the tying run.

Bell moved to second on Osborn's sacrifice bunt, which Bottomley captured for the first of his two superb plays of the inning. Blair then was given an intentional pass. English shot a single over first which Bottomley knocked down with a great dive. He recovered the ball and, throwing while still on his knees, got the ball to Jimmy Wilson. It evaded Wilson momentarily, but the Cardinal catcher somersaulted, grabbed the ball from under his body, and tagged Bell for the putout which saved the game for the Cardinals.

Bottomley's Homer Starts It.

The visitors had taken the lead when Bottomley led off the second inning with a homer into the right field bleacher, and the count became 2 to 0 in the fourth when Adams led off with a Texas league double into short left center, went to third on an infield out, and scored on Bottomley's sacrifice fly.

In the sixth the Red Birds made the score 5 to 0. After High had fouled to Kelly, Bottomley was hit by a pitched ball and some repartee ensued between him and Malone on the premise that Pat did it purposely. After the debate Malone also hit Fisher with a pitched ball. Watkins doubled to right, scoring Bottomley and putting Fisher on third. J. Wilson singled to left, scoring Fisher and Watkins and took second on the throw in. Gelbert fanned and Grimes popped to Kelly. This made the score 5 to 0.

Cubs Score Three.

The Cubs' attack on Grimes in the seventh when they were trailing, 5 to 0, was most surprising. Bell had grounded out, but Stephenson hit for Teachout and singled to left. Farrell ran for Stevie, but immediately was forced by Blair. English then doubled to right, scoring Blair with the first Cub run. Woody scored when Cuyler doubled off the left field wall. Hack Wilson walked and he and Cuyler moved up on a wild pitch. D. Taylor singled past Gelbert, scoring Cuyler and putting Wilson on third, but Kelly flied to Watkins for the third out.

Nelson easily disposed of the Cards in the eighth and in the Cub half Manager Gabby Street sent Lindsey in to pitch in place of Grimes. Hartnett greeted him with a single to right and stopped at second when Bell singled to center. Hornsby batted for Nelson, the base runners moving up to third and second respectively when the Rajah grounded to Bottomley. Blair doubled to left center, scoring Hartnett and Bell and tying the score, 5 to 5.

Blair then marred what otherwise was a brilliant day with an effort to reach third after J. Wilson had thrown to catch him off second. The ball had evaded Gelbert, but Adams easily recovered in time to throw Clarence out at third. Adams then threw out English to end the inning.

Now It's the Cards Who Worry Cubs

GABBY STREET.

The Cubs have bracketed the St. Louis Cardinals with the New York Giants in their grouping of dangerous enemies.

Though the Cards had split the season series, 9 to 9, prior to the Red Birds' 20 inning victory yesterday, they hadn't been considered a serious menace until the Cubs observed their rollicking manners in yesterday's contest.

True, the Cards were boasting a string of eight straight victories when they arrived in Chicago yesterday morning. But this didn't impress the Cubs so much. Why should it, with Frankie Frisch and Chick Hafey out of the lineup, little Sparky Adams on second, Andy High on third, and a couple of rookies flanking Douthit in the outfield? And besides the Cards beat the Cubs only five out of twenty last year!

But after the game there was no lifting of the eyebrows in regard to the aforementioned fill-in players. They have won the respect of the Cubs quite fully.

The only solace the Chicagoans got out of yesterday's affair was the fact that Manager Gabby Street used up two of his best pitchers in one game. Grimes and Johnson can now pack their satchels and go to the next town and the Cubs will wish them bon voyage.

They still must contend with Jess Haines, Flint Rhem and Bill Hallahan, but they are not due to handle them so roughly, it is hoped.

The lineup today will not see any changes except in the pitchers. Gabby Street is too much of an old timer to break up a winning combination except through necessity. It is doubtful if Hafey and Frisch could get in the starting lineup today with a writ.

The Cards are a hard hitting ball club, an outfit that can move faster than the Cubs; are well managed; are known as a great road club. The Cubs may well continue to give all they've got to beat the Cards while they're here, then pull for them to go east and play cut throat with the Giants and Robins.

Indians Beat Sox, 10 to 5, for Ferrell's 23d Victory

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., Aug. 28.—Additions were made today to the records being compiled by Wesley Ferrell, the Indians' pitching ace, and Dutch Henry, White Sox southpaw. Ferrell's addition came in the form of his 23d victory of the year, picked up by the 10 to 5 beating administered to the White Sox in the third game of the series. For Henry it was just another defeat, giving him a total of 17, against two triumphs.

Ferrell had no particular trouble stretching his record, which includes twelve successive wins, because of what the Indians did to Henry at the outset. His white hosed mates started him off with a two run lead, but it didn't last long. Four of the first six Indians to face the left hander exploded singles, and before Ed Walsh could restore order the inning netted five runs.

Caraway Hurls Today.

Caraway of the Sox and Brown of the Indians will pitch tomorrow.

The Sox made their two runs in the first inning because Jolley stepped in with a long hit. Kerr opened by singling to center. A popup disposed of Cissell, after which Reynolds singled to right. Then Jolley lined a two-bagger over third, scoring the two men.

A moment later Henry's troubles began. Henry retired one batter before the five run parade began to form in the first inning. Porter, Averill, and Morgan filled the bases by singling. Porter scored while Hodapp was forcing Morgan. Seeds singled off Henry's glove, and Averill scored. This was where Henry quit the show.

Double Clears Bases.

Walsh strolled in, and the bases were loaded again when Kerr fumbled L. Sewell's grounder. Goldman doubled to right and the three waiting runners dashed over the plate.

The second inning was marked by another Indian run and also the removal of Benny Tate. The run grew from singles by Montague and Averill. Just before Averill hit safely Tate let his hand come in contact with a foul, and he was forced to go away for repairs. One more Indian counted in the third because L. Sewell and Ferrell doubled.

Then two more strolled home in the fourth on Morgan's 25th home run of the season. The last Indian run blossomed from Ferrell's triple in the fifth.

After getting two runs in the first inning, the Sox didn't create any more disturbance until the fifth. In this stand, Cissell singled and worked his way to the plate on hits by Reynolds and Jolley. The sixth also produced one run on three singles, the authors of which were Kamm, Walsh, and Kerr. Ferrell got big hearted in the eighth and gave passes to Kamm and Crouse. The former scored on a single by Kerr.

INJURIES TO ROOT AND BLAKE CLOUD PENNANT HOPES

Cub pennant hopes yesterday became identical with the hope that Charley Root isn't as badly injured as it now seems he is and that Fred Blake soon will recover from the injury that caused his withdrawal from yesterday's game at the outset of the twelfth inning, after three innings of exceptional relief pitching.

Root is suffering from a pulled muscle in his pitching arm, suffered in the first inning of Wednesday's game against Pittsburgh, and Blake is laid up with a wrenched back, sustained when he fielded Fisher's roller in the tenth inning of yesterday's game. Blake pitched some mighty fine baseball after getting hurt, but the injury seemed to get worse as he went along and rest will be necessary before positive diagnosis can be made, it was said.

If Root and Blake both are out for a considerable period it means that Petty, Teachout, and Osborn will be moved up to the first line.

Bush is ready to go against Haines this afternoon, and Teachout has been effective against the Cards and may be selected to face Hallahan Saturday. Malone could come back Sunday against Rhem.

LISENBEE TWIRLS RED SOX TO 2 TO 1 WIN OVER MACKS

Boston, Mass., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Lisenbee held the world champion Athletics to six hits today and the Red Sox won the first game of the series, 2 to 1.

All the scoring was done in the seventh inning. Philadelphia went into a short lived lead in the first half when Regan muffed Simmons' grounder and Foxx tripled to left field, but the Red Sox scored twice on Webb's single, Miller's double, and an error by Foxx at first on a thrown ball. Score.

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 28.—(AP)— to the final round by defeating Wil

T. Tilden and Francis Hunter,
4-6, 6-2, 9-11, 6-2. Tilden's service was broken twice in the deciding set.
Tilden had to play brilliant tennis to prevent the match by breaking down
Lott in the 20th game of the fourth set. It came to Hunter's rescue many times for all during the match Lott and Doeg were sharpshooting at the net. Rochelle publisher. Tilden's inability to get his big started bothering him early in the fourth set and that long series of errors weakened him considerably.

Break Tilden's Service.

These errors and a Doeg placement gave Tilden's service in the first game of the fifth set, and the match was lost when Big Bill broke again in the fifth game, which was deuced, after three more of left handed Johnson's vicious slams and two nets by Lott.

History was repeating itself for Doeg and Lott, for they gained the title from last year by defeating Tilden and Hunter in four sets. Today's victory sent Lott into the final round of the third consecutive year. In that he teamed with John Hennessey of Indianapolis to tame the Australians, Gerald Patterson and John B.
Hawkes.

pions. In Saturday's final. The latter pair entered the last bracket by subduing Berkley Bell and Gregory Manbination, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4, 6-3.

BASEBALL "BATTERIES."

WHEN Helper Elaine M. asked the origin of the term "battery" as applied to the pitcher and catcher of a baseball team, we thought the answer was easy and self-explanatory but for safety's sake consulted our authority, Henry P. Edwards of the American league service bureau.

Henry confesses it took him some time to trace back the derivation of the word used in this sense but finally concludes it reverts to civil war times when baseball enjoyed a great vogue in the army camps. Pitchers developed who used a swift ball despite the underhand delivery to which pitching was restricted at that time. Thus these pitchers were referred to as throwing veritable cannon balls. From that grew the term "battery."

Just how the catcher came to be included is not stated except for the natural conclusion that he was a member of the gun crew and handled the "gun" or pitcher.

"Hey, Got a Smoke?"

I'm just an ordinary guy
Who keeps his temper, head and such;
I seldom off the handle fly,
Not many things upset me much.
But some day watch the feathers fly
When I lay hands upon the dope—
You know him just as well as I—
I know you'll help me in my hope . . .
The bird that whispers with arm dig,
Say, mister, got a cig?"

Each Sunday morn I go to church,
I never cheat the plush-lined plate,
Or leave the heathen in the lurch
Or bar them from the pearly gate.
I always give the kids a lift
Who coddy hard from morn till night,
And pennies from their earnings sift
To give poor dad a smoke and light . .
But offer prayers for some poor bloke
Who's next to ask, "Hey, got a smoke?"

Harvey: Just a last word before sailing for Japan. The University of Chicago baseball team won ten and lost three games en route here to Seattle, whence we sail. All games lost were by one run. Our batting average is .314. The boys are pulling together like clockwork under Coach Norgren. You will hear from me again, from Tokio, in about three weeks. Deke.

A Golf Lie or Lie.

Wake: On a Texas golf course, Joe's drive took a wicked bounce and lodged in the mouth of a cow. Joe carefully guided the cow to the green where the ball was disgorged two feet from the cup. He gleefully sank the putt for an eagle two. Then his opponent insisted he count the taps used in guilding the cow with his driver. He had 38 strokes.

ENTERPRISE IS NAMED TO DEFEND AMERICA'S CUP

Newport, R. I., Aug. 28.—(AP)—The honor and responsibility of defending the America's cup rested gracefully tonight on the shoulders of Harold S. Vanderbilt, skipper of the Enterprise, which has been selected to meet Shamrock V., Sir Thomas Lipton's fifth challenger, for the most famous of all yachting trophies.

Enterprise's three unsuccessful rivals—Yankee, skippered by Charles Francis Adams, secretary of the navy; Weetamoe, the Morgan Nichols entry, and Whirlwind, the Thorne-Hammond boat—repaired to boatyards today while Vanderbilt went aboard Enterprise to supervise tuning up the defender, which he hoped would retain possession of the cup won from England in 1851.

Three Chicago Women Lose in Western Golf

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Sub-par golf was stroked again today by Mrs. O. S. Hill of Kansas City as she won her quarter finals match in defense of her women's western golf title, but the breaks of the game helped the champion at crucial moments in subduing the western open titleholder, Mrs. Lee Mida of Chicago, 3 and 2.

The day saw the elimination of all three Chicago entrants who had reached the quarter finals.

In the semi-finals tomorrow Mrs. Hill will have as opponent Miss Dorothy Page, Madison, Wis.

Mrs. Lifur Wins, 4 and 3.

Mrs. Gregg Lifur, Los Angeles, had the biggest advantage of the day, a 4 and 3 margin over Miss Betty Bruen, Kansas City, and tomorrow meets Mrs. G. W. Tyson, Kansas City, who won from Miss Florence Beebe, Chicago, 1 up.

Mrs. Hill had a two hole lead over Mrs. Mida at the end of nine holes, the champion winning the ninth when Mrs. Mida three putted, something the Chicagoan did more often than usu l today. T tenth and eleventh holes were halved. On the twelfth Mrs. Mida's second hit the back of a trap and fell in. Mrs. Hill's ball landed at almost the same spot and hopped onto the green. Mrs. Hill won the hole, to go 3 up.

Mrs. Mida Falters.

A birdie by Mrs. Mida on the thirteenth narrowed the champion's advantage to two holes. The short fourteenth and long fifteenth were halved and Mrs. Mida appeared certain to win the sixteenth as her second headed toward the green, while Mrs. Hill's approach was to one side. But again the green beat Mrs. Mida. Her ball hit with such force it erected a divot and hopped back a few inches. Forced to chip over this obstruction instead of running down an ordinary putt brought Mrs. Mida only a halve and Mrs. Hill's birdie on the sixteenth ended the match.

"What do they mean by increased horse-power ratio?"

"Use H-C Gas and find out!"

INCREASED horse power ratio? An engineer could tell you in terms you might never understand—but Sinclair H-C Gasoline will show you in terms you never could mistake! Theoretically it means more power in proportion to the weight of your car. Practically it means more pleasure in proportion to the time you spend in driving. H-C increases your H. P. Sinclair H-C Gasoline gives better compression—permits your engine to operate at maximum compression—and stops knocks! Yet it's all gasoline—*nothing added. Look for the H-C pump!

Here's Chance to Invent a New Fish Lure

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LAKE OF THE WOODS, Kenora, Ont., Aug. 28.—The fellow who will invent a fishing lure capable of attracting small mouth bass or wall eyed pike, yet absolutely pickerel proof, certainly ought to get ahead up here in the big lake country.

The pickerel [so-called northern pike in some parts of the United States, but known as the jack up here] is found everywhere in this neck of the woods. Cast or troll anywhere in the Lake of the Woods, and wham! there's Mr. Jack a willing biter. Usually these fish weigh from 2½ to 6 pounds. When you are after big bass the first strike of the jack makes you jump because you hope that the heavy smash indicates a husky bronze back.

Yesterday we tried eleven different underwater lures in the course of two hours while experimenting with fish foolers that would turn the pickerel but attract the small mouth bass.

It was a tough job trying to find a lure with a "keep off" sign that the pickerel could read. The small mouth bass were down pretty deep in the clear water lake which we were fishing. They seemed to prefer the open areas just off the weeds, so the plan called for a cast to the weeds, or through them, and then snappy retrieves away from them.

Occasionally a bronze back would be loafing right at the edge of the vegetation and we could see them strike as soon as the lure started to move. Of course any casting around the weed buds is invading the haunts of the pickerel because the latter, like his cousin, the maskinonge, loves the weeds. Therefore our underwater lures always were within smashing distance of the lean, hungry picks, and often they smashed, much to the disgust of the guides, who consider them a nuisance.

After trying eleven lures it was evident that a jack could no more resist a whirling spoon lure or a plug than wall-eye can resist a minnow. We used a spoon, red ibis fly, and pork strip combination, a flashing, wabbling metal and pork strip fish fooler, a spinner, fly, and pork strip outfit, and many other contraptions, and with but few exceptions both small mouth bass [up to 3 pounds 4 ounces today] and pickerel raced neck and neck to get there first for a strike.

ROBINS TAKE 2D PLACE FROM GIANTS, 8 TO 7

the aggrieved Mr. Hubbell to chafe his back and tell him he was all right, old boy, old boy. But Hubbell went elsewhere and Pete Donohue, Cap Anson's only surviving contemporary, came in to pitch. He walked Del Bissonette and got a man out at last when Bressler tapped to Jackson. But then he walked Mickey Finn and pitched a hit to Al Lopez, which scored Bissonette with the fifth run of the inning. Mr. Vance now approached, swinging a little stick like an elephant twirling a twig in its trunk, and to the astonishment of all present, including himself, got a single, which brought home Mr. Finn.

So Donohue retired and Clarence Mitchell, the left handed spitball pitcher, signalized his taking over by throwing a wild one, advancing the runners. Finally, Frederick, hitting for the second time, brought Lopez in from third with a fly to Roettger and the outburst died off in a wave of titters. Gilbert closed the scene with a hop to Terry.

Here Are Statistics.

The statistics read: Seven runs, seven hits, no errors, two bases on balls, one wild pitch, eleven hitters, and three pitchers in half an inning.

The Giants tried a raid in the ninth when Jackson's home run, belated and unexpected, startled the remaining patrons with a couple of hopeful runs. But Roettiger and O'Farrell went [illegible] and the piece ended with Uncle Wilbert Robinson waddling over the field, filling his face with tuffs some black tobacco, like mattress [illegible] and handying pleasant remarks [illegible] the patrons.

RESERVE BANK HERE LOOKS AT UNEMPLOYMENT

July Pay Rolls Fa Off More.

The New York and Chicago stock exchanges, the Chicago Board of Trade, and other principal securities and commodity markets of the country will suspend trading for three days, beginning tomorrow and lasting over Labor day. Banks will remain open tomorrow, but will be closed Monday.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Industry in the middle west is [illegible] marking time pending definite signs of a general revival in trade. The problem of unemployment has been accentuated by seasonal dullness, although employers generally have sought to keep their forces together on part time rather than discharge workers.

"Although the number of employes reporting lines of industry and trade in this district declined less sharply than the aggregate during July than in June," the Chicago Federal Reserve bank says in its monthly review, "pay rolls fell off to a greater extent as a result of further reduced time schedules in many plants and wage reductions in some lines.

"Considered individually, larger declines than in the preceding month were recorded by eight groups in number of men and by ten groups in pay rolls. Only one group, food products, increased in both number of men and pay rolls, influenced largely by the usual expansion in canning and preserving in Wisconsin."

Employés 1.6% Fewer.

Data received from 2,306 firms showed a decline of 1.6 per cent in the number of employés and 7.1 per cent in pay rolls between June 15 and July 15. Savings accounts on Aug. 1 were only three-tenths of 1 per cent below July 1, and only 2 per cent below Aug. 1, 1929.

The furniture and automobile industries didn't do so badly last month according to the review.

"Reporting furniture manufacturers experienced the first sizable month to month increase in orders since January," it says. "The expansion of 52 per cent in July over June compares with an increase of 41 per cent for the same period a year and with 60 per cent in the five year average comparison, and offers in part the heavy decline of a month previous.

"Wholesale distribution of new automobiles in the middle west as a whole showed sales declines during July, partly because of the receipt of new models of one make of car, the aggregate value of cars sold recorded a small increase over June. Sales at retail fell off a little more between the two seasonal amount but the recession was much smaller than between May and June."

Further Credit Shrinkage.

Still further shrinkage in the amount of credit devoted to speculation was shown yesterday in the weekly report on brokers' loans by the federal reserve board. The decline [illegible] $38,000,000 in the last week brings the current total down to $3,102,000,000 which is the lowest point since 1928 and less than half the total of a year ago, the exact shrinkage being $3[illegible] 000,000.

In view of the fact that the stock markets of the last week have shown little change in average prices, it appears that what buying there has been by investors and strong interests largely for cash. This applies particularly to bonds.

The New York banks increased their own loans to brokers by $58,000,000 and now are lending $673,000,000 more than a year ago. On the other hand interior banks reduced their loans $59,000,000 and are furnishing $[illegible] 000,000 less than a year ago, while nonbanking lenders, Quiet Trade Conditions.

Quiet conditions in trade and industry, with not much change in the demand for commercial credit, are shown in the weekly statement of the federal reserve system. Borrowings of member banks receded $2,904,000 in the last week and now total $193,275,000. The reserve banks bought an additional $4,362,000 of bankers' acceptances and made no change in government securities held. Deposits moved up $1,002,000 and note circulation rose $13,540,000. Gold and total reserves expanded $16,513,000 and $12,000,000, respectively. The ratio of reserves to liabilities remained unchanged at 81.9 per cent.

The New York Reserve bank made no change in its 2½ per cent rediscount rate. Member bank borrowings held about steady, totaling $31,215,000. Bankers' acceptances expanded $7,340,000. Deposits rose $24,262,000. Reserves increased $29,168,000, but the reserve ratio eased to 85.2 per cent, compared with 85.5 per cent a week ago.

At Chicago member bank borrowings also showed little change, totaling $15,422,000. Bankers' acceptances declined $3,663,000. Deposits receded $3,857,000. Reserves declined $2,624,000, but the reserve ratio rose to 85.5 per cent, compared with 84.9 per cent a week ago.

Says Real Silk Hosiery Has Production Increase

In announcing that directors had voted the regular dividends on common and preferred stocks, President Foster M. Farrell of the Real Silk Hosiery company said yesterday that business of the company has shown an increase every month this year, including August, over the corresponding months of 1929. Outlook for the fourth quarter is for a continuance of capacity production, he said.

Court to Hear W. G. Mather in Steel Suit

Youngstown, O., Aug. 28.—(AP)—The opportunity sought by Judge David Jenkins to ask William G. Mather of Cleveland some "important questions" in regard to the Youngstown Sheet and Tube-Bethlehem Steel merger will be afforded tomorrow when Mr. Mather appears in court at the judge's request.

The announcement was made by Attorney George B. Young, an attorney for William G. and S. Livingston Mather, both of whom are heavily interested in steel and ore ventures.

Livingston Mather's appearance also was sought by the court, but Young reported he could not appear because of his wife's illness. Judge Jenkins declined a suggestion that Livingston Mather give a deposition. He said he would hold the matter open pending a more favorable development in the Cleveland man's personal affairs.

Auditor on Stand.

The court session at a time when defense counsel, in the suit brought by the Cyrus S. Eaton interests to enjoin the merger, had placed one of their auditing witnesses on the stand to refute the claim of the plaintiff that the merger terms were unfair to Sheet and Tube stockholders. This witness was George O. May, of the firm of Price, Waterhouse & Co., which compiled the figures on which the terms were based.

May testified there is a wide difference in the depreciation policies of Bethlehem as compared with Youngstown. The defense claims Ernst & Ernst, auditors for the anti-merger group, failed to take this into account when they boosted Bethlehem's depreciation rate and thereby reduced its earnings for 1929.

Names Previously Mentioned.

The names of William G. and Livingston Mather have been linked with Eaton during previous testimony. Both are officers in the Cliffs corporation, a holding company in which Eaton's interests own half the stock. William G. is a half brother and Livingston is a son of Samuel Mather, managing partner of Pickands, Mather & Co., Cleveland ore firm.

NOW GIANNINI NEGOTIATES FOR BANK IN ITALY

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Officers of the Giannini banking interests today verified in substance cabled reports from Rome that the Italian bank, Italo Bank Brittanico, was about to be acquired by Banca D'America e D'Italia.

Banca d'America e d'Italia, controlled by Transamerica corporation, has headquarters at Milan and controls 29 branches in the principal cities of Italy.

It was understood strong British interests said to be associated with Transamerica in the acquisition of Italo Brittanico will be represented on the directorate as well as in the executive management of the acquired bank.

At Transamerica offices it was said a statement probably would be issued when negotiations in progress have been completed.

PER CAPITA USE OF ELECTRIC POWER IS DOUBLED IN DECADE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—(AP)—On the basis of the 1930 census, F. E. Bonner, executive secretary of the power commission, reported today that the per capita consumption of electric power in the United States had more than doubled in the past decade.

For the country as a whole the per capita use increased from 391 kilowatt hours in 1920 to 800 kilowatt hours in 1930. The northwest and Pacific coast states were the largest consumers in proportion to population.

Montana, with a per capita use of 2,823 kilowatt hours a year, was shown far in the lead, with California, Washington, and Utah following with per capita uses of 1,585, 1,570, and 1,549 kilowatt hours respectively. New York and North Carolina with 1,165 and 1,048, respectively, led in the east.

"In the western states with large per capita consumption most of the energy is generated from water power sources which indicates the availability of low cost sources has been a large factor in promoting liberal use of power," the report said.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 28.—Stocks and bonds of the Niagara Shares corporation of Maryland, a large investment company whose $15,000,000 twenty year convertible 5½ per cent debentures have been approved for listing on the New York stock exchange, had an aggregate market value on April 30, 1930, of $110,355,886, compared with cost of $102,027,858, it was revealed in the listing application.

A block of 3,500,000 shares of the Niagara Hudson Power corporation was the principal investment of the company on that date. Niagara Shares also held 1,000,000 class A warrants of that utility enterprise. Other prominent holdings included 40,000 shares of Eastern States Power corporation B, 15,000 shares of St. Regis Paper, and 28,500 Insuranshares Certificates.

The company has been closely identified with the Schoellkopf interests since organization on June 18, 1929. The Niagara Shares corporation of New York, a subsidiary of the Maryland company also revealed its portfolio in full, showing substantial shareholdings in Niagara Hudson, Eastern States Power, St. Regis Paper, South Porto Rico Sugar, Continental Shares, Inc.; Marine Midland, and many others.

REVISION DATE ON GRAIN RATES IS POSTPONED

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28.—The interstate commerce commision today postponed from Oct. 1 to Jan. 1, 1931, the date when its revision on grain rates becomes effective.

A general revision on grain rates in the west and for exports was prescribed by the commission last July after an investigation lasting more than a year.

The revision was in general a decrease. The investigation was initiated under the Hoch-Smith resolution directing the lowest possible rates be prescribed for farm products consistent with the service rendered by the railroad.

The postponement was granted upon request of carriers, who asserted that owing to extensive revisions involved it would be virtually impossible to comply with the order in the time originally allowed.

Sugar Trade Is Prostrate, Expert Says

New York, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Asserting the six billion dollar world sugar industry is prostrate because of overproduction, Thomas L. Chadbourne, chairman of the conference of Cuban and American sugar producers, announced today that definite progress had been made toward formulation of a plan to bring about equilibrium between supply and demand.

With Chadbourne when he made his statement was Dr. Viriato Gutierrez, member of the Cuban senate, who is the second largest sugar producer in Cuba. At the first session of the conference last Tuesday he offered a plan for limitation of production in both Cuba and the United States.

Statement Follows.

The Chadbourne statement follows: "Following the meeting of representatives of the sugar industry of the United States, its insular possessions, and Cuba, which took place on Tuesday, a series of conferences have been held by the cane and beet growers in New York. Definite progress has been made toward the formulation of a plan to bring about equilibrium between demand and supply by the adoption of a method of limitation of production.

"At the first session there were thirty men representing the industry which in the United States, the Philippines, Hawaii, Porto Rico, and Cuba aggregates an investment of about two billion dollars. The world industry represents a total capital investment of six billion dollars, and this gigantic industry is prostrate.

Find Friendly Spirit.

"The meetings, after Tuesday's gathering, have been devoted to discussions of a program based largely on the proposition submitted by Cuba through Dr. Viriato Gutierrez, member of the Cuban senate and a principal figure in the island's sugar industry, which is 80 per cent of her whole wealth.

"We have found a spirit of cooperation among the American growers, especially the smaller ones, who fear that a prolongation of the present demoralization will completely exterminate them. The belief is strong among those who have taken part in the conferences that not only will a method be worked out for the American market, but a real advance made toward correcting the present unfortunate world conditions which affect the growers of Germany, France, Poland, Hungary, Belgium, Czecho-Slovakia, and the Netherlands, which, through Java, is a great factor in can production."

27% EARNINGS DROP SHOWN BY 516 COMPANIES

New York, Aug. 28.—(AP)—A decrease of 27 per cent in net income from the similar period of 1929 is shown by 516 industrial, railroad, and utility corporations so far reporting for the first six months this year, a compilation by Standard Statistics shows. The rail division shows a larger percentage of loss than the industrial. The utilities show a small gain.

Compilation by Printer's Ink of the first half year's earnings of 151 corporations which are classified as national advertisers shows that 40 out of 151 have earned more in the first half this year than in the corresponding period of 1929. Of these 40, the food group, with 12 companies, had the largest representation.

Waldorf System to Retire 10,000 Shares of Stock

New York, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Directors of the Waldorf system have voted to retire at $11 a share, 10,000 shares of 8 per cent preferred stock, par value $10. This will leave oustanding about 38,000 shares of 8 per cent preferred as the only obligation ahead of 461,610 shares of no-par common.

STRONGER CORN AIDS WHEAT IN PRICE ADVANCE

Market Action Fails to Follow News.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Scattered liquidation yesterday carried March and May wheat off to a new low for the season, the latter touching 97⅛c. Toward the last, however, there was evening up on the part of shorts and also buying on the strength in corn, and the finish was ⅛@⅝c higher. September closed at 86¼@86⅝c; December, 91⅝@91½c, and May, 98⅝@98¼c.

Many scattered longs in the September delivery went out of their holdings during the day, the discount under the December widening to around 5¼c, while a local broker took the September and sold the December on a local scale. Owing to the triple holiday ahead there was little disposition on the part of the average trader to get far from shore and the market was easily influenced throughout the day.

Tone of Uneasiness.

There is an undertone of uneasiness noticeable in the wheat trade. The action of the market is not in accord with the news and while there are expectations of a larger European demand than last year importers are taking wheat sparingly. Sales yesterday were estimated at only 500,000 bu in all positions. Winnipeg was ⅝c lower to ¼c higher, with October showing the decline, and it was only 1⅝c over Chicago September at the last. No. 1 northern at Winnipeg was quoted at 86⅜c at the last, or the same price as Chicago September.

Fears that the hot weather in France might damage the new wheat crop owing to the high moisture content, and reports that the German grain was of poor milling quality had some effect on Liverpool, which was off only ⅝@¾d for the day. Broomhall issued a tentative estimate on the world's crop, making the total, including Russia, 4,256,000,000 bu, compared with 4,032,000,000 bu last year.

The International Institute of Agriculture at Rome places the European crop, exclusive of Russia, at 1,171,000,000 bu, against 1,456,000,00 bu last year. The figures from the latter authority were about in line with an estimate received several weeks ago by J. S. Bache & Co.

Report Frost in Alberta.

Frost was reported in the Peace river territory in Alberta, where it is claimed that wheat was in a condition to be damaged, but taken as a whole the market has been little affected by bullish news for some time past.

Russia exported 1,928,000 bu during the last week, and Liverpool reported wheat from that country obtainable around 91½c with Danube quoted at 97½c, while American No. 2 hard was $1.02¾ and No. 2 Manitoba, $1.04¼. Preliminary estimate on the Argentine wheat acreage is 20,130,000 acres against 19,019,000 acres last year.

There was a little pressure on corn early, but the surplus in the pit was absorbed by strong local professionals and the prices advanced 1⅛@1⅜c from the early low. At the finish the net gains were ⅝@1¾c with shorts covering on the way up. September finished at 97⅝c; December, 92⅞c, and May, 96⅜c. Part of the buying was regarded as having been influenced by a belief that the private crop estimates to be issued next week would show a further reduction in the prospective yield.

Land Banks' Bonds Given Mellon Favor

New York, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon, in a letter to a group of bankers that has sold federal land bank bonds to the public, states that the federal land bank system has demonstrated its fundamental soundness, and investors in the bank's bonds should not be disturbed by false or misleading information over the agricultural situation.

The letter was written in reference to a report being prepared by the syndicate managers on the banks and their bonds, an advance copy of which was sent to Mr. Mellon. The banking group includes Alexander Brown & Sons, Harris Forbes & Co., Lee, Higginson & Co., Brown Bros. & Co., the National City company, and the Guaranty company, as syndicate managers.

Calls Report Timely.

Mr. Mellon writes that the report reviewing the land bank situation after 13 years is appropriate and "timely in view of the current discussion of adverse agricultural conditions, and also should be helpful to refute much of the misinformation that has been circulated recently with respect to these banks and their securities, and which undoubtedly has misled, and therefore disturbed, some investors."

He explains that the drought situation is temporary and confined to certain circumscribed areas, and the diversity of conditions that exist in the great expanse of the country's territory is an element of strength in the land banks.

Liable for All Bonds.

"The federal land banks are permanent institutions, designed to function in good times and bad," he continues. "They constitute a great mutual and cooperative organization that covers the entire country, and each bank, in addition to being primarily liable for its own bonds, is liable, under the conditions stated in the law, for the principal of, and interest on, the farm loan bonds issued by all the other federal land banks.

"These bonds issued by the federal land banks constitute a sound, tax free security, and investors should not be disturbed by false or misleading information. The achievements and service of the system have demonstrated its fundamental soundness and usefulness."

5 YEAR VOTING TRUST FORMED FOR CELOTEX

New York, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Common stockholders of the Celotex company are being asked by a stockholders group to deposit their holdings under a five year voting trust. C. S. Mott of Flint, Mich., vice president and a director of General Motors; T. A. Burt, Urbana, Ill., and W. S. Gray Jr., vice president of Central Hanover Bank and Trust company, New York, have been named as voting trustees.

A financial program has been arranged in connection with establishment of the trust, which includes prompt establishment of a revolving credit for the Celotex company, control of the finances by a finance committee, changes in the board of directors and an offering to stockholders of rights to subscribe to approximately 55,300 shares of common stock at $10.00 a share.

Palmolive Official Is Silent on Kirkman Report

Reports current yesterday said that Colgate-Palmolive-Peet company is negotiating for the purchase of Kirkman Soap company of Brooklyn, N. Y., and that acquisition would be partly through Colgate-Palmolive-Peet stock and partly through cash, since the Kirkman company has no stock outstanding. C. F. Pearce, president of Palmolive, would make no statement.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 28.—Today's session of the New York share market amounted to little more than a long drawn out yawn. Brokers and their help were packing the old kit bags for the summer-end holiday—there will be three days of it this year, Saturday, Sunday and Monday—and had little time for the serious business of stock jobbery. Also there was a natural reticence on the part of the professionals, who have been providing the bulk of activity, to extend their commitments to any extent with the long business interruption at hand and this contributed to the dullness.

Only 1,437,210 shares were turned over, only a little more than half of even Wednesday's puny total. Prices rocked about in extremely narrow ranges for the most part, few of the leaders altering their Wednesday final ratings by more than a small fraction. United States Steel and American Can, two of the foremost, wound up indeed exactly where they did last night. Radio was up an eighth of a point, New York Central was off a half. Consolidated Gas was down ⅝, and General Electric was up ⅛. And so it went through the general list.

Few Nimble Issues.

A few of the more nimble issues did better, but their changes as a rule have little effect on market sentiment either way.

They provide window dressing for the picture and little else. There was Auburn Auto, for instance, with an upthrust of 3½ points with the rest of the motors at a standstill. There was Delaware and Hudson in the rails division, advancing 6¼ points with most of the other carriers merely marking time. There was Eastman Kodak, with a loss of a point; Diamond Match, off 3¼, National Lead, up 5; Ingersoll Rand, up 2¼; Case Threshing Machine, off 2; American Chain, up 3, and Motor Products, off 4 points. But most of these move in orbits of their own independent of the general trend of the market and some of them, owing to the closely held status of the shares, can be changed about quite sharply on the board on very small turnovers.

Just for Emphasis.

All of which is to emphasize the fact that it was an extremely dull day. Bear professionals made some half hearted attacks on a number of their newly favored targets such as Gillette, Goodyear Tire, Calumet and Arizona, Vanadium, and Briggs, but

REALTORS JOIN WITH U. OF C. IN TAX SURVEY

Prof. Simeon E. Leland Conducts Quiz.

BY AL CHASE.

As the first major activity for the newly organized National Property Owners division, the National Association of Real Estate boards, in coöperation with the University of Chicago, has started an intensive research in the field of state and local taxation to find means to lessen the tax burden on real estatae.

In this enterprise the National Association of Real Estate boards has secured the coöperation of the U. S. Building & Loan league, the National association of Building Owners and Managers and the Mortgage Bankers association of America.

Conducted by Prof. Leland.

The tax research is being conducted by Prof. Simeon E. Leland of the University of Chicago, assisted by W. O. Sutter of Texas Christian university, G. W. Mitchell, University of Iowa; A. G. Griffith, Furman university; V. G. Morrison, formerly with the University of Nebraska, and Neil Jacoby, an honor graduate of the University of Saskatchewan.

The research into state income taxes as a possible revenue source which could afford substantial reduction to real estate is now going forward. This survey is seeking to determine whether real estate taxes have been reduced in states which have adopted income taxes, or whether the proceeds from the income tax have been used for the improvement of government service or the extension of government functions and have in no way tended to lessen the tax on property.

State-Wide Movement.

The investigation will likewise seek to determine whether or not the state income tax reaches those not hitherto taxpayers or merely adds to the burden borne by those already paying real estate taxes.

There already is under way a state-wide movement for the organization of property owners divisions in Illinois real estate boards. The immediate objective of these divisions is to secure the adoption of the proposed amendment to the state constitution to remove the limitation of tax uniformity, a limitation which has allowed real estate to bear more than 70 per cent of the tax burden in Illinois. The proposed amendment is to be voted on in the fall election.

Assigns Halsted Lease.

Abraham M. Liebling has assigned the fifty year lease at the northeast corner of Halsted and Maxwell streets to Samuel Joseph Greenspahn. The property is 76x102. The original lease was made Aug. 1, 1925, by Isaac S. Ginsburg to Mr. Liebling.

Rowland R. Schwall of Evanston writes that the Andrew Schwall estate is the owner of the property at 1501-45 Sherman avenue, Evanston, and not the C. M. McDonald estate, as was stated in this column on Aug. 22. The Tribune obtained its information from a supposedly reliable source.

FURNITURE MEN DECIDE ON NEXT MARKET PERIODS

Representatives from the five largest furniture manufacturing centers east of the Mississippi met at the Furniture Mart yesterday to decide on new marketing dates for the showing of new styles and designs. The action at the meeting included representatives of manufacturers exhibiting in Chicago, Jamestown, N. Y., New York City, Grand Rapids, Mich., and High Point, N. C. The group went on record in favor of holding one major market in June to be followed by a secondary market in November. They recommended also that markets in various other centers be held within those same major periods.

It is the purpose of the exhibitors to dispense with the midseason market, it was explained. The action taken yesterday becomes effective in June, 1931, subject to the approval of the boards of governors of the various markets throughout the country.

NEW YORK SILK CONCERN GOES IN BANKRUPTCY

New York, Aug. 28.—(AP)—A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in federal court today by the Amalgamated Silk corporation, one of the largest silk factories in the country. The firm is incorporated in Delaware and has offices on Park avenue.

The petition said the directors held a meeting today and decided the corporation was unable to pay its debts. They thereupon voted to file a petition in bankruptcy, calling for the appointment of a receiver, the liquidation of assets and the winding up of the corporation's affairs.

New York, Aug. 27.—A survey of conditions in the manufacturing and wholesale drug field shows that for the first half of 1930 the net profits of 43.6 per cent of drug manufacturers and 47.8 per cent of the wholesalers were as good or better than in the period last year, according to drug trade news. Gross profits held up to the 1929 level for 54.7 per cent of the wholesalers. Compared with 1928 results, the net profits of 85.7 per cent of the manufacturers and 50 per cent of the wholesalers this year were at the same level or higher.

Receipts at Chicago today, 2,000; cattle, 35,000 hogs, and 6,000 sheep.

The price of lightweight hogs took a hard jolt yesterday when eastern demand dropped below early expectations. The market for 200 lb averages and lighter weights dropped to a 25@50c lower level, while medium and waignty stock met fair demand at 10@25c decline.

The extreme top dropped 20c at $11.45, while the general average came down 25c at $10.00.

Traders attribute the light shipping orders to the fact that hogs sent out yesterday would reach eastern slaughtering points too late Saturday to be killed and would have to go over until next Tuesday morning. Some of the 9,000 left at the close were held off the market in hopes of some improvement in demand later in the week.

Tuesday Hogs Bid $11.50.

In spite of the break in the cash trade, trading in hog futures was fairly active at only 10@15c decline. On the "to arrive" market lightweight hogs for today's delivery and also for next Tuesday's delivery were bid $11.50, but no offers were made at this figure.

September lightweights opened at $10.75 and closed at $10.70, mediums also selling at the latter price. December mediums brought $9.00 and August heavy grades sold at $10.85. Bids for feeding lambs for September delivery were unchanged at $7.00@7.50.

Eastern demand for top notcher steers and yearlings continued good at firm prices and most of these kinds cleared quickly at the recent advance. Other classes, however, were neglected, and, at the close, buyers enjoyed a "bargain" market on cattle which sold at $11.50 and below.

Bulk of Sales Show Loss.

The bulk of the day's sales showed a loss of 25@50c when the session ended. Cattle averaging 1,020@1,350 lbs topped the market at $12.35, while $12.25 was paid for 1,526 lb steers and also for yearlings averaging 843 lbs. Butcher stock sold slowly, most cows and heifers showing 25@50c loss for two days. Calves ruled weak to lower. Stockers and feeders were scarce and unchanged.

Another break of mostly 25c in fat lambs yesterday brought the market within 25c of the lowest spot since October, 1921. The peak price went down to $9.25, paid for several loads by shippers and city butchers. Best westerns stopped at $9.00. At the low point in October, 1921, top lambs were down to $8.25, which was the lowest since 1914.

Feeders Meet Fair Demand.

Aged sheep and yearlings were scarce and barely steady. Feeders met fair demand at unchanged prices. Sheep receipts at Chicago during the first four days of the week totaled 99,800, against 72,182 a week ago, 79,057 a year ago, and 76,493 two years ago.

Receipts at Chicago today are estimated at 2,000 cattle, 15,000 hogs, and 6,000 sheep, against 2,006 cattle, 20,972 hogs, and 12,937 sheep, the previous Friday, and 1,295 cattle, 19,241 hogs, and 9,991 sheep, a year ago.

COTTON MARKETS NARROW

Lower cables, with increased hedging from the south and less covering by shorts, carried cotton prices down in the early trading. Toward the last the market rallied on evening up for the holidays and after a range of around 15 points at the extreme futures in Chicago closed unchanged to 1 point higher, with other markets 2 points higher to 3 points lower, New York being the weakest. Spots were unchanged at 11.70c in New York, 11.20c in New Orleans, 11.35c in Galveston, and 11.30c in Houston. Liverpool closed 6@7 points net lower with spot sales 5,000 bales.

A feature was the Murray-Clement Curtis crop report, estimating the yield at 14,128,000 bales, against 14,-905,000 bales a month ago, and 14,-828,000 bales in 1929. Prospects are for clear weather. New York dry goods trade was said to be fairly active, with sales of fair sized lines of print cloths at higher prices. Prices follow:

TRONGER CORN ELPS WHEAT IN PRICE ADVANCE

arket Fails to Respond to Current Events.

Germany and some other European countries are offering foodstuffs on a liberal scale, such as packing ng by-products and dried beet pulp. ding to the terms under which Arrican corn is offered, seaboard handlers are not inclined to take hold ely. H. C. Donovan, the Logan Iowa crop observer, has returned from a trip over part of Illinois and Iowa, and claims that the short crop this season may have to last for months, owing to the early feeding new grain.

Oats Remain Unchanged.

Scattered selling carried oats prices rly, but the market rallied in sympathy with corn and closed unchanged to ¼c higher, September finishing at 49c, and December at 43¼@ 43c. Commission houses were buyers on scale orders, with the selling by local longs and houses with northern connections.

Big loss orders were uncovered in the early, causing a sharp break, but the market rallied quickly when buying appeared and the finish was 5/8@ 1¼c higher, September being 57½@ 57c and December, 63⅜@63½c at the best. Reports are conflicting as to the demand for rye for feeding purposes, one of the largest cash houses stating they have only a normal demand for this season of the year.

Asbestos Corp. to Delay Bond Interest Payments

New York, Aug. 29.—(AP)—Holders of the general mortgage bonds of the Asbestos Corporation, Ltd., today received a resolution to forego the receipt of interest on the bonds for a period of two years, provided the company is not in a position to resume payment before that time. The action had been requested by the management to help the company out of its present difficulties. It was said that should the bodies which had been loaned prove up there should be no objection to the future and payment of coupons would not long be delayed.

Price of Refined Sugar Advanced to 4.45c Pound

Prices of refined sugar have been advanced 10 points to 4.45 cents a pound. The new rate is to become effective today. Companies announcing the advance are the Savannah Sugar Company, the Revere Sugar Refining Company, McCahan Sugar, and National Sugar.

CASH·GRAIN N·E·W·S

A fair foreign demand was in evidence for North American wheat, and sales in all positions were estimated at 500,000 bu, including some hard winter via the Gulf. No. 1 hard was quoted at 7½c over September for first half of September loading at the Gulf with last half 8c over the future.

There was no improvement in the offerings of winter wheat to arrive and the spot basis here was firm. No. 1 red was 2¼@2½c over; No. 2 red, 1⅝@2c over; No. 1 hard, 1⅝@2c over; No. 2 hard, 1½@1⅝c over and No. 1 northern, 1½@1⅝c over September. At St. Louis No. 1 red was 1¼@2¼c over Chicago December for grain withdrawn from store, fresh receipts being inadequate for the demand. Sales of 300,000 bu wheat were made to go to store at Chicago, presumably for delivery on September contracts.

Official receipts of grain at Chicago Thursday: Wheat, 24 cars; corn, 201 cars; oats, 65 cars; rye, 2 cars; barley, 27 cars.
